Health Care Needs Study

2 Hospitals Recommended; 1 In Schaumburg Township

by STEVE BROWN

Recommendations for two hospitals to be built by 1975, coordinated with the development of medical office centers plus the immediate development of emergency medical treatment centers, were among the major items contained in the preliminary draft of health care needs for Northwest Cook County.

The study, conducted by the Northwest Cook County Health Care Needs Study Committee, was released yesterday.

The report, prepared by the consulting firm of Ernst and Ernst, recommends the construction of two hospitals, one a 300-bed facility to be located at Schaumburg and Barrington roads in Schaumburg Township. The second hospital, with a recommended size of 250 beds, is to be located near the intersection of Routes 59 and 22 north of Barrington.

THE 33-PAGE STUDY states that by constructing these two facilities the health care needs of the area will be adequately served through 1980.

Richard Kasten of the consulting firm, said the locations are to be considered general. He added these are based on result of analysis of projected population growth, existing medical referral patterns and travel patterns.

A completed study, including all statistical data, is expected to be released in about five weeks, Kasten said.

Kasten said that the proposed Rush

Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center site near Roselle and Schaumburg roads, was not considered ideal because it is too close to Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

Both Henry J. Buhrman, the newly appointed director of the Schaumburg facility and Schaumburg Village Atty. Jack Siegal said they were "encouraged" by the report, citing a need for a hospital in Schaumburg.

Buhrman said that he and other officials of Presbyterian-St. Luke's will have to examine the report in detail before making further comments.

BOTH MEN SAID they did not feel this report would deter the plans for the Schaumburg hospital.

"We have an agreement with Presbyterian-St. Luke's and the only way it would not be fulfilled is if we could not raise the necessary money," Siegal said. About $4 million will be needed to be raised in this area for the proposed $12 million facility, according to the agreement with Presbyterian-St. Luke's.

Dr. Sanford Block, representing a group of physicians who have announced plans to build a 200-bed hospital in western portion of Hoffman Estates, said the findings of the study merely confirmed the research his group did about one year ago.

"This may accelerate our plans," Block said.

Dr. Sheldon Waldstein, executive director of the North Suburban Association for Health Resources, said the completion of the study represents nearly two years work by the committee.

Make-Believe A Real Thrill In Schaumburg

It was time for make-believe as Schaumburg youngsters decked out in fancy fantastic and frightening costumes took part in a Halloween parade, costume contest and pumpkin carving sponsored by the Schaumburg Jaycees.

The youngsters gathered in Campanelli Park for the costume judging and pumpkin carving contest Saturday morning.

First place winner in the pumpkin carving contest was Michael Shutt; Nanette Doepgen was second; Todd Fulk, third; and Lytle Kurzwinski fourth.

The costume judging was in four age groups. Winners in the kindergarten and under group are: Amy Peters, "Witch," first place; Jolene Rausa, "Oscar The Grouch," second place; Jennifer, Belle and Joey Onesto, "Three Little Pigs," third place; and Chris Langan, the "Green Giant," fourth.

IN THE FIRST through third grade group Brandon Buckman as a little old man won first place; Mike Meyer as the "Mummy" won second place; Suzie and Scott Gustafson as "Raggedy Ann and Andy," were third place winners and Danielle Banks as a scarecrow got a fourth place award.

Winners in the fourth and fifth grade group were, Chris Frillmann who won first place for a Frankenstein costume; Bonnie Bowers second place winner as a witch, Ron Butzen third place winner as Dracula; and Brian Labuda, who won fourth place as Chiquita the Banana.

In the sixth grade and over category Mike Kerber as a monster won first place; Andrea Winkles and Wendy Milan as just married ghosts were second place winners, Robin Polomsky as a cat was third place winner and Mike Ellis as a bum won fourth place.

Pies, Politics Get Top Billing

Pies and politics will share top billing at the Hillcrest School, 201 Hillcrest Ln., Hoffman Estates on election day Nov. 7.

The Hillcrest PTA will hold a bake sale and man a coffee shop from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the same time Hillcrest School is open as a polling place.

Whole desserts, pies and cakes, as well as individual servings of baked goods, rolls, donuts and cookies will be available, plus plenty of hot coffee.

The PTA urges citizens to exercise their voting privilege and pick up that night's dessert.

Hoffman Estates Approved For Flood Insurance Plan

The Village of Hoffman Estates was notified Monday it has been approved to qualify for federally subsidized flood insurance.

Village Manager George Longmeyer received a telephone call from Jim Reichardt, an assistant in the Illinois Department of Local Governmental Affairs, indicating the approval is effective Nov. 10. The village is to receive written confirmation of the certified approval.

While Longmeyer did not know particulars about the program, he said he assumed they would be the same for residents of Hoffman Estates as were announced earlier for Schaumburg residents. The program is to be administered by local servicing agent State Farm Fire & Casualty Co., Bloomington, said Longmeyer.

UNDER THE NATIONAL Flood Insurance program, homeowners may purchase the coverage from their own agents or companies.

As servicing agent, State Farm is to provide other firms with information on the policies and on rate structures and coverage limits, both of which are set by the federal program. Homeowners must purchase the insurance themselves, contacting firms and arranging for the policies. The federal program subsidizes rates.

Following the regulations applied to Schaumburg, any Hoffman Estates property owner could obtain the insurance for structures existing as of the Nov. 10 effective date. Not to be covered, for the time being, would be structures in which construction or substantial improvement begins after Nov. 10.

Buildings which were constructed or substantially improved after the cutoff date might be eligible later, depending on whether they are located within specifically designated flood hazard areas. If they were not in those areas, the owners might obtain the insurance at the subsidized rates.

IF THEY ARE within those areas, the owners could also obtain the insurance, but would have to pay full, non-subsidized rates.

However, Schaumburg was certified for the program on an emergency basis.

Hoffman Estates officials will not know whether their village also is certified on an emergency basis, and if the same rules will apply, until the confirming letter is received.

TWO HANDS WERE barely enough to gather up the goodies in the witch's cauldron. Saturday children participated in the Schaumburg Jaycees Halloween parade and collected the free candy.

Creature Canvass Shows Ghost Decline

by MARILYN HEISER

Grass root sources indicate spine-chilling goblins and ghosts will be on the decline this Halloween.

Venomous vampires and spooky skeletons are moving up in the popularity poll. But relatively innocuous princesses, hobos, and cowgirls will be the predominant trick-or-treaters tonight.

The usually reliable Creature Canvass predicts homeowners need take only ordinary precautions tonight against pumpkin-smashing and window-soaping revelers.

A scientific sampling of the seven to 10-year-old set indicated less than one per cent had any intention of stirring up witchcraft or wizardry.

BUT ONE HARMLESS looking girl, Debby Clatch, 383 Pleasant St., Hoffman Estates, said she would appear as a black cat on All Hallow's Eve. As she crossed in front of friends, superstition elicited a few shrieks of, "Hey, I'm your best friend."

Fear of the consequences seems to triumph even among the young. Joe "Pro" (as in sports) Severinsen, 278 Illinois Blvd., Hoffman Estates, said he would not smash the pumpkins of Brian Eisenhauer, 178 Payson St., Hoffman Estates.

Brian had previously, casually mentioned his proficiency at soaping windows.

But one John D. (name withheld to preserve reportorial confidence) had better watch out for Halloween hobo Pamela Ivanjack, 360 Princeton St., Hoffman Estates. She vowed to "pull something sneaky on John."

NATURALLY, Pamela declined to divulge her plans, even to gypsy friend Celeste Hagopian, 101 Windsor Dr., Schaumburg, or hobo Laura Priano, 369 Washington Blvd., Hoffman Estates.

Bravery is a common characteristic of Halloween participants. Kevin Sellers, 375 Pleasant St., Hoffman Estates, is following in the footsteps of countless courageous young men who ignore the jeers of their fellows.

Kevin said he'll dress up in female garb on Halloween, complete with lipstick, wig, and skirt, courtesy of his sister, Tracy Brownback, 121 Payson St., Hoffman Estates, who admitted she is afraid of ghosts and vampires, will venture forth anyway as a Dutch girl.

Michele Cook, 262 Osage Ln., Hoffman Estates, plans on a princess costume, hopefully with a wand to ward off witches, like Laura Danner, 161 Illinois Blvd., Hoffman Estates. Joe Falschi, 340 Princeton St., Hoffman Estates, who doesn't believe in those spooks, will be Spiderman.

LYNN PAVONE, 137 Payson St., Hoffman Estates, isn't afraid either. But wisely she is trick-or-treating with a seventh grade friend. Perhaps she should also team up with brave Indian girl,

This Morning In Brief

The State

A commuter train loaded with rush hour passengers rumbled into the rear of another packed train in Chicago, trapping dead and injured inside. Hours after the crash the Cook County morgue reported 45 bodies had been brought from the crash. At least 100 and possibly more were injured. The death toll was expected to rise as workmen pried the wreckage apart.

President Nixon's scheduled visit to Chicago today was canceled because of the Chicago commuter train wreck, the White House announced. Secretary of Transportation John Volpe flew to Chicago to head the investigation of the crash.

The Chicago Patrolmen's Association

and the Confederation of Police, representing more than half of Chicago's 13,500 policemen, are completing plans for a "blue flu" protest election day to back their demands for a contract. Many leaders, however, expressed belief that Mayor Daley would intervene and prevent the walkout.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Daniel J. Walker donated a pint of blood to aid victims of the Chicago commuter train crash and said he would forego "partisan" political statements for the day.

The Nation

President Nixon said he will sign into law a sweeping $3.3 billion-a-year increase in Social Security and welfare benefits affecting nearly a million widowed and disabled elderly persons. The bill, which will require sharply increased payroll taxes, replaced Nixon's proposed welfare reform that would have guaranteed an annual income of $2,400 for a family of four.

The United States repeated it will not sign its agreement with Hanoi in time to end the war in South Vietnam by tomorrow. The Viet Cong objected, but hinted negotiations would continue even if today's deadline is not met.

The World

The British government offered Northern Ireland the long-term option of remaining part of Britain or joining the Irish Republic, but left the decision up to the people.

Canadians voted to test Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's 4½-year mandate in a federal election whose outcome could mean minority rule for Trudeau's Liberal Party.

The War

With both sides trying to seize as much territory as possible before a cease-fire, South Vietnamese forces recaptured a district capital, deep behind Communist lines and Communist attacks throughout South Vietnam exceeded the 100 mark for the fifth consecutive day. Increased fighting was reported in Laos and Cambodia.

The Market

A generally uninspired stock market closed with a small loss in slow trading as investors awaited the signing of a Vietnam peace pact. The Dow Jones Average closed at 946.42, unchanged for the day. Declines led advances, 721 to 677. Volume was 11,820,000 shares compared with 15,470,000 the previous session. Prices closed slightly lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Pat Gerlach

TODAY, IN addition to being Halloween, marks the first anniversary of the due date of a report from Task Force I concerning eventual feasibility of merging Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates.

Now a year overdue, the project appears to have become a trick the local Great Old Pumpkin (GOP) will be unable to provide as a township treat in the foreseeable future.

Created by leaders of the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township (ROOST) in the summer of 1970, Task Force I was given 15 months to delve into the inner workings of both communities in order to produce a recommendation.

Though an auspicious program of impartial investigation was outlined, the endeavor, beset by a multitude of problems and criticism from the start, never really got moving.

Asked for an annual report this week, Glenn Hoffmann, task force chairman, tersely commented to The Herald on his mission.

"It's a sleeping dog and as such I would prefer to let it lie right there," Hoffmann said.

THOUGH NO official confirmation has been obtained, it is possible that an unidentified flying object sighted by a local resident last week may have been a non-scheduled Ajax Airlines night flight preparing to approach the newly resurfaced 3,000-foot runway at Schaumburg Airport.

Closed several weeks for the landing strip renovation, the private airport reopened late last week.

NOV. 8 has been set as the deadline for submitting nominations to Schaumburg Jaycee-ettes for the Outstanding Young Woman of 1973. Their project is designed to recognize a young woman (between the ages of 21 and 35) for outstanding community service during the past year.

The winner and four finalists will be announced at the Jaycee-ettes Christmas Dinner scheduled for Dec. 15.

Nominations may be submitted to any member of the group prior to Nov. 8.

SCHAUMBURG HIGH School V.I.P. (Very Important Parents) will meet at the school Monday at 8 p.m. Membership is open to any parent of a Schaumburg High student or other interested citizen. The booster club has just completed purchase of $2,000 in sod for football fields at the school and is planning numerous other activities. They include investigating the possibility of lighting the fields. Additional information may be obtained by calling Marshall Popp, 289-5768.

IN THE wake of news that Peter Justen will not seek a full term on the village board come next April, watch for a similar announcement from another Schaumburg trustee.

RECENT BIRTHDAY people include Schaumburg Park commissioner John Brandenburg, Al Larson, of the Clean Environment Committee, and Ray LeBeau, village public relations chief.

HOFFMAN ESTATES sage, Otto No-better, says next week Republicans plan to send Dick Nixon back to the White House while Democrats are working toward McGovern.

Court Decision Soon On Buildings

An appellate court decision is anticipated soon in the dispute over whether a 78-acre tract on Palatine Road in Hoffman Estates will support 1,352 apartments, or single family homes instead.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert argued on appeal yesterday morning asking a panel of three judges to reverse a Circuit Court order of June 21, 1971, directing the village to grant building permits for the apartments.

A decision on the appeal is to be delivered later, at an unspecified time. Attorneys had submitted written briefs prior to yesterday's oral arguments.

Supporting Hofert in his case was J. William Brathwaite, representing owners of surrounding property. Arguing against the reversal was Robert Haskins, representing owners of the tract who include Chicago Aldermen Thomas Keane and Paul Wigoda; George Koane, Cook County zoning board chairman; Frank Chesrow, former Metropolitan Sanitary District president; and David Chesrow, his brother.

THE SUIT involves a land parcel between Palatine and Bradwell roads, west of the Howie-In-The-Hills property, and in the extreme north end of the village. It originally was zoned B-2, or business. In April 1970, Haskins initiated a petition for rezoning to multiple family for the $15 million apartment complex of 28 buildings, each four stories tall.

The following August the village rezoned the property for single family homes on minimum lot sizes of 10,000 square feet.

Yesterday's arguments focused on existing structures and zoning around the site, the density of surrounding areas as compared with that proposed by the land trust, the compliance of zoning with the village's master plan and the impact of development on sewer and water facilities and traffic.

Hofert pointed out specific tracts around the 78 acres, and said the overall density of the surrounding acreage is five units per acre, with some parcels ranging as low as one per acre. Much of the area is not yet developed, and now is cultivated farmland, he said.

BUT DEVELOPMENT is moving toward the area, he said. Part of the undeveloped land is Howie-In-The-Hills, which has been in a federal receivership and unavailable for development for a number of years. With the announcement of plans for Woodfield in Schaumburg, said Hofert, the village knew the 78 acres would not be developed as business property. But development with 17 or 18 units per acre, the density with 1,352 apartments, would mean "staggering loss" of single family homes for the village, said Hofert.

The apartment complex also deprecate the value of surrounding land, said Brathwaite. He listed the values of some parcels, noting a 122-acre site valued at $900,000 an 80-acre site valued at $600,000 to $850,000, and a 15-lot development, on which homes are planned in a price range of $70,000 to $80,000 each.

Hofert said sewer and water service would be provided for the development, either as apartments or single family homes. The impact of the apartment plan on traffic would be tremendous, doubling use of Palatine Road and multiplying use of Bradwell Road by six or seven times.

HASKINS SAID the village had admitted it would not be able to provide sewer and water service to the development "for several years," and said the land trust had offered to pay for a community well and sanitary sewage treatment plant for the project. Few single family homes currently exist in the area, and little building has proceeded on adjoining land. Depreciation of land value for surrounding owners "is pure conjecture," Haskins said in response to a question from the court.

Hearing the case were First District Illinois Appellate Court Judges Mayer Goldberg, Joseph Burke and Henry Dieringer.

Three Women Charged

Three women, one a juvenile, were charged over the weekend by the Schaumburg police in an incident which began as a shoplifting attempt at the Marshall Field's store in Woodfield.

Police said security guards at the store stopped the juvenile after she was observed allegedly taking a pants suit valued at $60. After questioning, police released the girl, but followed her to the parking lot.

There police found two other women and a hand gun.

Police said Bonnie Nhoon, 23, of 534 W. Division, Chicago and Norma Nhoon, 20, of the same Chicago address, were charged after the juvenile reportedly told them the older women told her to steal something from the store.

The older woman was charged with unlawful use of weapons, no valid firearm owner's identification card and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The 20-year-old was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The juvenile will be turned over to juvenile officials, police said.

Both women were released after posting $1,000 bond. They are scheduled to appear in court at Schaumburg on Dec. 6.

Twinbrook YMCA Offices In Schaumburg Library

The Twinbrook YMCA offices, meeting rooms and headquarters are now located in the Schaumburg Township Public Library, 32 W. Library Ln., Schaumburg.

Robert Williams, YMCA executive director, said the new facility located in the former children's library room in the lower level of the old wing, is larger than the old YMCA quarters at 11 East Schaumburg Rd.

Williams added that the YMCA now enjoys more space for offices and storage with no increase in rent cost.

The Twinbrook YMCA telephone number is now 882-7250. At present the director, clerical help and Dick Barnett, new program director, are all housed in a large room. Williams said future plans call for partitioning of two office areas and a meeting room.

The YMCA staff is pleased with its new offices and has noticed an increase of interest since moving, he added. "We have noticed that people who come to the library often drop into our offices," said Williams.

Any remodeling must meet with the library board approval and will probably be postponed until after the first of the year. At present the Y's men club members are planning to do the work themselves. The YMCA is finalizing plans for a Christmas tree sale.

Home Burglaries Reported

A series of home burglaries was reported over the weekend to Schaumburg police. In three separate incidents, more than $2,000 in cash and valuables were taken.

Furs, television sets and about $100 in cash was taken from the home of William Porcher, 120 Bentley Ln. on Saturday.

Minister Really Walks Into One

An offhand remark by a Hoffman Estates minister recently resulted in a trip on foot to Alexian Brothers Medical Center yesterday.

The Rev. W. C. Smith of the First Christian Church of Hoffman Estates, told Mrs. Verona Nyquist who was expecting that if she had twins, "I will walk to the hospital to visit you."

The prophetic pronouncement was answered Saturday morning as Mr. and Mrs. Nyquist, 421 Slingerland Dr., Schaumburg became the parents of Todd and Tony.

The Rev. Mr. Smith reportedly completed the six-mile trek to the Elk Grove Village hospital in slightly more than two hours.

Hospital officials report that the boys, mother and minister, overlooking a few blisters, are doing fine.

day, police said, the items were valued at about $1,540. The house was reportedly ransacked during the burglary, police said.

Two more television sets, some silver items, and about $50 cash was taken in a burglary of the Robert Jahn home at 133 Bentley sometime late Saturday night or early Sunday morning. Police said entrance to the house was apparently gained by forcing a rear door.

A third burglary occurred at the home of James Mason at 801 Mansfield Ct. Thieves there took about $100 in cash and ransacked the house. Entry was gained by forcing a basement window police said.

Bike-A-Thon Gets $2,500 For Cancer

by MARY HOULIHAN

Sunday, the day of the American Cancer Society's Bike-A-Thon dawned cold and windy in Elk Grove Village and Arlington Heights.

The Elk Grove and Arlington Heights bike clubs and the Elk Grove Jaycees, promoters of the bike hike, stationed at check points along routes in both villages feared the worst when only 10 riders showed up at 10 a.m. at the first check point. But in the early afternoon, the skies cleared and with the sun came more than 100 bikers.

The turnout was best in Elk Grove Village where 64 riders turned up to ride 2,537 miles and raise almost $2,500 for cancer research. Ages of the riders ranged from seven to 49 years, but most were between 10 and 15 years old, Tom Carollo, one of the coordinators of the bike-a-thon, said.

IN ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, the turnout was less than expected. There were 34 riders in all. About $1,000 was pledged, according to Dick Spirek, president of the park district. However, two riders in the hike did stand out: Doug Vogel, who rode 52 miles and Mike Smiley, who had 54 sponsors, and raised more than $300 in pledges.

Despite the small number of bikers, organizers of the hike said they were pleased with the response.

"I'm pleased with the turnout. I didn't expect this much considering the weather and the time we had to put the program on," Carollo said.

Organizers of the hike distributed 4,000 flyers on the bike-a-thon in both villages. "But since the hike was locked in to a national promotion by the Partridge Family, coordinators of the hike in Elk Grove and Arlington Heights had only about a month to get the whole thing together," Carollo said.

Goblins, Ghosts Are Declining

Marla Luce, 161 Poplar Dr., Hoffman Estates.

The Tudisco clan, Pam, Sam, and Bill, 382 Westview St., Hoffman Estates, just moved into the area and won't be trick-or-treating. But they will dress up anyway, as a bride, vampire, and bat, respectively.

Skeletons Mark Neubecker, 129 Navajo Ln., Hoffman Estates, and Kevin Shelton, 320 Pleasant St., Roselle, will be out in boney attire.

This sampling as conducted in advance of the fateful eve and changed plans could occur.

And tonight, the goblins could get you if you don't watch out.

"This was probably the worst time in the world to run a bike-a-thon," he said. "But this was a pilot program. Next year, we plan to run it in May or June in 19 communities in the Northwest suburbs," he said.

FOR THE BIKERS who did turn out

Sunday, however, enthusiasm ran high. Many of the riders, members of bike clubs, traveled the 16-mile course two and three times.

"Many of them were determined to make the 80 miles," Jan Rodriguez, stationed at one of the Elk Grove rest stops, said. "They looked cold, but they looked like they were having a good time," she said.

Jack Pahl, former president of Elk Grove Village, decked out in a green riding outfit, outdid everyone, riding the full 80 miles and collecting $287. Two young boys on the course, Mike and Bill Hohman said they saw Pahl go by two or three times while they were still on their first 16 miles.

The bikers said they decided to make the bike-a-thon because "they liked to ride" and also "because it was a good cause." Cynthia Wilkerson, 13, perhaps gave the best reason. "I did it for cancer. If I had cancer, I'd like someone to do it for me," she said.

All proceeds of the bike-a-thon are to be donated to the American Cancer Society.

The Whole World's A Stage, Even Woodfield's Grand Court

by MARILYN HEISER

The lights are dimmed.

Chairs on red and purple carpeting face the stage. The audience listens to a spotlighted young woman singing.

A usual theatrical setup. But in this case, the theater is the Grand Court of Woodfield Shopping Center.

Transforming the Grand Court into a theater involves changes in the sound system, lighting, and physical layout of the area. But the construction and mechanics of the mall make this a relatively simple operation.

Each situation is handled slightly differently, Gerry Dempsey, Woodfield promotion director, pointed out.

But most productions would generally follow the arrangements made for the Miss Hoffman Estates Pageant held Oct. 21. Approximately 500 chairs were placed on the carpeted red and purple steps which surround an eight-sided permanent platform stage. Chairs were set up only along the front and sides of the platform, creating a thrust stage effect.

SPOTLIGHTS operated from the upper level, beamed down on the performers. The overhead lights were dimmed, with the primary focus on the stage itself.

The sound system, which ordinarily plays background music during shopping hours, facilitates a performance in the Grand Court. The court can be disconnected from the rest of the system, allowing its operation with a separate speaker installation.

In this way, amplification for fashion show commentary or theatrical dialogue can be limited to the Grand Court.

A totally dark theater is not really feasible, Dempsey said. Even at night, each individual shop has its own lighting in display windows. However, the overhead and fountain lights can be shut off, creating a fairly dark atmosphere.

For the beauty pageant, the area behind the stage was draped off to hide performers waiting in the wings. This also created a backdrop for the stage.

BUT THE grand court could also become a theater-in-the-round, Dempsey said. Chairs could be placed on all sides of the stage. Performers can change costumes in a dressing room like the one set up for the pageant in a service corridor between two stores.

The Woodfield Merchants Association will rent out the grand court, primarily charging only for the clean-up. The organization using the court pays for the rental of chairs.

However, the association allows the mall to be used only on a selective basis. "Our whole promotion philosophy is involving Woodfield with the community through events that bring people into the center," Dempsey said.

An evening function, such as the Miss Hoffman Estates Pageant, attracts people when the shops are closed. This is still good promotion for the center, because people may later frequent the mall once they become familiar with it.

cause people may later frequent the mall once they become familiar with it.

"We would definitely consider theatrical performances for the grand court," Dempsey said. "We've talked to some people about using the court for this purpose, but nothing has materialized yet." Theater groups have performed in the Schaumburg Room, a multi-purpose auditorium at the center, he said.

A shopping center connotes bustling crowds, noise, and general confusion. The atmosphere in the darkened, hushed, spotlighted grand court is quite a transformation.

Be Careful Of Studded-Tire Law

The Chicago Motor Club advises motorists to become familiar with and observe the varying state and provincial laws on permissible studded tire use as the winter driving season approaches.

There has been a gradual trend toward restricting or banning the use of studded snow tires due to the effort of the metal studs on the road surfaces.

In the last two years, Minnesota has passed a law applicable to its residents prohibiting the use of studded snow tires on its streets and highways at any time of the year, but exempting visitors for 30 days if they are in compliance with the laws of their home state. Utah announced a similar ban effective April 1 of this year, which, unlike the Minnesota law, applies to both residents and non-residents. Eight additional states and one Canadian province have placed specific time restrictions on the use of studded snow tires.

In 1970 Ontario became the first Canadian province to completely ban the use of studded snow tires. Hawaii, Louisiana and Mississippi also prohibit their use at any time of the year.

Illinois and Indiana continue to allow the use of the steel studs from Oct. 1 to May 1.

However, Midwest travelers are alerted to the varying permissible dates in neighboring states. For example, neither Michigan nor Iowa allow the use of studded tires before Nov. 1 while the earliest permissible use in Wisconsin is Nov. 15. The Motor Club reminds Illinois and Indiana residents who plan to travel to these states that while their home state laws allow studded snow tires after Oct. 1, the laws of the state in which they are traveling take precedence.

Christmas Seal Goal Announced

A goal of $1,175,000 for the 1972 Christmas Seal campaign in Chicago and Cook County has been announced by Chaire V. Hansen, general campaign chairman.

The campaign, conducted by Chicago Lung Association, will officially open on Nov. 8 and continue through December, said, Hansen, who is vice president of Duff, Anderson and Clark, Inc., a firm of financial consultants.

Funds raised will support the Chicago area Christmas Seal agency's programs against emphysema, air pollution, cigarette smoking and tuberculosis.

Groundwork for the campaign began when 65 city and suburban Christmas Seal volunteers met last week at the LaSalle Hotel for the annual campaign kickoff luncheon.

"Protecting your lung health is what Christmas Seals are all about," Hansen said. "They're important because we're all endangered by the staggering increase in lung diseases such as emphysema and the hazards created by air pollution and cigarette smoking."

Of each Christmas Seal dollar raised in the upcoming campaign, ninety-one cents supports Chicago area programs against cigarette smoking, air pollution and lung diseases. The remaining nine cents will be sent to the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association for nationwide programs of education and for coordination and leadership in national programs against all lung diseases.

3,300 Applications Received For Flood Disaster Loans

By KAREN BLECHA
By 10:15 a.m., the "Take A Number" dispenser in the Small Business Administration (SBA) Disaster Office in Addison had reached 23.

"Stick around another hour. Then you'll really see the people coming in," said Howard Vondruska, director of the SBA branch office tucked away on the second floor of the Addison Village Hall, 130 W. Army Trail Rd.

The office opened Sept. 5 when President Nixon declared Cook, DuPage and Kane counties a disaster area because of damaging floods on Aug. 25. Since then, the office has received 3,300 applications for grants and loans from homeowners and businesses and has extended service to McHenry and Lake counties.

"We've accepted about 3,300 applications and approved about 2,400," Vondruska explained, adding that the office has authorized about $16 million in aid. "But we've only turned down about five or so; we just haven't gotten to the rest yet. During the peak, about several weeks after the disaster, we were getting 125 people in here a day. Now, we've been tapering off to about 50 new applicants a day. And we're still getting a lot of calls."

According to Vondruska, there are

500 In Northwest Suburbs Seek Flood Disaster Help

Nearly 600 persons in the Northwest suburbs have turned in claims for flood disaster assistance, according to statistics released by the Small Business Administration (SBA) branch office in Addison.

The suburbs and the number of claims are:

- Mount Prospect, 72;
- Des Plaines, 69;
- Palatine, 64;
- Rolling Meadows, 16;
- Schaumburg, 14;
- Elk Grove Village, 10;
- Prospect Heights, 8;
- Hoffman Estates, 3;
- Wheeling, 2.

three groups of people who visit the SBA office: those who come in to pick up an application; those who are returning a completed one and those who stop by to pick up their checks. "MOST OF THEM come in husband and wife teams and most of them are not reluctant to accept money," Vondruska said. "It's the older and poorer people who are reticent to ask for aid."

Once a person has turned in an application, it takes about three to four weeks until it's approved, according to Vondruska. After that, the check should come in 10 to 14 days, he said.

Vondruska said that about 98 per cent of the applications are from homeowners. These people, he explained, can qualify for up to $55,000 in aid, depending on how much it costs to replace damaged items or repair a house. Disaster business loans are limited to $500,000.

The first $5,000, called "a partial forgiveness" by SBA officials, does not have to be paid back if the borrower sends SBA the receipts from repairs or replacements within one year of the loan. Anything above the $5,000 must be paid back at 1 per cent interest. About 20 per cent of the applications turned in at the Addison office have been for more than $5,000.

To get assistance, a resident must first fill out an application listing damaged items, their original cost and the cost to replace them. Applicants must also state what it would cost to repair a building.

"Furnaces, washers and dryers are the most popular items," Vondruska explained. "In Addison and the most heavily damaged areas, a lot of people are needing new homes or new foundations."

ONCE THE applications are completed, SBA sends out an investigator to people want us to pay for preventative inspect. the damage. An investigator makes up to 15 calls a day, Vondruska said.

"Most of the people are honest about what they claim but we have to knock down some of the claims because we can't substantiate them," he said, "Some measures but we can't do that. All we can pay for is what was lost or damaged."

Vondruska said investigators try to be liberal, but there are some things they just can't accept like damaged Christmas decorations or a large number of toys. One man wanted $5 for a ruined minnow bucket. "I just couldn't substantiate that," Vondruska said.

SBA employees explain to applicants that they can be reimbursed only for tangible items, but the office still gets medical claims.

"One woman claimed medical expenses because her husband injured his back, helping a neighbor to bail out his basement," Vondruska explained. "And we had one woman in McHenry turn in a medical claim because she said bluegills, that filled up her basement attacked her."

Few applications have been totally turned down. "Most are at least partially substantiated," Vondruska explained. "But, for example, we had one woman who lived on the third floor of an apartment building. She claimed the wind blew her windows open and the rain ruined her furniture. We couldn't substantiate that."

VONDURSKA SAID there are probably many others who could claim damages but haven't. However, he admitted, it would be pretty hard now to prove the loss.

"If they've thrown the damaged objects away, they should have taken pictures," he said. "Otherwise, it will be difficult to substantiate their claims. We might approve it if there is still a water line in the basement if other homes in the area had substantiated claims."

The SBA will accept applications until Dec. 31. The 20 employees at the Addison branch will stay on the job for the next four to six weeks, as long as services are needed, Vondruska explained. "Then they'll move on to the next disaster," he said.

Assessment Practices Hearing To Be Nov. 28

by ANNE SLAVICEK
Northwest suburban residents, businessmen and public officials will have a chance to tell the state Department of Local Government Affairs what they think of assessment practices in Cook County at a hearing in Arlington Heights Nov. 28.

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie announced plans for the hearing Saturday at a reception in Arlington Heights. The governor sharply criticized current assessment practices under Cook County Assessor P. J. Cullerton and explained reforms the state is considering imposing. The hearing will be held at Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights, at 10 a.m.

Richard Kissel, a special assistant to the director of the DLGA, has compiled a lengthy report calling for making assessment levels public and revising procedures by which a property owner can appeal his assessment.

KISSEL SAID yesterday the public hearings will give citizens and persons interested in the assessment procedure a chance to comment on his suggested reforms or on other changes they feel the state should make in the assessment system.

Kissel said persons or organizations who wish to speak at the hearing may make reservations ahead of time to assure that they will be heard. He said reservations may be made by calling the DLGA at 793-6344.

"We want to know if the recommendations are too tough or too lenient, whether we're right or wrong. We don't feel we should unilaterally adopt the recommendations without hearing people's comments," Kissel told the Herald yesterday.

He said he expected a lot of the same organizations and individuals who testified in hearings held by Cullerton would also testify in the state hearings.

THE HEARINGS Kissel will hold will deal more generally with the assessment procedures, while the Cullerton hearings have dealt with the actual percentage of market value assessments for various types of property.

Kissel explained that actual assessment levels are to be set by the individual counties, with the state checking to see that county systems meet state constitutional requirements.

Kissel said the state is primarily concerned that Cook County set target assessment ratios soon so that property owners will know how their property will be assessed before next year begins.

Kissel's lengthy report advocates allowing individual property owners to know their level of assessment before the assessor begins assessments for next year.

He called for the public availability of the rules by which the assessor determines property values.

KISSEL ALSO CALLED for the code of ethics and conflict of interest policy to assure the public that the employees of the assessor's office have no interest in the property they assess.

He also suggested a system of "fair" hearings on assessments to which property owners object. He also said the board of appeals which has final word on assessments should be reformed. Its hearings should be public and its records should be available, Kissel said.

He urged a new property record card system to give taxpayers more information and increased notification of property owners of their assessment levels.

Kissel also suggested yearly sales ratio studies by the assessor's office to keep the public informed.

IN ANNOUNCING the hearings Saturday Ogilvie said the Cook County assessor and the board of appeals will be required to put the final recommendations of the department of local government affairs into effect for the 1973 assessment year. "If they do not, we will order the reassessment of all property in the county," Ogilvie threatened.

In addition to the hearing in Arlington Heights, Kissel will conduct hearings in Chicago and in other suburban areas.

Ogilvie called for representatives of Cullerton's office and of the board of appeals to testify at Kissel's hearings. Once the stage hears all the testimony and finalizes its assessment reforms, the assessor and the board will be required to report progress on the recommendations to the state every two months, Kissel said.

"As I stated last April, it is my intention to use the full power of the state

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — My mother used to have springwater delivered to her home. We heard about a spring nearby and she asked us to bring her water from there which we did. This started about a year ago. My mother is 84 years old and the doctor thinks she has a kidney stone.

My sister said that the doctor told her that the springwater was no good. I know it is not filtered but a lot of our friends, as well as my husband and myself, have been drinking it and have had no problem.

My mother has terrible pains on her right side. Could the water have caused it? My sister just as much as accused me of it. My mother has had arthritis for years and now they claim the water made it worse. Is this possible?

I also have arthritis and I am not blaming it on the water. Please answer, Dr. Lamb, as I am anxious to know one way or another. They don't seem to realize my mother is getting up in years and another thing, she is a heavy woman which is not to her advantage.

DEAR READER — No doubt the doctor meant that the water might not be purified, meaning that it might contain some harmful bacteria. This is a problem with springwater that is not under careful supervision.

For water to be safe to drink, it must be tested for bacterial content as well as chemical content. In city water supplies, there are enough various chemicals included in the water to keep it purified and to protect our health.

Although springwater might contain a small amount of minerals, depending upon where it is obtained, it is most unlikely that it would cause a kidney stone, if indeed your mother has one. I think you can be quite certain that the water you have given her has not caused this problem, nor has it caused her arthritis.

There is no evidence that springwater or water of any sort that is potable to drink at all causes arthritis of any type or kidney stones. This is not an endorsement for springwater because I don't think anyone should be drinking water unless they are sure that it is controlled by public health regulations.

INCIDENTALLY, many doctors urge individuals with kidney stones to drink plenty of water to maintain adequate flow from the kidneys. The idea is that dehydration leads to stagnation and possible kidney stone formation. This, of course, is an oversimplification because there are many causes for kidney stones, including vitamin D intoxication, urinary tract infections and softening of the bones with increased amounts of calcium in the blood stream filtered by the kidneys.

The diet, not water, is the main source of minerals and it is particularly important in patients with certain types of stones. By analyzing the type of minerals in a stone the doctor can determine if a special diet would be helpful or not.

There are other things besides kidney stones that cause pain in the side, including pressure on spinal nerves from arthritis and degeneration of the spine, and colon trouble.

In France, Auto Racing Is Woman's Work

by ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS (NEA) — She is a tall, willowy, green-eyed, 37-year-old blonde and she has a unique specialty for a woman. She can really "talk automobiles."

Marlene Cotton has headed the "Competition Racing Section" of the Citroen automobile company since August 1971.

A French edition of Lauren Bacall, Madame Cotton explains that when her husband died last year, the Citroen board of directors asked her to carry on with his department, which handles Citroen's participation in the prestigious international auto races.

"You see," she says, "for 12 years I had worked very closely with my husband. We were never separated. I soon acquired his passionate interest in and love for automobile competition over the years, helped him in the very minutest details of his job and became, in fact, his alter ego. We would work long, long hours, never looking at the clock."

WHEN SHE MARRIED Rene Cotton, who was 21 years her senior, he was an automobile racer. Twelve years ago Citroen asked him to direct the "Citroen Competition" department and he suggested that his wife work with him.

"He taught me everything there was to learn in his sphere, where, everyone agreed, he had no rival," continues Marlene Cotton. "Anyway, if the directors of Citroen had not judged me capable of carrying on alone they would not have offered me the job."

Her husband's last professional accomplishment was the Citroen victory in the Rallye of Monaco (Monte Carlo). She had all his notes covering future engagements and plans. There seemed nothing else for her to do but carry on.

Her crew comprises 26 men technicians, mechanics and shop foremen as well as three secretaries (women) and one telephonist.

OUTSIDE OF THE purely technical aspects, Marlene Cotton's job consists of selecting the competitions where the Citroen automobile stands the better chances of winning, choosing the type of car best suited and the drivers who will drive it to win.

There are also the hundred and one details which go into preparation for a competition — countless meetings with automobile associations, with the organizers and with the various departments of the Citroen works. Reconnaissance of the terrain, establishing servicing points, medical stations, then the make-up of crews. Marlene Cotton explains all this in a smiling, matter-of-fact way, without ever emphasizing the magnitude of the operation.

In a country where men are apt to consider that the automobile is strictly a masculine interest, how do all the men she comes in contact with consider her presence among them? Here Marlene shrugged her shoulders ever so slightly and said, "It is perhaps hard to believe, but I do think that most of the time they forget I am a woman. My 'team' has never doubted my ability to carry on."

MARLENE COTTON knows her business, automobiles. In 1971, following the death of her husband, Madame

MADAME COTTON travels a great deal. Inspection of routes, checkpoints and the mile add up to something like 100,000 kilometers a year. She has never had an accident.

As for women drivers in general, "they are either very good or very bad. There seems to be no happy medium. Their best point is that they are much calmer than men, do not think they are little Napoleons behind the wheel. Also many more women know what goes on under the hood than is commonly thought."

Madame Cotton believes all learners should be taught to drive in a "closed circuit" before being let loose on a four-lane highway. Driving tests should be much tougher, and 18 is the earliest age at which a driving license should be granted.

Madame Cotton has two children — a 19-year-old daughter, Sylvia, and a 12-year old son, Thierry. However time-consuming her work, she always has made a point of spending all her free time with them. They are weekly boarders in a private school.

FOR ALL HER man-sized job, she admits to loving clothes, feminine but never fussy, and is certainly no devotee of the pants suit, save when at work on the road. "Few women look feminine in trousers, and many contrive to look slightly ridiculous."

Altogether, what counts most with her is the intense life she lives within her job. The fact that success hinges on the unforeseeable incident (a blowout, a loose screw or even a smaller hitch) is always a challenge. The exhilaration of the race, the perfect performance of man and machine, the multiple efforts of a team — these are the elements which make Marlene Cotton's job unique and which bring her untold satisfaction.

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

Local Moms Of Twins Elected State Officers

Two area women were elected to state offices of the Illinois Organization of Mothers of Twins Clubs, Inc. at their 10th annual convention in Joliet recently.

Gertrude Ziegler, 348 Cumberland Pkwy., Des Plaines, a member of the Twinners Mothers of Twins Club, Chicago, was elected president for the coming year.

Mrs. Lynda Peterson, 4008 S. Bluebird Lane, Rolling Meadows, a member of the Double Dykes Mothers of Twins Club, Arlington Heights, was selected second vice president for the state organization.

Accompanying them as officers will be Mrs. Gerald Miraldi, Aurora, first vice president; Mrs. Carl Calderini, Streamwood, corresponding secretary; Imogene Starkey, Monmouth, recording secretary; and Judith Eads, Bollingbrook, treasurer.

Mrs. Patrick Tuttle, 832 Delphia, Elk Grove Village, was elected to the nominating committee during the convention.

THE ILLINOIS Organization of M.O.T.C. consists of 22 Mothers of Twins

Clubs representing 500 mothers of multiple birth children in the State of Illinois. Gov. Richard Ogilvie proclaimed the convention weekend, Oct. 20 and 21, as "Mothers of Twins Days" in Illinois. Delegates and guests attended workshops and heard special speakers and entertainers during the convention. A donation of over $1,600, contributed by member clubs, was made to the Lydia Children's Home of Chicago. The St. Jude Hospital Affiliate, Peoria, was selected as the philanthropic project for the 1972-73 year.

The purpose of the organization is for mothers of twins clubs to join together socially and educationally to exchange information pertaining to the rearing, development and individuality of twins. Sources include doctors, educators and parents.

Interested mothers of twins may write to Mrs. Peterson for information regarding locations of local clubs and membership requirements, as well as how to organize a club in a new locality.

Area Women Named To League Posts

Four area women have been installed to posts in the Service League of Lutheran General Hospital for the coming year.

Mrs. Donald Clark, Palatine, is first vice president of the League and Mrs. Carl Dahlquist, Prospect Heights is accountant. Mrs. Harold W. Hansen, Arlington Heights, is in charge of socials, and Mrs. Craig Olsen, Mount Prospect, chapel.

Installed as the League's president was Mrs. Robert Bjork, Park Ridge.

BETA SIGMA PHI

Wednesday's meeting of Xi Zeta Epsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will be held in the Palatine home of Mrs. Richard Schenck. The welcoming ritual will be given to Mrs. Dorothy Mitchell.

Co-hostess for the evening will be Mrs. Peter Downing, and the programs on Russia and The Polar Region will be presented by Mrs. Walter Powers and Mrs. Donald Shadley.

The chapter celebrated Halloween Saturday with a couple's costume party in the home of Mrs. Kenneth Shirey.

Dear Dorothy: I gave an electric Teflon-coated griddle to my daughter. It wasn't cleaned promptly after the third use and it has turned dark in spots. Can this be removed?

—Mrs. N. N. These stains should be removed as a buildup of stains can lead to a loss of the nonstick properties of this type of pan. The recommended treatment to lighten stains in Teflon-coated utensils is: Boil a solution of two tablespoons baking soda, one-half cup liquid chlorine bleach and one cup water for 5 to 10 minutes. After this, wash thoroughly, rinse and dry. Wipe out the pan with salad oil before using it again. Don't know how deep your griddle is, but if it is shallow you won't be able to put this much solution in. Just be sure the recipe proportions are right.

Dear Dorothy: I love hollandaise sauce on asparagus but am always in too much of a hurry in preparing dinner to make it. Is there a simple way to dress up asparagus?

and sprinkle diced, hard-cooked eggs over the sauce after it is poured over the asparagus. Even sprinkling crisp bacon bits or toasted blanched almonds over hot buttered asparagus gives it elan. And, oh, yes, for chive asparagus, slowly heat one three-ounce package of chive cream cheese and stir until soft and creamy, then pour over hot asparagus.

Dear Dorothy: It might be helpful if you would advise your young readers to always empty the salt from the silver salt shakers after they've been in use. Salt picks silver.

A Niagara Falls Honeymoon

Niagara Falls, the honeymoon spot of yesteryear, was chosen by Pamela Sue Thompson and John R. Zarembo. Married Oct. 7 in First United Methodist Church of Arlington Heights, the couple spent a week at the falls and also in Canada before returning to their jobs and their first home, an apartment at 2180 Hassel Road, Hoffman Estates.

Pam is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey H. Thompson, 1010 N. Patton Ave., Arlington Heights, and John is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Zarembo, Carpentersville.

Pam's colors were Pamela's choice for the 6 p.m., candlelight service. The girls carried Tropicana roses, yellow daisy pompons, bronze pompons and baby's breath with orange velvet streamers. Pam's sisters, Mrs. Nancy Price, Palatine, and Miss Debbie Thompson, Arlington Heights, were bridesmaids as was Mrs. Bobette Ellingsworth of Woodridge, Ill.

PAM'S GOWN OF white organza over taffeta was also an A-line. An Empire waist, high neckline, bishop sleeves and Venice lace and satin ribbon trim were features of the gown. The train was hemmed with lace and satin ribbon, and a bonnet of Venice floral lace held her veil. Her flowers were Tropicana Sweetheart roses, Fuji mums and white carnations with stephanotis.

Class In Horticulture Just Grows On Students

by WANDALYN RICE

In the mid-1950s when much of the Northwest suburbs was still farmland, Lou Shalrer began teaching vocational agriculture at Arlington High School.

Several years later he became a biology teacher when the agriculture program was phased out of High School Dist. 214.

Today he has come just about full circle and is once again teaching about things that grow — in classes in turfgrass management and ornamental horticulture.

The 15 students in the two classes are based at Rolling Meadows High School, but come from Arlington and Prospect, providing their own transportation for the class and to the jobs they hold two days a week.

STUDENTS IN THE turfgrass management class work at local golf courses and for the Arlington Park District, applying the skills they discuss in class. The horticulture students work at local florist shops and nurseries.

The classwork emphasizes activity rather than theory, Shalrer says. "I grew up on a farm and the philosophy of the course is to get the kids out doing something they like to do. Once you get them doing something, you can talk about theory."

Recently, the students went out to the home of a teacher to do some shrub trimming as part of Shalrer's program of activity.

"Some of the kids had never trimmed

a shrub before," he says. "Once they started we could talk about why they were doing things, but I didn't learn how to milk a cow by reading a book."

The turfgrass management class began last year with six students and the horticulture class was added this year. The classes are open to all students in the district who can get to Rolling Meadows High School.

THE PROGRAM HAS grown slowly because "counselors in some of the schools don't know about it," Shalrer says, but he hopes the program will expand.

Naperville High School has a similar program with 200 students, he says. "I think we could do the same thing here."

Shalrer's emphasis in the class is not only on teaching about trees, grass and shrubs, however. He emphasizes the relationship he tries to build with his students.

"My main concern is to help the kids find out who they are," he says. "Not long ago we took a trip to Morton Arboretum and we got to talking about all kinds of things while we walked on the paths in the forest."

And so far, Shalrer believes he has had some success in reaching the students.

"I'm not sure how many students will do this as a career," he says, "but last year I had a boy who was in the bottom quarter of his class at Arlington and now he is at Michigan State University in their turf management program."

Hong Kong's Shoppers May Miss Great Sights

by JACK R. GABRIEL

HONG KONG — Too many visitors come to this British Crown Colony and spend so much time shopping for the fabulous bargains available, they miss seeing some unusual sights.

Many, for example, never go to the top of Victoria Peak, highest point on Hong Kong Island. You can drive up to the summit for the view, or ride the cable car. A paved walk around the Peak makes it possible to see around the entire island. The best time for viewing is at dusk, when the lights begin turning on.

Visiting the Tiger Balm Garden is something you won't forget very soon. It is filled with flamboyant colored figures and monsters from Chinese folklore and Buddhist writings, centered around a magnificent white pagoda which rises to 163 feet.

Don't miss Aberdeen, the largest fishing village in the colony. You'll see the enormous population which lives on boats, some pulled up onto the mud flats, others floating side by side in clusters on the water. Boat building is a major industry in Aberdeen, and the two floating restaurants are world famous.

BILINGUAL PARROTS

NEW YORK UPI — Most tourists visiting an island zoo a short boat ride from the North Harbor of Helsinki, Finland, gravitate to the parrots' cage, fascinated by the birds. The zoo's parrots talk in two languages — Finnish and Swedish.

ALL OF THESE are on the island, but Kowloon, the sister city across the harbor on the mainland, also has much of interest. Its new territories, which extend to China's border, contain fishing and farming villages which are much as they were centuries ago. Wooden ploughs are drawn by water buffalo, crops are watered from sprinkling cans hung from the ends of a bamboo pole carried across the shoulders of men and women, and the rice is threshed by hand and spread in the sun to dry. Whatever land is left over is used to raise chickens, ducks and pigs.

Adding traditional color are the Hakka women in the wide rimmed straw hats, bordered in a flapping black material, which are their trademark. Buddhist shrines, the tombs on the hillsides and the multi-colored burial plots, as well as walled cities, are also to be seen, or visited.

Take in a typhoon shelter, another floating city. During the day, it is as active as Hong Kong's busy streets, while everyone goes about the business of earning a living. When darkness comes, it takes on a new look as sampans with orchestras, hot food and cold drinks drift over the waters. Land dwellers rent the small sampans and spend an hour or two leisurely moving along the "streets" between the boats, which are anchored in the manner of autos parked in a lot. You may see a wedding party, people playing mahjong, or some other festival of interest to people living on the boats. You'll find all of it interesting, too.

There was a time — not too long ago — when Japan seemed like another world far, far away. Today Northwest's suburbanites can board a Northwest Orient 747 at O'Hare and fly directly to Tokyo on a flight so pleasant you hardly count the hours.

Suddenly you've arrived in Tokyo! You're whisked through the modern terminal building at Haneda International Airport and then driven downtown along bustling expressways that remind you of the Kennedy during a crowded rush hour.

Major tourist attractions in Tokyo include the Imperial Palace, Tokyo Tower, Ueno Park and Meiji Shrine.

Be sure to stroll slowly through the Ginza district — one of the most exciting, vibrant shopping-business-entertainment areas in the world. At night it's Broadway, Piccadilly, State Street and Montmartre all wrapped up in one gaudy, giddy neon package.

There are thousands of nightspots on the Ginza. Many provide first-class entertainment and a full night on the town can set one back at least $35 and can easily run up to $300 if you're a free spender.

If you're on a budget, one of the best ways to capture the spirit of Tokyo night life is to sign up for a special tour.

TWENTY MILES southwest of Tokyo is Yokohama, which can be reached by train in about a half hour. Here you'll find beautiful parks and gardens — and exciting shopping areas swarming with bargain hunters from every nation.

Kamakura, 12 miles from Yokohama, is the site of one of Japan's most famous Buddhas, the Kamakura Daibutsu.

Kyoto, some 300 miles west of Tokyo, can be reached in less than three hours by the 125-m.p.h. "bullet" train. This is "old" Japan. Major attractions are the Helan Shrine, the Old Imperial Palace, Kinkakuji (Golden) Temple, Nishi Honganji Temple, and Gion, the district where the famous Maiko and Geisha entertainers live and work. The Maiko is an apprentice Geisha.

At the Gion tea houses, the Geisha pampers her guests, serving warm sake and green tea and then entertains with a lovely traditional dance.

Osaka is 25 miles from Kyoto. It's a busy, exciting city often called the "Chicago of Japan." Osaka Castle is the major tourist attraction here.

ONE OF JAPAN'S unusual features is its abundance of hot springs and spa resorts. There are no less than 1,100 hot springs of recognized medicinal value located in nearly all corners of Japan's four main islands. If you want to live like the Japanese, go to a hot-spring resort and stay at a ryokan, a Japanese-style inn or hotel, where the personal attention is tremendous.

Be sure to allow yourself plenty of shopping time in Tokyo before you fly back home. The duty-free bargains are terrific. Good values are cameras, optical equipment, radios and recorders, watches, pearls, silks and bamboo ware.

Did You Know?

One Western way the Japanese haven't adopted is tipping. Nearly every hotel, restaurant and nightclub adds a service charge. Cab drivers and bellhops don't expect tips. Some even return them when they're offered.

If you travel by cab in Japan, always get detailed instructions on how to get

THE GREAT BUDDHA of Kamakura, near Yokohama, is 42 feet high and the hollow bronze statue weighs 210,000 pounds. When it was constructed 70 years ago, the image was enclosed with a spacious temple, but the statue has been in the open air since 1495, when the temple was destroyed by a tidal wave.

Ski Means 'SNO'

Air France Winter Tours Have It All

For skiers, the big news in Air France's winter SKI vacations is a new program called "SNO."

Nine new French ski stations — Avoriaz, Flaine, Les Arcs, Le Corbier, La Daille, Les Menuires, La Plagne, Superdevouy and Tignes — have joined together to create the SNO vacation to their ultramodern, well-equipped resorts designed especially for skiers.

A one-week Air France holiday at any of the SNO stations, priced at only $403 from Chicago includes round-trip jet transportation and accommodations in modern, two-bedroom condominium apartments for four with the finest ski facilities at hand. Exclusive accommodations in one-bedroom apartments for two are available at a supplement of $25 per person.

Also featured in the holiday package are arrival and departure transfers, the services of a multi-lingual tour host and the option of seven-days Modified American Plan — continental breakfast and one gourmet meal daily — for $35 per person.

Departures from the SNO resorts begin Dec. 1 from Chicago. In addition, Air France also is operating one-week ski vacations to Chamonix, plus a three-weeker (from $535) to St. Anton, St. Moritz and Flaine. Further information may be obtained from Northwest suburban travel agents.

TRAVEL LORE

by Clare Wright,
TRAVEL EDITOR

OAXACA — Here's where you'll find the best climate in all Mexico.

That's not just my word. The Mexicans themselves made that claim for this ancient city, located 325 miles southeast of Mexico City.

But climate's not the whole story. People also come here for a variety of other reasons... to explore the ruins, to see the Indians (15 tribes live in the area), to shop for superb native handicrafts, to take part in colorful fiestas — or just to indulge in the relaxing, lazy tempo of this charming place.

Monte Alban, Mitla and Yagul, archaeological zones on the outskirts of Oaxaca are some of the most impressive of all pre-Hispanic ruins sites.

If you come here, plan to spend plenty of time viewing these magnificent remains of temples, palaces and tombs built by the people who first inhabited the Valley of Oaxaca sometime between 700 and 300 B.C.

DESCENDANTS OF those first inhabitants still live in the valley. Their handicrafts are famous all through Mexico. Stunning black pottery and beautiful hand-loomed textiles are some of the most attractive products.

Oaxaca is well-known for its colorful, picturesque fiestas which attract many visitors to this former Aztec fort.

Particularly vivid is the national holiday festival, The Day of the Dead, celebrated Nov. 1 and 2. The Fiesta to the Virgin of Guadalupe (Dec. 10-12) features street processions (candelas) in which participants carry colored lanterns.

Other elaborate fiestas are held all through December in Oaxaca.

Populated by 110,000 persons, Oaxaca is situated in a lush valley once granted to Cortes to compensate the conqueror for winning this country for the Spanish crown.

Cortes was given the title of Marques del Valle or Marquis of the Valley of Oaxaca.

A HUNDRED YEARS ago, a young Indian shepherd boy came down from the nearby mountains to study law in Oaxaca and go on to become president of Mexico, Benito Juarez, who managed to defeat a French attempt to take over his country is considered by many the greatest statesman Mexico ever produced.

Another Oaxacan who became president was Porfirio Diaz, a controversial figure who controlled Mexican national politics for some 34 years.

You feel like you've been spun back into long ago centuries when you stroll through the vast city market which sprawls over several city blocks southwest of the main plaza.

It's always bustling — but on Saturdays it's jammed with Indians from the surrounding hills and towns. It's a colorful sight — with the women in their rebozos bound in a distinctive turban-style — and the language of Zapotec Indian heard more frequently than Spanish.

You'll find handsome basket ware and pottery in the Oaxacan market — but for more serious shopping, we suggest the shops along the streets near the main plaza.

Some of the items to look for are the heavy-textured handwoven serapes, the black pottery of Coyotepec, ceramic toys and figurines, and handsome reproductions of pre-Hispanic gold jewelry found in the Monte Alban ruins.

Mexicana Airlines offers a three-night package to Oaxaca from Mexico City. The trip, which includes roundtrip air fare from the capital and accommodations at the Hotel Victoria as well as a guided tour of Monte Alban. Cost of the whole package is $105.

THERE'S ALSO a weekly motor trip from Mexico City to Oaxaca. It leaves on Friday mornings and returns to the capital city on Monday evening. A guide accompanies the group to Monte Alban, Mitla and on a tour of the city of Oaxaca. Price for this tour is also $105.

There are a number of hotels in Oaxaca. The Victoria has bungalows and a hotel building on terraced grounds — with a colonial decor in rooms, suites and dining room. There's a glass-enclosed bar overlooking the city, large swimming pool, restaurant and the only nightclub in town. Rates start at $10, single, and $12 double.

Very popular with Americans is the Oaxaca Courts (American-operated), which has nicely furnished bungalow units on spacious grounds, pleasant dining room with good food, small cocktail lounge and a heated pool. Prices are similar to the Victoria.

The Hotel Margarita and Marques del Valle are favorites for persons traveling on a budget. Rates start at $4, single.

All hotels arrange for sightseeing expeditions and tours of the area.

Whether it's ruins — Indians — superb climate — or just plain relaxing in a warm Mexican sun — Oaxaca will fascinate you.

Feature Enthusiasm, Love Of People

Arlington Travel — Vital, Growing

by CLARE WRIGHT

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of profiles on area travel agents.)

Enthusiasm for travel, along with a love of people are the ingredients that are making young but vital Arlington Travel, 3 E. Campbell, one of the fastest-growing and busiest travel agencies in the Northwest suburbs.

Harry Knaack, a lifelong resident of Arlington Heights, opened his travel agency in October, 1970.

Quicker as to why his agency has doubled its business each year — and has so many repeat clients — Knaack commented:

"We sell a good tour — with quality and price the important factors."

As a member of the nationwide travel agency coop, GIANTS, Arlington Travel is often in a position to offer lower prices on tours because of the national network's gigantic buying power.

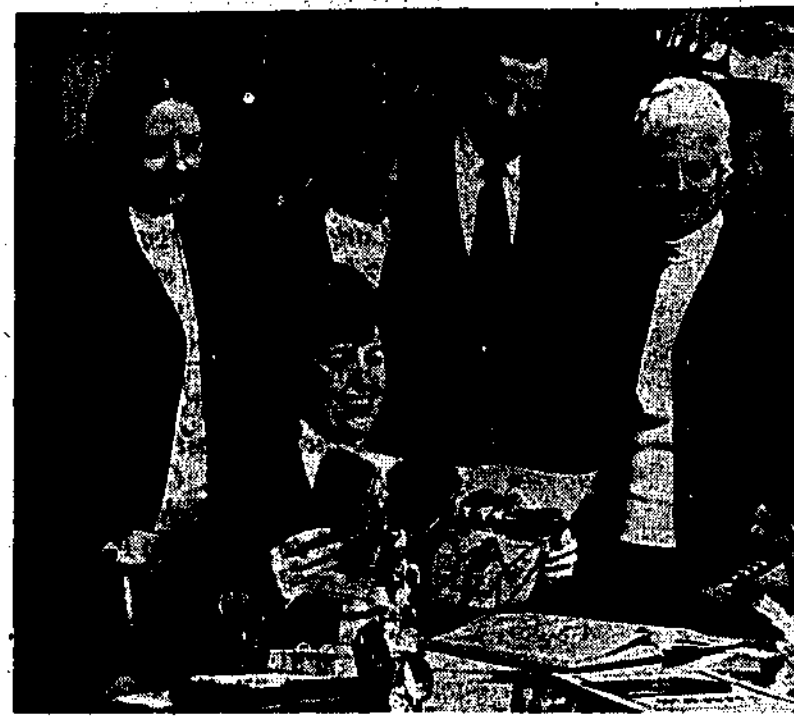

Arlington Travel offers personalized service to its clients — the kind of "getting-to-know-you" assistance that brings back satisfied travelers. Their staff includes travel consultants Fran Donoghue, Jill Freeland and Myra Anderson — and Alice Thompson, who takes care of accounting details.

TO SAY that Harry Knaack's three travel consultants love their work is a mild understatement. Their fervor about travel is so contagious it's no wonder so many clients are "repeaters."

Next to traveling somewhere themselves (and all three girls have journeyed hundreds of thousands of miles) Fran, Jill and Myra delight in planning trips for other people.

The stimulation and excitement of the travel world captured Fran Donoghue the year she left college. She has a wide, diversified background of training and experience in the business, including positions with United Air Lines and TWA.

Before joining the staff of Arlington Travel, Fran managed travel agencies in

"I tell people I'm only as good as my telephone numbers," she declared modestly.

JILL FREELAND just returned from an exciting, whirlwind trip half-way around the world during which she covered about 1800 miles a day journeying through Japan, Indonesia and Bangkok.

The program, designed for travelers who plan to drive between Los Angeles and San Francisco, costs $69 per person, based on two persons per car.

With the Fly/Drive program, the traveler gets an air-conditioned Ford LTD or Galaxie 500 with unlimited mileage for three days. He receives overnight lodging at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge in San Luis Obispo or at the Monterey Travelodge (depending on which direction he's traveling) including all local hotel taxes.

kinds of questions... "where to stay?" — "when to go?" — "good places to eat?" — "things to buy?" — and, most important of all — "what's the BEST deal?"

If you have Mexico on your mind, drop into the pleasant corner office of Arlington Travel and talk it over. The agency is initiating an exciting Mexican festival package in the next few weeks.

"WE HAVE a large amount of hotel accommodations and airline space guaranteed for the winter months," says owner Knaack.

The travel agency executive stressed that there is no obligation when you stop in with travel questions — and no fee for services.

"The clients of a travel agency get in on the top of the list as far as hotel reservations, airlines, steamship lines and resorts are concerned," continued Fran Donoghue.

Knaack also added that Arlington Travel already has reserved block space on airlines and cruise ships for "hard-to-get" times.

So — when the "drearies" hit you or one of those grim, grey days, stop in at Arlington Travel, Campbell and Duntun, and let them show you how to escape to sunshine — on a budget.

And remember — the services of a travel agent are free!

12th District Congressional Race: Crane vs. Frank

Edwin L. Frank, Democrat

The newly formed 12th Congressional District — said to be one of the strongest Republican areas of the state — is the rock upon which Phil Crane stands. It also is the mountain Ed Frank is chiseling away as fast as he can.

Incumbent Congressman Crane is facing challenger Ed Frank of Hoffman Estates in this race for the U. S. House of Representatives.

Crane the conservative is running on his record and his role as an articulate spokesman for the Right. Frank is saying the district is not as conservative as Crane reflects and that the Congressman must be retired.

Philip Crane:

What Gripest Me Is The Kid-In-The-Candy Store Mentality In Congress Today...

by BARRY SIGALE

Headline: "92nd Congress disappointing."

Headline: "No one's bragging, but Congress did meet in '72."

"Congress has abdicated its responsibilities," said U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-13th, who is running for reelection in the redistricted Northwest suburban area now designated as the 12th District.

Crane, charismatic and possessing motion picture-star qualities, is a strong believer in restoring the role of Congress to that of a responsible body meeting the needs of its constituency. And if he is elected to a third term, the dapper Crane will push hard for reform.

"Congress is as irresponsible as hell," said Crane, who first ran for Congress in 1969 in a special election held to find a successor for Donald Rumsfeld. Rumsfeld is now director of President Nixon's Cost of Living Council.

"CONGRESS WON'T improve unless they first realize they have abdicated their responsibility. Members don't analyze what's wrong. Congress has increasingly dumped more responsibility on presidents until today. Now, legislative initiative comes out of administration bodies, from the President to Congress."

"What gripes me is the kid-in-the-candy-store mentality. We're lobbied to death and many members say yes to everything. That's why we always have a deficit. The founding fathers of this country never thought anything like this would happen. Like with the wage-price authority. If Congress believes in it why don't they make it a law. Don't give the President discretionary powers."

Crane said Congress should restore its legislative prerogative. He said a strong speaker of the house, which he has said he hopes to be one day, should lead the way toward restoring a more credible Congress. "The speaker should guarantee we are a co-equal branch of government. Then we'd be well on our way back toward respectability. There is hope but it will take the remaining years of this century."

Crane is considered one of the safest bets to win reelection. He defeated his opponent, Edward Warman, by a resounding 20,000 votes in 1969 and 34,000 votes in 1970 and could well pull off another smashing success against Ed Frank.

REDISTRICTING HAS brought more Republicans into Crane's area. The traditionally Republican-dominated Northwest suburbs and North Shore area remain for Crane to serenade. And with the predicted strength out here of President Nixon, a Republican blitz may be in the offing.

That Phil Crane's name and ideas transcend the Northwest suburbs provides some indication he may be a shoo-in come Nov. 7. An example of this is demonstrated by his "campaign" stops. There are still speeches before the Mount Prospect Lions Club and the Wheeling Jaycees. But so are there appearances in Cleveland, Indianapolis and Washington, D.C.

What Crane espouses is his conservative ideals, his hard line stance on the nation's economy, his opposition toward any U.S. deals with the Soviet Union or Red China along with his firm belief that Congress is the best representative of the people.

The congressman believes that the less the United States deals with either the Soviet Union or Red China the better. And he feels that in recent negotiations between the two the U.S. did not get enough in return.

"In the wheat deal with the Soviet Union I am confused and distressed. We didn't seem to get cash on the barrel-head. Why give them credit while the American people have to subsidize the deal?"

"BASICALLY, I'M opposed to trading with them. It's just that they desperately need it (wheat) because of poor production and their starving people. But now they're sending this wheat to Red China who is sending it to North Vietnam.

"I don't understand why we didn't get any major concessions. The President is to blame, from what we know. Maybe we'll have to wait. Maybe there are things he got we don't know about. But we had a unique opportunity to put the screws to them, to get fair concessions, such as with the Jews and other persecuted people. Important concessions. We might have dealt to get the POWs out of Vietnam."

Crane said he held the same views of Red China but he voiced his objections to the major world power in much stronger terms.

"I wouldn't deal with Red China under any circumstances when it comes to sophisticated technology, in which we have the clear edge. Let 'em scramble to catch up, which they may yet do. In other areas, if we deal with them we should drive a hard bargain."

CRANE SAID he does not favor the formal recognition of Red China by the United States.

"There is nothing to be gained. We can have relations with them, that's O.K. If only Red China would start acting like a civilized nation, a civilized people. The Chinese people still have strong ties with the United States. It is possible to restore to historical friendship. But not until we see evidence of no more aggression, guerrilla insurrection and rhetoric."

Crane, a member of the House Banking and Currency Committee, has from the beginning opposed President Nixon's wage-price control program and said, "Nixon in '69 said he was against it, that it wouldn't work. And he was right!"

Crane said the wage-price controls haven't had an impact on the economy and that the country could have gotten along without them.

"Initially it was put into effect to control inflation," Crane said. "But this is not the way to cure it. If inflation starts again more controls would be needed. The way to control inflation is to impose restraints on ourselves."

According to Crane, the House is "far and away the most responsive body to the people." He said a senator is elected every four years but congressmen are up before the electorate every two years, therefore they are held more accountable.

"The House is the truest reflection of the thinking of this country. If that's true and the executive branch makes decisions that hurt people then those people feel government is unresponsive to them, that it doesn't pay any attention to them."

CRANE, WHO will be 42, Nov. 3, is concerned with the effects on the credibility of elected officials as a result of the Watergate spying incident.

"It's an embarrassment," Crane said, adding that the charge that Republicans were spying on Democratic candidates "has been done in the past" but has never been so dramatic an event.

"I hope the appropriate people are punished. If Republican money was used to support (these activities) it has to infuriate Republicans, especially those who give money."

Crane said an investigation of the affair must be held but that it was not the jurisdiction of the banking and currency committee to do so, as Committee Chairman Wright Patman has suggested.

"It would be a witchhunt," Crane said. He added the only role Congress has in the matter is in the legislative area, to assure that it doesn't happen again.

Crane also has repeated his theory that there should be private ownership of gold.

"There's no place for gold to go but up in valuation. Gold has played a vital role. It backs up our currency, it is universally acceptable."

He said private ownership would mean a good investment for citizens who want a better investment than one in the stock market. He said his idea has been rebuffed and shows little chance of getting through the House.

Edwin L. Frank:

'Crane Would Weaken The U.S. And Strengthen The Military-Industrial Complex...'

by RUSSELL BATH

Ed Frank pauses as if for dramatic effect, sorting his thoughts, searching his mind for the right words.

He mimes none. He rattles off the verbal potshots like a machinegunner.

"Phil Crane," he intones in a matter-of-fact New Jersey nasal, "must be defeated. His political philosophies make him potentially one of the most dangerous men in the United States today. He believes in and votes for decentralization, for weakening of the federal government while strengthening the vast military-industrial complex."

Who is Edwin L. Frank, this political upstart who comes on so strong, this youngish-looking 42-year-old advertising executive who would unseat glamor-boy U.S. Rep. Philip Crane in the devoutly Republican 12th Congressional District?

"If the Hoffman Estates Park District had accepted my application to fill a board vacancy," he chuckled, "I wouldn't be running for Congress now."

FRANK, A HOFFMAN Estates resident and father of two sons, said that when his name was mentioned last summer as a possible replacement for Charles Houchins of Mount Prospect as the 12th District candidate, "I really pooh-poohed the idea."

"Then more and more people asked me if I was going to run and I began to think seriously about it. And one night my wife Marcia and I went to dinner and she said, "Everyone knows you're going to run but you."

Houchins, upon dropping out of the race, complained about lack of party support. Frank, however, heatedly side-steps that one with generalities like "I'm not just running for exercise" and "I don't know what they (the party organization) did or didn't do for Charley Houchins."

So the question remains largely unanswered: Does Ed Frank, the newcomer operating on a tight campaign budget, really believe deep down that he stands a chance?

He likes to refer to Crane as a "misguided" individual who "doesn't respond to the needs of people until it benefits him."

"PHIL THE PHANTOM doesn't really show up in his district that often, you know. He likes to talk about his annual questionnaire (to constituents) and yet he says its dictation on his judgment is nil. So then why does he fill the post offices with his junk mail?"

"He's (Crane) supposed to be representing people. Yet he says that even if 100 per cent of his constituency had wanted him to vote in favor of the pure-water bill, he still would have voted against it because it cost $2.3 billion and because he said 100 per cent pure water is not a realistic goal.

"That bill did not call for 100 per cent pure water by 1985. It only called for us to make the effort so that by the end of 1985 all pollutants would cease polluting. It only wanted us to face the fact that the problem exists."

"It's ironic that Arthur Godfrey, an expert in the field, came to Illinois to praise the attorney general (Republican William J. Scott) for his efforts and then spent half his speech referring to a U.S. congressman — later identified as Phil Crane — as having the poorest record on environmental issues."

WHAT WOULD Frank hope to accomplish as a first-term legislator?

He cites three priority money items for the 12th District. Two of them — flooding and mass transportation — have been on the tip of every local officeholder's tongue in this election year. The other is mail service.

The mail problem, he says, is "spotted throughout the district. We don't have enough post offices, enough mailboxes. Why should it take five to seven days to get mail from Chicago?"

Flooding, he says, is a problem "from Hahover Park (at the west edge of the district) clear to the lake." He said his own "superficial investigation" showed about $500 million in federal funds earmarked for water retention research and projects. "What we have to do," he said, "is to get some of that money released and put to work for us."

On the mass transportation question, he said his opponent voted against diverting highway trust funds into a federal program. "This is the fastest-growing legislative district in the state — one of the fastest-growing in the United States — and yet, outside of the trains, we make no provisions for getting people to work."

WHAT OTHER solutions exist? Frank cited the "Dial-a-Bus" system in operation in parts of Canada and upstate New York, a vehicular network operated from a central dispatch station. "This thing is nothing but a big taxi service, but it operates at a better-than-break-even point."

Frank said the federal government "would have to subsidize" such a program and lend its assistance in setting up such a network.

Another of Frank's areas of interest as a congressman, on a national scope, would be education. He believes that for educational programs to succeed there must be cooperation among federal, state and local governments.

"Take our area, for instance. People are turning down bond issues because they can't afford the taxes. The taxes keep going up because the area is growing. So they lose a lot of the fringe benefits that exist in the school programs of the established areas."

Frank doesn't believe the state government ever will be able to take over the controls exercised by local school boards, but he does advocate standardizing educational requirements throughout the state.

Should federal revenue-sharing funds be earmarked for schools? It may seem like a good idea on the surface, but Frank cautions against a blanket statement.

"You have to remember that there are haves and have-nots."

In Appalachia, there is no tax money to bring the educational level up. I'd rather pay out money to give somebody a chance to pull himself up by the bootstraps instead of putting him on the public dole."

A sampling of Frank's views on other issues:

VOLUNTEER ARMY: "You must pay your dues for freedom. I'd rather see everyone going in and performing some type of service to country — whether it be Peace Corps-type work or just planting a tree."

SCHOOL BUSING: "I'm opposed to it. Why put a child on a bus and drive him for an hour and a half and expose him to all the traffic dangers? If we could raise the standards (of education) throughout the state, I don't think busing would be an issue."

GUN CONTROL: "Saturday-night specials should be outlawed. Other handguns could be taken to the police station and registered. Yes, sure, if a criminal wants a gun he can get one — but you rarely hear of a murder with a shotgun."

JUDICIAL SYSTEM: "It's a sad state of affairs when an attorney can go into a courtroom and get continuance after continuance, for three, six months or a year. How can a witness be expected to remember details? Justice should be punitive as well as rehabilitative. It needs to be overhauled and modernized."

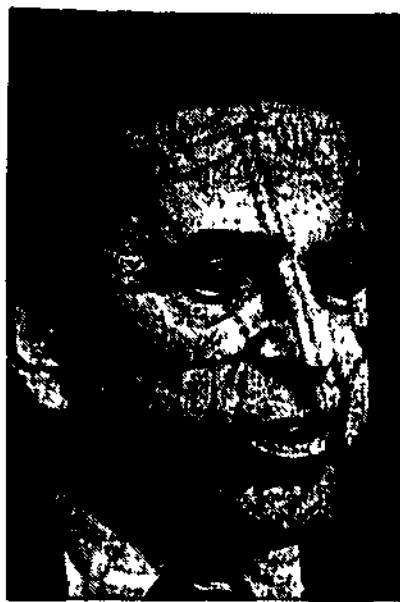

CONSUMERISM: "We've left it up to industries to regulate themselves. Many have fallen down on the job. When you get 30 million cars a year recalled by a major automaker, and when you get as many dangerous toys as we have on the market, it's time to do something."

Frank, a native of Bayonne, N.J., holds a bachelor of science degree in marketing from Rutgers University. An Air Force veteran of Korea, he served on urban redevelopment committees in New Jersey before relocating in Hoffman Estates.

He says he has been endorsed by the National Education Association and Illinois Education Association, as well as labor organizations.

10th District Congressional Race: Mikva vs. Young

Sam Young, Republican

It's one of the best and most closely fought Congressional races in the country. It's almost a classic encounter between a conservative and a liberal. It's a new test for the shifting, swaying politics of the North Shore and the near suburbs. It's the 10th District race and it puts attorney Sam Young against U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva.

One observer put it this way: "These two men are so matched as opposites on the issues it's too bad both of them can't go to Congress and continue the debate there. It would be a whale of a show."

Abner Mikva:

'I Have To Persuade People Outside Maine Township That I Really Have A Campaign Going...'

by BOB CASEY

The question itself is a simple one, although the candidate and his supporters may not be asking it just this way: Is the North Shore ready for Abner Mikva?

In 1971, U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, an outspoken, down-the-line conservative, opted for the more Republican pastures of the reapportioned 12th District. The same reapportionment had left Mikva, 46, an outspoken, down-the-line liberal, with a South Side Chicago district where he couldn't win again. It also left an opening in the new North Shore 10th.

At one point, a frustrated Mikva had said, according to Ralph Nader's Congress Project, "Here I am in Congress, a Congressman. And now I find that Congress ain't where it's at." But he had served 10 years in the Illinois General Assembly, two terms in the U.S. House and Mikva didn't want to quit. Despite the inevitable frustrations of an activist legislator in a lethargic Congress, "Overall," he says, "I'd have to say it's still the only crap game in town."

SO HE MOVED, taking up residence in Evanston, and won the March primary with an organization that was something new for the district's five North Suburban townships. Never before has there been a Democratic campaign here like the one being run by Abner Mikva. His people have worked all the precincts in all five townships. Instead of lying low like the Democratic nominee is supposed to do, he has conducted a vigorous, well-financed and professional effort. Since bowling over Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase to get the nomination, Mikva's campaign has given more and more credence to its basic premise: given an attractive Democratic candidate whose name they know, even 10th District Democrats, independents, young people and maybe even Republicans will vote for him to make that candidate a winner.

Take Maine Township, which has often rolled up some of the biggest GOP pluralities in the county. Not only have Democratic congressional nominees failed in the past to campaign in the township, the Republican candidates have ignored it too. Township voters, the theory goes, haven't known either one and pulled the GOP lever out of habit.

"I really think the biggest problem in making my campaign credible is persuading people who don't live in Maine Township that I really have a campaign going out here," says Mikva. His hopes, in Maine as in the other townships, depend on persuading voters to split their tickets.

"THE 10TH DISTRICT is going to go for Nixon and vote overwhelmingly for Percy," says a campaign aide. "But we think enough people are going to split their tickets and cross over to vote for Mikva... We're going to win, not by much, but we're going to win." The Mikva victory, the aide says, will be attributed to superior campaign organization.

It would mean more than that. In the words of the Republican nominee, Sam Young, who doesn't believe such a thing could happen: "The election of my opponent in November would certainly in-dicade a significant shift in political sentiment among the voters."

Is the North Shore ready for Abner Mikva? In the past eight months, it has been given an opportunity to find out. The two congressional candidates have put on a series of some 15 or 16 debates and joint appearances throughout the 10th District. Citing his own support for Nixon, Young has attacked Mikva's record as unrepresentative of the average suburbanite's views. And Mikva, capitalizing on a smooth style that comes from years of politicking, has hit hard on the war and national priorities, emphasizing a record that has brought him national recognition.

"I THINK THAT the big issue is the ordering of priorities," he says. "I think the specific example is that I emphatically voted to override the President's veto on health and education. Mr. Young has criticized me for it and indicated that if he had been there, he would have sustained the President."

"The President's reason, he contended, for vetoing it was that we were $1.7 billion over the budget. We were. But that's less than the cost overrun of the CIA, which was over $2 billion," says Mikva.

"The amounts in that budget which were over what the President had asked for were in terms of education on narcotics, there was some $20 million in there for that; grants for bilingual education programs for our Spanish-speaking who can't learn because they can't understand what the teacher is saying; money in there for the mentally and physically handicapped... there was money in there for new doctor training programs. We have to start getting at these health problems," he says.

Mikva, an attorney, has voted against military appropriations that allow continuation of the Vietnam War. He votes against farm subsidy programs, anti-crime bills that he feels threaten civil liberties, against anti-busing bills that he says try to circumvent the power of the courts and against the space program ("It was very thrilling that there was an American on the moon but it would be even more thrilling to be educating our children or saving the air," he says.)

HE SPONSORS anti-pollution measures, prison reform bills, consumer protection laws, health and education programs. He's not a big spender, Mikva says, he just wants to spend money on things that don't go along with the President's priorities.

"What I'm saying is that I'm as concerned about the deficit problems as anybody, but I don't think you cut health and education," he says.

"I flew back specially to vote for the authorization to override the veto for water pollution. I don't think you can short-change the waterways for much longer or we won't have to worry about the problems any more. It will be beyond our control," he says.

Young hammers at Mikva's record on social issues as well as his frequent lack of support for Nixon. Mikva says he supports Sen. George McGovern "unequivocally" and Young is happy to tie him to McGovern's campaign proposals.

The two 10th District candidates differ on just about everything except Congressional reform, which both strongly support.

"I THINK WE HAVE a fundamental disagreement on what the office is," says Mikva. "I don't think it's some kind of bellwether where you weigh your mail and see which side your mail is heaviest on and say 'There go my people. I'm their leader so I've got to follow them.' I think if that is so, we would never have adopted a new idea in this country."

"Mr. Young criticizes me because on some issues I've been in a minority in Congress. I think that's part of the job, too, not to seek out a minority but if you think you're right, you ought to have the courage to stand up as a single member of Congress and vote no," he says.

Voters give Congressmen a "biennial report card" at the polls, he says, making sure that legislators who fail to represent them are not returned to office.

Mikva has charged that his opponent intentionally distorts his record and positions on several issues. He has even threatened to file an unfair campaign practice complaint against Young. One distortion, Mikva says, is the Young charge that he favors impeachment of Nixon. That's false, according to Mikva, who says he once worked to dissuade a fellow Congressman from submitting an impeachment resolution and has never favored impeachment.

His record, liberal views and issue-oriented campaign could hurt him among conservative 10th District voters. Mikva is an anathema to the gun lobby, he is pro-labor, favors civil rights laws. He votes and talks like the reformer and latter day New Dealer that he is.

BUT MIKVA HAS FOUND a response in the 10th District, better so far than many people would have believed at this time last year. He hits at the issues, and has released more than a dozen detailed position papers. Public housing has failed, communities shouldn't be forced to accept low-income housing, direct subsidies to poor families will work better, he says. To stop crime, we need handgun control, judicial reform and prison reform. Crime victims should be compensated by the government, he says. Drug abuse can be stopped by cutting off heroin traffic, including heroin traffic among U.S. allies in Southeast Asia, increasing methadone programs and concentrating enforcement on dangerous drugs.

A federal consumer agency is needed and citizens should have the right to file, federal class action consumer suits for, fraudulent or deceptive business practices. A national system of comprehensive government sponsored health care is needed, he says. Pension systems should be reformed, he says. Social Security benefits should be expanded for the elderly and the government, if necessary, should be the employer of last resort.

Sam Young:

'My Thinking Represents The Thinking Of The District. My Opponent's Just Does Not...'

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Sam Young is a 49-year-old student of government. His subject is Congress. His specialty is the 10th Congressional District.

Young talks of statistics, voting records, dollars and cents. His campaign — with bumper stickers, brochures, press releases, personal appearances — is organized, red, white and blue and perfect.

Only the outcome is in doubt.

Young is running hard in hopes of winning the reapportioned 10th District U.S. House seat. His opponent, a veteran running in new territory, is U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva. The race, which has drawn national attention as the closest and most expensive in Illinois, digs deep into pocketbooks and the theories of government and its financing.

After a bitter, controversial primary victory over Maine Township Commissioner Floyd T. Fulle, Young switched his sights to Democrat Mikva last spring. The barrage of campaign literature, which Mikva says contains "outright falsehood," has examined Mikva's voting record and past statements in detail, leading to handouts comparing the candidates on dozens of issues and material for at least 14 joint appearances throughout the district.

"We have given the whole district the opportunity to see, hear and talk to the candidates," Young, a Glenview attorney, told the Herald. His campaign expenses will top $170,000, including $10,000 from the Republican Congressional Committee, YOUNG'S CAMPAIGN is anti-McGovern-Mikva and pro-Nixon. He's critical of the "irresponsible Democratic-controlled Congress" that has "lost control of the federal budget." He bills himself as an "independent Republican" in an area that traditionally leans toward the GOP.

Young's strongest campaign point is his 25-year residency in what is now the 10th. "I know every mayor, every police chief, every fire chief. I know the 10th District," he says.

"My thinking represents the thinking of the 10th District," he contends. "Mikva just does not represent this district."

Young has never held elective office. A former Northfield Township GOP committeeman, his record as an Illinois assistant secretary of state won praise from Chicago newspapers in the 1950s. He is credited with cleaning up the secretary of state's administrative practices, drafting the state motor vehicle and security codes.

The former attorney for the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission lost his only election bid, a battle of conservatives with U.S. Rep. Philip Crane in the 13th District Republican primary.

Why does a successful corporation lawyer — he was financial vice president for multi-million dollar American Hospital Supply Corp. — leave a comfortable job for 6 a.m. transit campaigning in an all-or-nothing bid for Congress? "What makes Sam run?" his early campaign ads asked.

The answer includes complaints about GOP effort in the 10th, support of Nixon, disagreement with Mikva and desire to join Congress "club."

Young initially entered the primary because backers worried that the GOP was "giving" the seat to the Democrats. After Young dropped from the campaign, Chicago newspapers linked Fulle with Democrats who held stock in banks that were getting interest-free county deposits. Young reentered the battle to win the nomination.

"I'M INTERESTED in government and I think my record indicates I have some ability in this area. Because of my past government experience, because of my continued interest in government and thus politics, because I'm in a position now to be able to return to government service," he told the Herald.

That service, as Young sees it, is support of the Nixon administration. He talks of Congress "repeatedly requesting more funds than the administration has requested... Congress has been so derelict... so politically motivated."

Young's pro-Nixonism has drawn questions from potential constituents. "How do we know we're not getting a yes man for the President?" a teenager asked during an appearance in Niles.

The attorney refused to answer that September night, but since has admitted that he differs with Nixon on at least three issues. "I'm not going to highlight my differences with the president," he told the Herald. "I make my own decisions." Young said he did not favor the Nixon supported loan to Lockheed aircraft, supports the war powers act which would require the president to come to Congress within 30 days of committing troops to combat and wasn't sure the full employment, deficit budget would "hold water."

Young denies that he is coattailing the President in this election. But, he's fond of mentioning the Nixon-Rumsfeld brand of government. Donald Rumsfeld was a House member from the 13th District before Crane, joined the Nixon team as director of the Office of Economic Opportunity and now leads the Cost of Living Council. Many observers see political similarities between Young and Rumsfeld and point out that the White House is not unaware of the 10th District campaign.

REPUBLICAN HOUSE and Senate leaders have trooped here to boost Young's campaign. Latest in the list of guests was Nixon's son-in-law, Edward Cox.

Much of Young's campaign has been more reaction than initiation. His statements and reports — pulled from piles of information he carries to appearances in a briefcase — have picked at Congress and Mikva's voting records while offering few new suggestions for improving government or citizen representation, except for his strong advocacy of Congressional reform.

The former University of Illinois and Northwestern University business and finance teacher, has proposed formation of a "human resources commission" in the 10th District. If elected, Young says he will form the volunteer-type organization of housewives, senior citizens and students to assist local governments in day-to-day tasks. He suggests that housewives can spend a few hours a week doing police department filing, freeing police officers for street duty.

American policy should be determined by 218 Congressmen, a majority of Congress' 435 members who are sent to Washington to "represent all the varying constituencies in the United States," Young said, criticizing officials who "vote their conscience. No one Congressman can determine what is in the best interest of the U.S."

Young sees three priority questions that have not been solved in Washington — department realignment, fiscal policy making and busing.

Nixon has proposed combining government departments to avoid overlapping. In backing the proposal, Young charged that Congress has stalled the streamlining.

Congressional realignment can improve the budget process, Young said. Committee meetings to draw up the budget should be open. Congress should have access to a computer similar to one used by Nixon through the Office of Management and Budget. Seniority should not determine committee chairmanship. Congress should monitor government waste. "Congress has lost control of the budget," Young charges.

Busing is one of the "non issues" of the 10th district campaign, Young has said. "Do you think the people of this district would support it? Busing will not accomplish our objective of a quality education with equal opportunity for all children."

Young's positions on other issues include:

FOREIGN POLICY — "The President has done a tremendous job in foreign policy... in relaxing world tensions. Negotiation, partnership and strength is the heart of the Nixon program."

TAXES — "Everybody would like a simple tax system. I don't say I favor... but we ought to consider use of a flat rate with a maximum of 25 per cent. I oppose piece-meal changes in the internal revenue structure." Accompanying the flat rate would be the elimination of loopholes, he said. Another Young suggestion, which is now allowed by law, would be state use of the federal income tax form to save Illinois mailing and printing costs.

WELFARE — "The federal government should take over state welfare programs. After the family assistance program is tested, if it accomplishes its goals, Young would support the program."

LOCAL GOVERNMENT — "Communities need more money for schools, police and fire protection. Federal revenue sharing is only a temporary stopgap."

CRIME — "Public protection is a priority. I'd rather have them stopping and frisking airplane passengers than finding myself in Havana or some other place."

INFLATION — "The goal is to achieve a stable dollar. We've got to stop the spending... to achieve a balanced budget, it is a must. If no ceiling is put on spending... we'll continue to have the terrible inflationary problems that we've had for the last four or five years."

Salary Dispute Can Be Resolved

There's a logical and simple settlement to the ten-month-long and increasingly bitter salary dispute between the teachers and board of education in High School Dist. 214.

This newspaper would have not used the term "bitter" in years past about negotiations in the largest suburban school district in the state of Illinois. Dist. 214 has had a long track record of amicable settlement of salary disputes.

This, however, is a different kind of year. Last week, the Dist. 214 Education Association overwhelmingly rejected a proposal from the school board, and the board broke off negotiations with the teachers.

There's no threat of a strike — yet. However, the teachers and board members are calling each other names, in what is an unnecessary conclusion to a pointless and increasingly vicious struggle between teachers and board.

Thus, we offer a solution: The teachers and board should agree to accept an $8,600 base salary level, rather than the $8,650 level as proposed by the American Arbitration Association in its fact-finding report on the negotiations.

In turn, discussion of "a reasonable substitute" for the index, which ties pay for experienced teachers to base pay, should be resumed on January 1 of next year when the decision-making process on the 1973-74 contract begins.

The problem is that the teachers and board are still haggling about the 1972-73 contract, even though the 1972-73 year is two months underway.

And a substantial reason for the haggling is that the board has been unbending in its determination to eliminating the index in the 1972-73 contract, even though any change wouldn't go into effect until the next school year.

In short, we're saying both sides can easily compromise on the basic salary figure right now, and a cooling off period is needed before the index is discussed.

We're discussing the matter with some reluctance, as we realize salary negotiations has become an overly long chess-game with each side jockeying for position. Details and maneuvering far outweigh the substance of the proceeding, in most cases.

To end this long and intricate procedure, we've endorsed a collective bargaining act to lay down the ground rules for salary negotiations. We've endorsed opening the doors on salary sessions, to let the public see just how laborious an important part of the education has become.

Our proposed solution does not result in a shocking gain or defeat for either side. It does not cost the taxpayers an unusual amount of money. It could bruise some egos on both sides of the table, but it could resolve a procedural struggle which could — just COULD — lead to a strike in Dist. 214.

So — each side should compromise a bit. The solution's right in front of your eyes.

More Cities Coming

According to the recently issued final report of the President's Commission on Population Growth and the American Future, at least 50 million people will be added to the U.S. population before the end of this century — and almost all of them will live in the cities.

The report notes that even in 1970, nearly 70 per cent of the population was metropolitan and that this figure will approach 85 per cent by the year 2000.

"For better or worse," it concluded, "we are in the process of becoming an almost totally urban society."

There is a lot of talk about the need for something like 100 brand-new cities to accommodate this population increase. But one student of the problem disagrees.

"There are arguments against the idea of scores of new cities rising unnaturally on the virgin landscape and lacking the cultural traditions of present communities," says Dr. Charles Kimball, president of the Midwest Research Institute, a Kansas City, Mo.-based organization that has been involved in both public and private problem-solving for 28 years.

"More sensible, less costly, less damaging to the countryside, and more rewarding in human values is the planning now for additional people to locate in present cities of manageable size."

There are 75 metropolitan areas in the United States with populations under 1.5 million that could absorb in an orderly fashion the expected increase, Kimball observes. Many of them still have options open that, properly exercised, can assure that they will be "both livable and governable" in the year 2000.

He points to Kansas City as one which, through a unique coalition of business leaders and city and county government, has emerged as "the new kind of city." Under way there are $3.2 billion in new construction projects — 75 per cent of them privately financed — to serve people directly.

The new kind of city has these points: It is not being destroyed by archaic property taxes. It emphasizes values based on being in the center of things. It is linked to international air routes. It provides for the dignified life style demanded by those in the service professions, who now outnumber manufacturing workers.

Above all, says Kimball, the city that will be a successful going concern in the year 2000 "has to be ready for, or ahead of, its population."

She's Clashing With Pumpkins

At the risk of sounding like the Scrooge of Halloween I have to admit I'm glad that the pumpkin crop is lousy this year — it's a good excuse for not carving a jack-o-lantern. I carve very dumb-looking jack-o-lanterns. Which make very loose pies. And the birds don't eat the pumpkin seeds I throw out for them so the next summer I'm a pumpkin farmer too.

The simple fact is that pumpkins and I just do not get on well together.

When the kids were little it was always my job to carve the jack-o-lanterns because Wally is a carpenter and he doesn't carve, he builds. Being a very fussy carpenter, he'd take until November 3 to finish building a jack-o-lantern and although it was a work of art, it was a trifle late.

My technique was the gouge-and-hack attack and the results looked like it. The kids were just as happy as I was when they got old enough to do their own carving because it was kind of embarrassing for them to be known as the kids with the dumb-looking jack-o-lanterns.

I'd try to compensate by giving out more goodies than any other mother on the block so that my kids' neighborhood friends would say, "Wow, lookit all the candy." So they said, "Wow, lookit all the candy thanks Mrs. Meyer you sure got a dumb-looking jack-o-lantern."

There was a year when the pumpkins were so plentiful that the farmers practically gave them away and I bought half a dozen. By the time I'd gone through the gouge-and-hack routine with three of them so that each of my kids could have their own dumb-looking jack-o-lantern, I'd had it. So I decided to make pies out of the rest.

That was a mistake, too.

Cooking the stuff took two hours and it got looser and looser, and it kept sticking to the bottom of the kettle instead of

Local Paper Drive Earns Plaudits

The October 16-17 recycling drive was a perfect example of community cooperation between twenty-two schools, Laseke Disposal Co. and Pioneer Paper Stock Co. Although sponsored by the Arlington Heights Council of PTA's, parochial and other districts' public grade schools joined together to make this an all Arlington Heights-wide drive.

Cooperation was the by-word from one man who brought in a ten-year accumulation of about eight daily newspapers, filling one-half of a 20-ton bin, to young mothers of pre-schoolers giving their help because they are vitally interested in saving our natural resources. More so, they wanted to meet Arlington Heights disposal problem head-on by recycling their tin, glass and newspapers. Remember the landfill site is filling very fast, and we can reduce our personal garbage volume by 3/4ths if we recycle above mentioned items, plus using our grass clippings and leaves as mulch.

To each school's ecology chairman who coordinated the details at his or her school, congratulations on a job well done. To all the many helpers — students and adults — who unloaded the cars, thanks for your muscle-power and smiles. To the many families who brought their recyclables, thanks and keep up the good work. Make recycling a way of life. Take your glass and tin to either of the Arlington Heights recycling locations and the newspapers to Southminster Presbyterian Church.

Interesting fact: Would you believe that if our recycling stations handled four times what they currently do, it would represent a response from only 50 per cent of the residents?

The total cooperation and positive response from Henry Laseke, Albert Bruder and all the other Laseke Disposal Co. employees in handling 37,240 pounds of tin and glass was outstanding. This was a tremendous job on their part and the drive could not have been held without their cooperation. Mr. Laseke very generously donated the bins, trucks, and labor.

Joe Huebner Distributing Co. contributed 3,714 "Pitch In!" items, from large posters to garbage bags to stickers. Each one helped make more people aware of recycling.

Arlington Park District loaned a truck and men to help transport glass and tin to the large bins.

There were many other fine acts of assistance from local organizations.

Pioneer Paper Stock Co. said that our 129,720 pounds of newspaper was the largest drive they've ever handled — 6% full bins.

It was terrific to see the response from the students. Let's all see that more of our young people become aware of recycling. It's an on-going habit and once started, it's easy to continue.

Thanks to each one who helped contribute to this drive's success.

Sheffield Homeowner Reacts

I am writing in reference to your article entitled "Council Hears Sheffield Homeowners," published Monday, October 16. I am the person referred to as "a homeowners' association representative" in the article, and I would like to question a few of the points raised therein.

First, I was misquoted in the sentences stating, "she already had tried to do so, the man failed to return her telephone calls." The representatives of Levitt have always responded to my calls. I had stated that Mr. John Mettlick from the Building Department of Schaumburg was unable to contact Mr. Gerald Harker or Mr. Don Kettel.

Secondly, Mr. Harker's quotation concerning fraud appears to be out of context in your article. A number of people who read your publication telephoned me concerning this statement. Mr. Harker was merely stating the obvious; there is no fraud involved, at worst, it was an administrative error.

In my personal dealings with Mr. Harker I have found him to be a man of integrity. I believe that this article implying fraudulent dealings on the part of Levitt and Sons was unjustly biased against the parties concerned, and imputations against the integrity of a major home builder in this area certainly cannot be in the best interests of the Village of Schaumburg.

Finally, if accuracy in reporting is a goal of your journalists, then perhaps a little more effort could have been invested in this article.

'Retain Halloween'

In response to Mrs. Annette Szafra's letter regarding pennies for treats at Halloween, I would like to say that it's pitiful how much our kids have to give up because their parents don't care enough about discipline.

Your suggestion has several advantages, however, I feel the disadvantages rate higher.

The original idea of Halloween is to dress up in a costume or disguise and go to a house with a "trick for a treat." The fun of it is not knowing what reward would be received. If you choose your way that thrill will be gone. How does it sound to send your child around begging for money? You might as well. Do your kids really need that book or toy? Why not get them a paper route or babysitting job?

And don't tell me your children are going to have tooth decay just from eats on one "special" day. Aren't there days too in the summer when they don't eat those nutritious meals without as much as a word from you?

Don't you think it's your responsibility to make sure your children don't eat any suspicious candy even if you must fill their sweet tooth with candy you purchase before they go out.

If you check you'll also find any number of charities who will be more than happy to count and roll your excess pennies.

Your children want to be safe from harm and that's your job as a parent. However, they must be made aware of how to handle the bad as well as the good things in life. They will be a lot worse off if they grow up in a vacuum.

sticking together. I finally convinced myself it would get better when I blended all the ingredients together and baked it in the pie shell.

It was the only time we had to eat a pie with a soup spoon and all the whipped cream in the world couldn't hide the fact that it wasn't only the loosest pie in the world, but it tasted as bad as it looked.

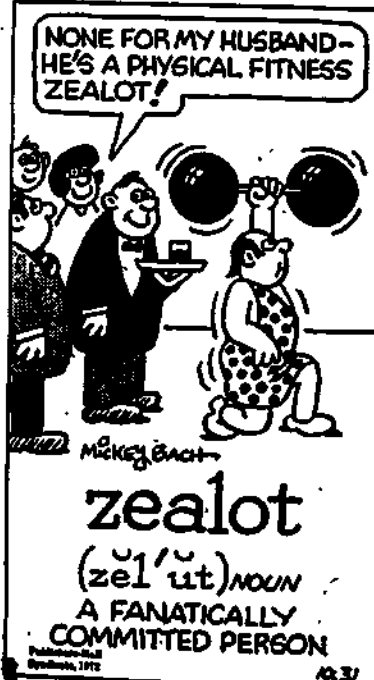

We threw most of it out for the birds, but they threw it back.

The birds also didn't think much of all the seeds I threw out for them and the next summer we had pumpkin vines growing all over the back yard.

With my gardening record I shouldn't knock anything green and growing, but those things were ridiculous. They crept over the back stoop and would curl around my ankle when I stepped out to bring in the milk. Then they started crawling through the kitchen screens and I felt like Jack and the beanstalk. So I pulled them up before some giant went "Fee Fi Fo Fum" at me in the middle of the night.

With all the traumatic experiences I've had with pumpkins, I wonder how come I feel like carving a dumb-looking jack-o-lantern?

Word A Day

'Too Many Jobs Exported'

While glancing through the Sears Christmas Catalogue, a sad fact dawned on me. We have exported an extremely large number of jobs! The catalogue indicates the source of foreign made goods and an amazing number of items come from Hong Kong, Japan and Taiwan.

An unemployed engineer in a McGovern T.V. advertisement makes this point, but I did not get the impact until now. We have become a nation dependent on wars, hot or cold. Subsidizing Lockheed, General Dynamics, North American, Rockwell, Dow, etc. with low interest loans and make work programs, has become necessary. Reversing this trend will be a more monumental task for McGovern than getting elected. Right now it doesn't look well for his (our) chances. Too many Americans have too little faith in our ability to make a peace time economy work. They may be right but I hope we take a shot at it.

by DEAN C. MILLER
BERN, Switzerland (UPI) — Swiss watchmakers are very sensitive about press reports saying they are losing their dominant position in the $3 billion industry.

American newsmen who recently toured watch factories and company headquarters in western Switzerland encountered this sensitivity at every stop.

When Seiko of Japan beat the Swiss to the U.S. market place with a quartz watch, reports that the Swiss were slipping started making the rounds.

They were too slow to change and old fashioned, said one story. The more aggressive Japanese or the Americans because of their know-how in integrated circuits, a vital part of the new electronic watch field, would take over. In the process, so the reports went, Switzerland would lose 80,000 jobs and most of its export business.

Such speculation was printed in Swiss newspapers and caused near panic in Neuchâtel, Fontainemelon, La Locle, Technau and other villages dependent on watchmaking. How could this happen to us? the villagers asked the watch officials.

"IT HASN'T and won't," replied the angry Swiss executives.

They have told the villagers and visiting journalists, in effect, that they have assessed the watch market and feel that the mechanical or pin lever watch still is the safest and broadest marketing base. They say they are aware of all the new watch technologies that produce accuracy to five seconds per month — electronic watches, tuning fork watches, quartz crystal watches, solid state digital and the like. They also think they've been introduced to the public too quickly and without warning about some of the inherent problems.

Quartz crystals age and that aging affects the accuracy of the movement. Quartz movements also are sensitive to shock and temperature change. The liquid crystal digital readout system has a limited life span, presents a service problem at this time and is bulky, which interferes with styling.

"When the products are right and the market is proven," said one Swiss official, "we'll be there just as we've been every other time. Meantime, we plan to keep our eyes on the proven area of the market."

"Public acceptance of the electronic watch systems needs to be confirmed," said Dr. Kurt Hubner, vice president of research and development at the Ebauches Electroniques S.A. complex. "The public was curious at first. It now is definitely hesitant."

BOTH WERE saying they think they have the correct reading on the watch market for today and the near term. They think the big market still is in pin levers. About 160 million of them will be produced this year compared with only four or five million of the more advanced models.

"In our view," said Hubner, "there is no evidence of the death of the mechanical watch. Marketing figures, in fact, say the opposite."

Eighty-five per cent of the Swiss market is in mechanical watches selling for under $50, well below the present price range of electronics and solid states. Out of every 100 watches sold last year in the U.S. for instance, 72 retailed at under $20. Thirteen sold from $20 to $40, 14 for $40 to $100 and only one for more than $100.

When Americans, the wealthiest consumers in the world, spend an average less than $20 for a watch that tells the manufacturer something. When you consider that the potential markets of Africa, Southeast Asia and China aren't about to spend a lot for watches, that reinforces the economics lesson.

Even there they've been having trouble. They have lost ground to Seiko, which accounts for $106 million in exports.

Timex also is giving the Swiss a tough time. Rene Retornaz, general director of the Federation of Swiss Watch Manufacturers at Biemme went so far as to call Timex "the competition." He emphasized the word "the."

TIMEX HITS the Swiss hard in the $15-$25 market and Retornaz says it's not only because of flexibility and aggressive advertising but also because Timex has learned how to develop marketing positions such as drug stores and other traffic areas that provide powerful points of purchase stimulation.

"The Russians could be tougher competition if they learned more about styling," he said. "Their mechanisms are in the middle quality range but their styling is terrible."

Retornaz thinks China will be an "enormous market" in the coming years. "We already sell more than a half million watches annually to the Chinese," he said.

Up to now, the Swiss rationale for concentrating on mechanical watches involves the higher cost of making the electronics and other high-technology watches. But production costs of quartz crystals and integrated circuits can be cut drastically if demand jumps. Today the unit costs for the guts of a quartz or a digital readout is around $33 per watch.

Gross State Product Hits $69.4 Billion

Ray C. Dickerson, director of the Illinois Department of Business and Economic Development, said, "Recent research by our department based on figures from the U.S. Department of Commerce indicates that Illinois gross state product reached a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $69.4 billion in the second quarter of this year." This represents a gain of $1.8 billion from the comparable rate reached in the first quarter of 1972, he said.

"Manufacturing accounted for $785 million of the increase," he said. "Contract construction added another $39 million. All other sectors of the economy except government and farming contributed at least moderate gains."

The Illinois gross state product account, which is patterned after U.S. gross national product by industry division, was introduced by the department in 1971. The account is updated quarterly, and is used as an indicator of general economic conditions of the state. It includes estimates for nine sectors of the state's economy — mining; contract construction; manufacturing; trade; finance, insurance and real estate; transportation, communication and utilities; services; government, and farming.

Addressograph Signs Pact With Rotoprint

Addressograph Multigraph Corp. signed an agreement with Rotoprint Limited, London, and Rotoprint GmbH, Berlin, for marketing rights to certain Rotoprint offset duplicating machines.

The firm has obtained U.S. rights for five Rotoprint machines, ranging from a small table-top model to a large-sheet model that prints two sides simultaneously.

The firm's Multigraphics Division, based in Mount Prospect, will begin marketing machines in the U.S. later this fall under its own brand name. The table-top unit, also will be marketed in Great Britain.

Quaker Splits Stock, Increases Dividend

The board of directors of the Quaker Oats Co., recently voted to split the company's common shares three-for-two and increase the quarterly dividend from 26 cents to 27 cents a share — equivalent to 18 cents a share after the split.

The directors also authorized the registration with the SEC of an underwritten public offering, after the split, of 600,000 shares of common stock and a secondary offering of approximately 300,000 shares. Shareholders for whom the secondary offering is being made acquired their shares in July, 1972, as a result of Quaker's acquisition of Needlecraft Corp. of America.

The directors also declared a regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the cumulative preferred stock. Quaker reported sales of $771,159,000 for the fiscal year that ended June 30. Earnings were $34,244,000 or $2.65 a share.

Quaker is a Chicago-based manufacturer of foods, pet foods, toys, specialty chemicals, yarn and art needlecraft kits.

by CARLTON SMITH

Gaining fame and fortune as an inventor is a vision firmly entrenched in American folklore.

You needn't be an Edison or an Alexander Graham Bell. Something simple like a safety pin will set you up for life. And, as we reported just recently, Uncle Sam himself now says he's encouraging the inventor, and offering aid in getting his inventions marketed, via a special federal agency, the Office of Invention and Innovation. So you should get busy and invent something?

Not exactly, in the opinion of one man who's devoted much of his life to that endeavor. A Minnesotan who prefers to remain nameless, he has to his credit a couple of dozen inventions, ranging from an automobile switch lock to a steam engine.

IT'S A TOUGH business, says Mr. A. "There are thousands upon thousands more broken-hearted inventors — and economically broken ones — than there are successful inventors. One man told me he had spent $10,000 on an invention, sold one demonstration model, and never expected to sell another one, or the patent. I myself have spent thousands on inventions — and countless hours of my time — without any return."

A major pitfall, he says, is that it's fairly easy to secure a patent, but costly. That's where the inventor's money goes down the drain because, he says, only about 8 per cent of patented inventions are commercially successful.

"When you submit an invention to a corporation," he says, "you're first asked to sign a waiver of confidentiality, and then a waiver limiting your claim for reimbursement to $1,000 or $2,000. In almost every case, all they want from you is a principle, which they can then apply to their own needs — not really your invention."

If Uncle Sam is encouraging and assisting the inventor, Mr. A. says he must have been talking to the wrong people. "I have explored this possibility several times. It dribbles down to nothing. As to the Army or the government ever buying an invention, this is a most complex hurdle and a very, very vague possibility. And there is danger of its being expropriated."

CERTAINLY IT IS possible, says Mr. A., to make a fortune with an invention. But the inventor is more likely to experience frustration and heartbreak, he says, "unless one is young, has the inner drive to start his own manufacturing operation and has plenty of financial backing. Without those assets, you're much better off taking up bingo, chess or tiddly-winks."

One early success and you're hooked, says Mr. A. "It's like a first night out at Las Vegas. Hit one winner, and you're a confirmed gambler for life. We're fortunate that Edison sold his first invention (his tickertape printer, for $80,000) or he, too, might have got the fulfillment complex, and we might have been stumbling around with kerosene lanterns for a couple more generations."

So there's the inventor's life from another angle. It doesn't sound like the view from the Office of Invention and Innovation. Maybe the wrong people have been talking to each other — or the right people haven't been talking.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Low trading volume in the market this year, and the sales-redemption posture of the overall mutual fund business suggests a "reluctance factor," noted the One William Street Fund, Inc. This has persisted despite strong economic indications that offer "ample evidence of a strong economy and bright prospects for corporate profits," the firm added.

WITH TECHNICAL strength improving every day, the market should be in a strong position to respond to more positive Vietnam peace news, said E. F. Hutten. Volume indications have been favorable, and market performance by transportation issues may strengthen any impending rally. "For the first time in several months, we are getting the fundamental economic and technical market factors back in positive gear," the company said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I direct your attention to two recent news items that nobody has been fit to correlate until now.

Item 1. Residents in the area of Fort Worth, Tex., reported seeing bright orange objects streaking across the sky Sunday night.

An Air Force spokesman said nothing was spotted on radar that might account for the sightings.

Item 2. It was disclosed over the weekend that the U.S. Navy has spent $375,000 during the past four years studying the flight characteristics of Frisbees.

The tests including having engineers scale a 1,000-foot cliff in Utah and fling the plastic toys over the precipice while tracking cameras monitored the flights.

IN A REPORT ON "Adaptation of the Frisbee Flight Principle to the Delivery of Special Ordnance," the Navy said it was investigating possible new ways of delivering flares.

Or, as the Navy put it, "an air-launch illumination system using a gyroscopically stabilized disc." But the project didn't pan out.

Correlation: By this time, of course, you have already grasped the relationship between these two events and have become convinced in your own mind that

Dick Van Dyke's Series In Trouble?

by RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Those popular ABC-TV Sunday night movies like "Love Story" and "Goldfinger" have been giving longtime television favorite Dick Van Dyke a rough time with his comedy series in the audience ratings.

Once firmly established as a top-10 ratings entry, Van Dyke has been struggling in the rankings this season since being switched from CBS-TV's potent Saturday night lineup that includes "All in the Family" and the Mary Tyler Moore comedy series.

Van Dyke has had such consistent pulling power over the years that it's entirely possible he'll spurt again in the ratings once ABC-TV uses up its Sunday blockbusters. But with ABC-TV ready to spring more big Sunday movies such as "True Grit" (with John Wayne, Nov. 12) and "Patton" (with George C. Scott, Nov. 19), the end of tough opposition isn't near.

AND WITH FEWER episodes of series being made these days, a network depending heavily on movies — as ABC-TV does — is in the stronger position of not needing as many to match against first-run episodes of weekly shows such as Van Dyke's. And of course those movies will be rerun too.

Furthermore, another strong ratings opponent is up against Van Dyke this season: NBC-TV's "Sunday Mystery Movie," a collection of popular alternating series — "Columbo" (Peter Falk), "McMillan and Wife" (Rock Hudson and Susan Saint James), "Hec Ramsey" (Richard Boone) and "McCloud" (Dennis Weaver).

"Columbo," particularly, has become a television powerhouse in audience draw as Falk has emerged as one of video's truly big stars — bigger by far than most of the more famous movie names the networks wasted millions on in series that bombed out.

The boys at the New York network offices are sometimes a little slow on the pickup. It cost them all that money to discover what any careful televiewer could have told them: That video audiences have tastes and preferences all their own, essentially predictable and obvious.

ANYWAY, AS FOR Falk, not only is he a fine actor, but the new national success couldn't happen to a nicer gent. And make no mistake about it — his basic and magnetic likeability is a major factor in his television stardom. Likeability counts in video as in no other entertainment medium.

Getting back to Van Dyke, he finished 58th in the first national ratings of the season and 58th in the rankings for the week ending Oct. 15. Another CBS-TV Sunday entry with a strong track record, the private eye series "Mannix," also has been struggling against ABC-TV's motion pictures and NBC-TV's "Sunday Mystery Movie," but has shown more resiliency thus far than Van Dyke. "Mannix" finished 57th in the first ratings but 28th in the rankings for the Oct. 9-15 week.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Never mind how you got to seven hearts with today's hand. You are there and can count 12 winners with no apparent play for the all important 13th trick.

If you know about squeezes you recognize that while the opponents have spades, diamonds and clubs well stopped, the squeeze should develop because only West can stop clubs while only East can stop diamonds and that if you time your play right you can make it Impossible for either one to stop spades. You start by ruffing the first club. Maybe West holds a nine-card suit. You draw trumps with three leads; cash dummy's ace and king of clubs to discard two spades from your hand.

Now you cash your two high diamonds and the rest of your trumps to leave you with one diamond and two spades.

West will have to come down to three cards while dummy still holds ace-king-small of spades and a club. West will have to throw a spade; then dummy's club can be jettisoned.

East will also have to throw a spade to keep a diamond and dummy's spades will be good.

Was this squeeze a sure thing? Yes, it was. The bidding had marked West with the only club stopper and East with the only diamond protection.

Quarterbacks Special Set For Pro Sports Luncheon

BOBBY DOUGLASS

The past and present of National Football League and Chicago Bears' quarterbacking will be featured at the first Paddock Publications Pro Sports Club Luncheon for 1972-73.

Hall-of-Famer Sid Luckman, the all-time leading passer for the Bears, and Bobby Douglass, the big strong left-hander who's guiding the exciting 1972 edition with so much authority, will appear at Old Orchard Country Club on Monday, Nov. 13, at the kickoff meeting for the second season of Paddock lunches.

Luckman and Douglass will be the featured speakers, and two outstanding high school quarterbacks from the Herald circulation area are also expected to be at the speaker's table for this special all-quarterback event.

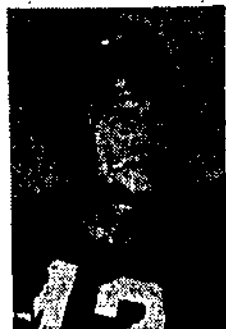

Invitations have been extended to Elk Grove's Jeff Stewart and St. Viator's

Stan Bobowski, and their parents.

"We're anxious to get our second season of sports luncheons under way," said Herald Sports Editor Bob Friak. "We were pleased with the response last year and with the Bears playing so well lately, this kickoff program is a natural."

"Luckman is one of the most famous names in professional football history, and Douglass is giving Bears' fans some of the most exciting quarterbacking they've seen in years. Bobby was one of our guests last fall, and we had many requests for a return appearance."

In 12 seasons with the Bears Luckman completed 904 passes in 1,744 attempts for 14,883 yards and 139 touchdowns. He stands almost 5,000 yards ahead of the next quarterback on the Bears' all-time list.

Luckman, the first modern T quarterback in professional football, is the only Bear quarterback in the Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio. He was at the controls in one of the most memorable games in NFL history, the Bears' 73-0 victory over Washington in 1940.

Luckman threw touchdown passes in 19 consecutive games in one stretch for the Bears and once threw for seven scores in a 1943 game against the New York Giants, completing 21 for 433 yards.

Douglass threw for 1,164 yards last fall although he still was more noted for his running ability. He has ranked with the top ground-gainers in pro football this fall but enjoyed a fine passing day Sunday in the Bears' win over St. Louis. He is gradually becoming one of the most dangerous offensive threats in the NFL.

Luckman and Douglass will give short talks and answer questions at the Pro Sports Club Luncheon.

Old Orchard Country Club is located at Rand and Euclid roads, Mount Prospect. Tickets are $5, including tax and tip, for a chef's steak lunch.

Call for reservations to Anne Chalkis at Paddock Publications (394-2300) or Old Orchard Country Club, Clearbrook 5-2025.

The program will run from noon until approximately 1:30 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 13.

Call now. Don't miss this quarterback special!

Basketball Rules

Meeting At Hersey

A meeting to discuss the 1972-73 basketball rules will be held at Hersey High School Wednesday evening.

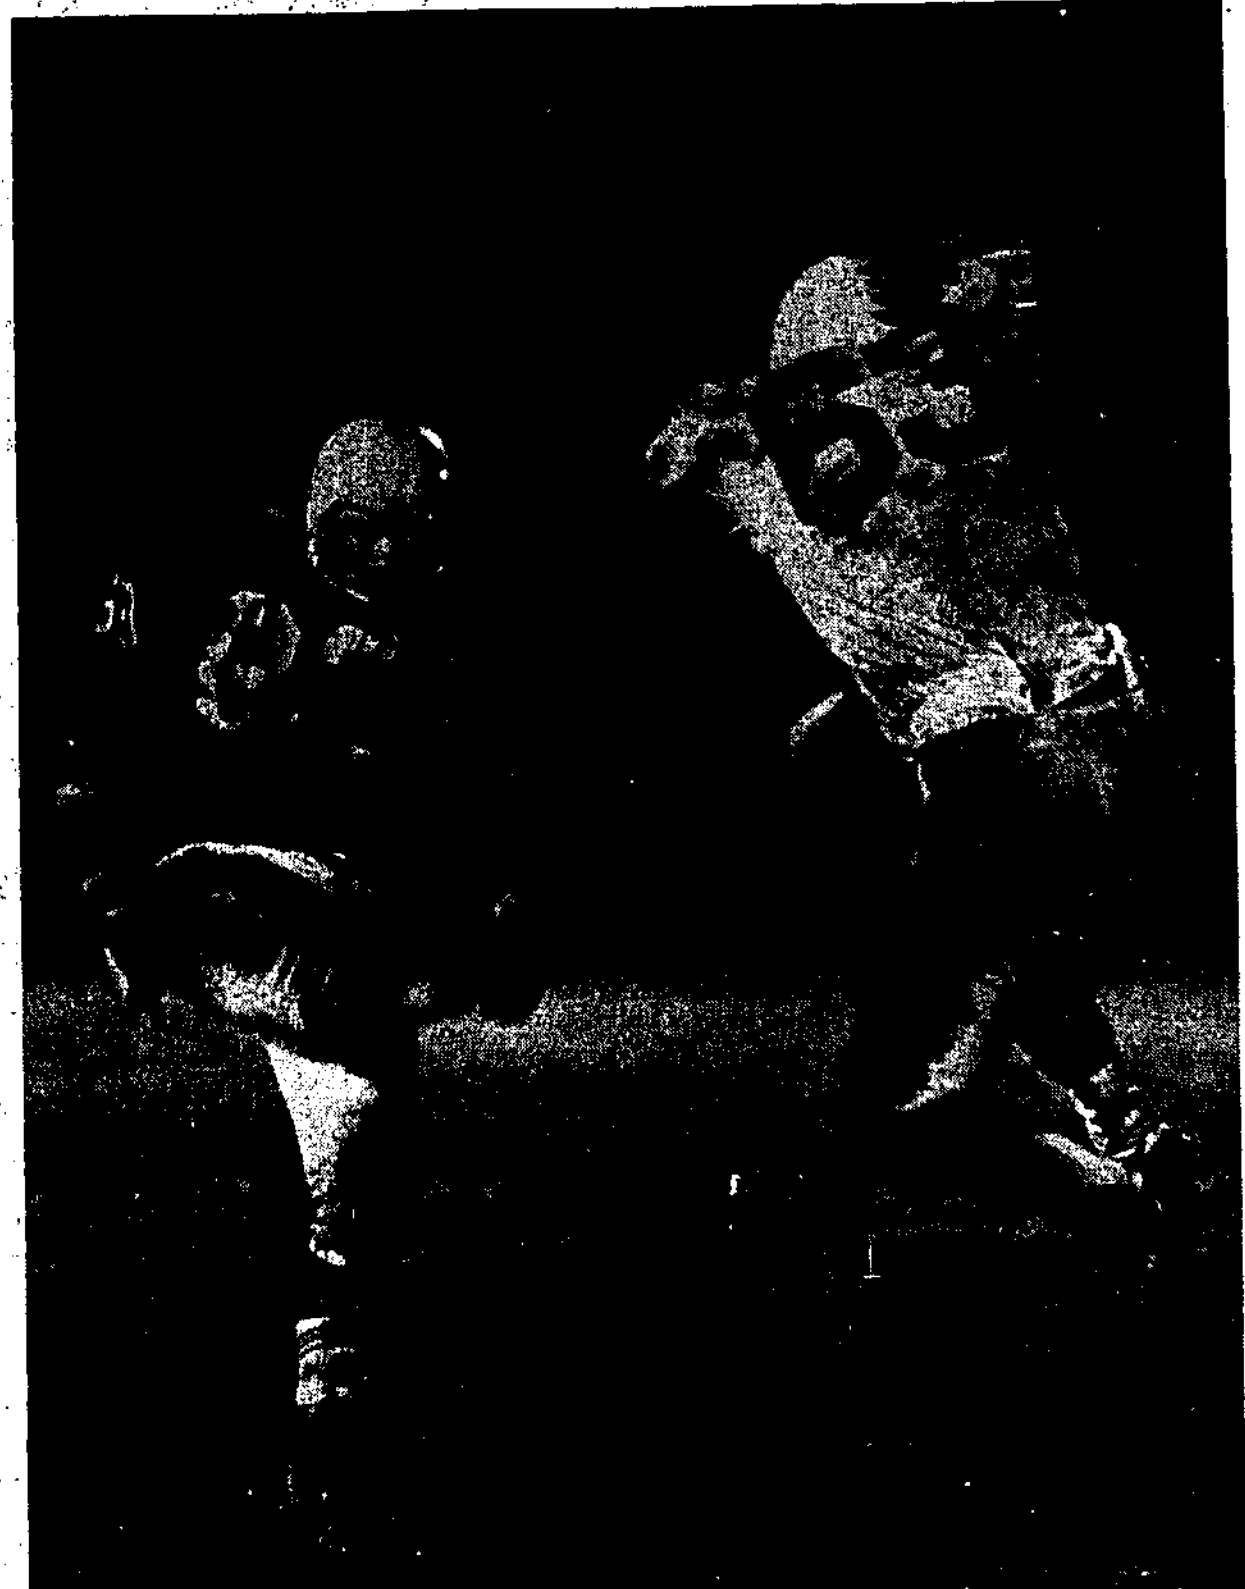

The meeting, which will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Little Theater, is sponsored by the Illinois High School Association and organized for the purpose of acquainting high school coaches and officials with the current basketball code and rules changes.

Ernie Lieberman will be the interpreter at the Hersey meeting and Dick Kinnehan, Hersey Athletic Director, is the meet manager.

All basketball officials, scorers, timers and coaches are invited.

GREAT PLAY . . . ALMOST. Arlington's Doug Everhart just barely misses blocking a Fremd punt by Ken Roggenbuck. Unfortunately for the Cards, Everhart's line of trajectory carried him right into Roggenbuck and a subsequent roughing the kicker penalty allowed the Vikings retention of the ball. Fremd was stopped on this third quarter drive later anyway but came back early in the final period with a 48-yard paydirt thrust to wrap up a 10-0 win.

USC Holds Top Rating

McKay's Club Runneth Over

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

LOS ANGELES (NEA) — This is the year of the progeny and the prodigy in college football. There are, among others, Tom Harmon's boy Mark at UCLA, Dub Jones' boy Bert at LSU, Bobby Layne's boy Allen at TCU, Lou Groza's boy Jeff at Ashland College and Whizzer White's boy Danny at Arizona State.

They all evoke memories of their football-playing fathers. So, in a sense, does J. K. McKay of the University of Southern California, the No. 1 team in the nation.

Young J. K. is there for his father to see every day. John McKay, besides having been a talented halfback at Oregon a generation ago, is the head coach of USC. J. K. McKay is a Trojan wide receiver of great talent.

After the precocious sophomore caught his first varsity pass against Arkansas, Coach McKay was asked if he congratulated his son.

"No," he said, "I was too busy."

After J. K. hauled in his first touchdown pass, against Oregon, the coach was again asked if he made special note of it.

"No," he answered, "I've hired an extra guy to do that for me."

The father-and-son combination has effected a change in the life of Mrs. McKay sitting up in the stands.

"Now," she says, "I have to listen to them talk about that 'idiot' coach playing his 'idiot' son."

Actually young J. K. is not even a starter for USC. That's no disgrace. In 25 years of watching college football, I've never seen a team with such depth and quality at the striking offensive positions — receiving, throwing and running.

Young J. K. logs virtually as much playing time as Edsel Garrison, who gave up a chance to be a speedster on the U.S. Olympic track team for the prestige of playing at USC (and preparing himself for a pro football career).

The Trojans come at you in waves.

Against Stanford, they played three different tailbacks, and the third, a sophomore named Allen Carter, was every bit as good as the first, Lightning Rod McNeill, who's 6-2 and weighs 218, including a steel plate in his hip. While the second, another sophomore named Anthony Davis, was merely voted the player of the game.

They're just as deep at fullback, where starter Sam (Bam) Cunningham is a beautifully proportioned 225-pounder who's a cinch to be a No. 1 draft choice.

The starting wide receivers are Garrison, maybe the fastest man in the college game, and Lynn Swann, also rangy and swift and a great punt returner. Yet the most precise patterns are run by J. K. McKay, who's a replica of Raymond Berry or George Sauer in motion and holds on to the ball better than anyone on the team. He leads his team in receptions and touchdown passes.

The tight end, Charles Young, was a

Let's Revise State Series

THE STATE CROSS country meet — set for this Saturday at the usual site near Peoria — is a colorful, thrilling spectacle each year. A full spectrum of color forms the starting pack, which this year will be 28 teams and about 200 runners. It's a good showdown to crown the harrier kings of the state.

All this sounds great, but not many things are perfect and the state cross country series (not just the final title race) is no exception. There are inequities. And there are ways the whole setup could be improved.

Before we get into some of these, in all fairness, credit should be given to the Illinois High School Association and Peoria Central High School for their fine managing of the meet. Organization, crowd control and distributing of results all are excellent at the state meet.

However . . .

Many coaches are disturbed with the system used to narrow down the huge field of more than 500 Illinois schools with cross country programs, through districts and sectionals, to the final 28.

Most of the complaints come from suburban coaches — coaches of some of the best teams in the state in the toughest conferences. Basically, the complaints are nothing new. The problems are the same as in many other prep sports.

Yes, you guessed it. There is a heavy concentration of cross country talent, both team and individual, in the suburbs (especially north and west) compared to downstate and Chicago schools. This means that every year, several teams never make it downstate even though they are superior to some teams that do make it.

The conflict is an old and familiar one — geography versus population. As Maine West coach Bill Barringer said, "It's like the Senate and House of Representatives. They balance each other out, but we don't have that in the state cross country series."

As the system now stands, it is geographical. Ridgewood coach Dave Williams explained, "The IHSA states firmly that teams will be chosen territorially with every part of the state equally represented." Even most coaches opposed to the current setup agree that schools away from the suburbs must be given a fair chance.

But it seems there are ways to do so and still avoid penalizing teams in the strongest conferences — teams like Fremd, Arlington and Palatine this year which did not make the state meet despite being ranked in the state's top 10. Relocate any of these teams downstate and they would easily win most conferences, districts and sectionals and be headed for Peoria Saturday.

To be specific, three different ideas for revising the series have been made by Barringer, Williams and Fremd's Ron Menely. Barringer's and Williams' plans have been proposed in detail to the IHSA — so much detail that not nearly all aspects can be covered here; just the main points.

Again, in fairness to the IHSA, it should be noted that the Association has made some progress with certain changes in recent years. For example, they added the sectional instead of going directly from districts to state final as in track. Also, they qualified the top 10 runners from each sectional instead of just the top five as was formerly done. With the old rule, even more top runners from non-contending teams were left at home on state final day.

These were changes in the right direction, but perhaps even more upheaval is needed.

Barringer's proposal, in a nutshell, is this: "I say let's not worry about geography, but hold all districts and sectionals in the center of the state and align teams

AT RANDOM. To make sure we don't have the best teams eliminating each other early, we could have seedings (as in the basketball regional tournaments) to keep them apart."

In February 1971, Barringer sent out a questionnaire to every school that had been in the state the previous three years plus some others. He was pleased that the IHSA referred the results of the questionnaire to its advisory committee. The Maine West mentor also was happy that he got a high percentage of return on the form, which he said "showed that coaches are concerned about the present system."

Barringer made the following points: "Not enough runners are advanced from teams that do not qualify for the state meet."

"Sixty-six per cent of the coaches I asked felt that Champaign would be a better place to hold the meet than Peoria because spectator crowds are more strictly controlled."

"The coaches were about evenly divided on seeding. Naturally, the ones from the better teams want it and the ones from poorer teams do not — in both cases, so their teams will have a better chance to make it."

"With random selection each team would have a better variety of opponents. They would go against teams from out of their own area in the district instead of teams they have already run against one or more times during the season."

"The IHSA seems too concerned about just crowning a state champ. What is needed is more participation. If a good runner is not from a good team and doesn't get in the state meet, he misses out on attention from college recruiters and a possible scholarship."

"More of the population of the state is in the suburbs than downstate, so there should be more teams from this area that qualify."

Now for Williams' plan. He says that the present district and sectional format could be kept but that five teams would qualify from each sectional instead of three. Obviously this would make the state meet too big, so Williams suggests adding another step in the series — a supersectional between the sectional and final with two brackets, upper and lower.

"This way," he says, "it would be fairer because all of the top-rated 22 teams in the state would be brought together. Also there would be more kids involved to keep them off the streets, away from drugs and so on."

There would be more positive reinforcement for runners because they would know they have a chance to go downstate no matter what conference they're from. Right now, some suburban kids lack motivation. They say, "Well, we have a real good team again this year but we can't make it downstate because look who else is in our area."

Menely agrees that downstate schools should have the same chance they have now but would simply like to see one more sectional added from this area. "It would mean only three more teams in the state meet — 23 instead of 26 — and they could easily handle them on that (Peoria) course. They have 44 in their invitational (earlier in the season)."

"Also it would be better to qualify four teams from the district and four from the sectional. The fifth team in the district is usually near the bottom of the sectional anyway."

They're all good ideas and it would be nice to see one or a combination of two or more of these plans adopted — anything to give this area's runners a fair shake.

Why is cross country better in these parts? That's another story . . . one this column will look into eventually.

Elk Grove Boys Football Facts

COUGARS SLIPPED TO PARK RIDGE
On a muddy, sloppy field, fumbling and weather conditions hampered playing on both the Cougar and Park Ridge teams; however, Park Ridge managed a sliding, slushing punt return for their TD and two safeties from blocked punt and by tackling the Elk Grove quarterback in the end zone. Final score 10-0 Park Ridge.

PANTHERS TIE
On a Sunday best suited for water polo the Elk Grove Panthers and Hoffman Estates Chargers played to a 0-0 tie. It was virtually impossible for anyone to keep their footing on the muddy, flooded field. However, there were several boys that stayed with it and presented the best possible game under these conditions such as Kris Hansen, Mike Fialhe, Dob Beupre, Mark Parker and Ken Tson.

KINGSTONS RIDE FOR NORTH AUSTIN
On a day better fit for ducks the Elk Grove Knights slipped, slid and fumbled to a 26-0 loss to a well-coached and well-footed North Austin team. Two fumbles by Elk Grove in the first quarter within their own 10 yard line spelled the beginning of the end for the Knights. Even though the defense played well, North Austin pushed across the two early TD's and completely controlled the ball game from that point on.

The Knights started a drive early in the third quarter and drove 30 yards to the North Austin 16 yard line only to fumble the ball away and lose their chance to swing the momentum their way. The bad weather did not affect the play of Dan Stogis, Joe Farnenier, Glen Galloway, and Jim Stanley. They each turned in excellent games both offensively and by being the best on defense.

SAINTS SQUISH
North Austin was the opposition on this rainy afternoon. Elk Grove won the toss and elected to kick off. North Austin chose to defend the North goal to have the advantage of the current (the water on the field looked like Salt Creek). North Austin took the ball right down the field but a fumble snuffed out that rally. The Saints, with their passing game taken away from them, had trouble moving the ball, but after a couple of exchanges they picked up a crucial first down only to see the ball squirt loose on the next play with North Austin recovering. NA then took the ball into the end zone for a 5-0 first quarter lead.

After a Saints TD in the 2nd quarter, North Austin scored their last points of the day on a 12 yard end sweep. The score at half was 12-0 and that was to be the final score. Defensive stalwarts were Jack Walsh, Ralph Souder, Jeff Curtin, Mark Gustafson, Richard Smith and offensive standouts were Walsh, Souder, Marty Carbone, Tony Di Rocco, Lew Schmale and Mike Schuster.

FALCONS WIN
The Elk Grove Falcons ended their losing streak with a 12-0 victory over Schiller Park. In the mud and rain, the Falcon defensive unit played a super game, completely shutting off any potential threats by Schiller Park. Mike Beupre set the pace by intercepting a pass and returning deep into Schiller Park territory. The defense also blocked two punts. Among the defensive standouts were Ken Reem, Mike Zahn, Dave Sanborn, Steve Gracheck, Mike Redinger, and Rich Hess.

The Falcon offense was sparked by a fine 30 yard TD run by Scott Chovanec and a 12 yard TD burst by Lance Scherier. Although bottled at times by offside, the offensive line still managed to get the job done with Ken Reem, Jim Souder, Rich Hess, Brad Turbyfill, and Scott Curtin leading the blocking. Despite the mud and rain, Steve Tson handled the quarterbacking, punting and kickoffs in fine fashion.

REDKINGS RIDE AGAIN
The Elk Grove Redskins won 16-12 against Bloomington and did not let the mud and rain stand in their way. With Bloomington scoring first, the defensive line, led by Bill Walligian, Dan Novack, Bob Dutz, Mike Warr, Tom Muller, Craig Gustafson, Chris Roberts, Matt O'Connor, and Tom Stringfellow, made key tackles stopping Bloomington's extra point. The offensive line led by Mike Mallor, Rich Wygaard, Mike Tednes, Mike Moriarty, Matt Tson, and Dave Albert came back hitting hard with Ken Jacobson scoring on an end run and Mike Fols driving through for PAT. The second TD came when Scott Wosilek carried over for TD and Ken Jacobson successfully tallying the PAT.

The one point lead was maintained with the help of Barney Condylla, Jeff Mueller, Scott Mallor, Scott Stringfellow, Gary Fitz-Simons and Bob Strong. In the last minute of the game, Jeff Niehoff intercepted, giving the Redskins possession of the ball.

COLTS LOSE BID FOR FIRST PLACE
In a game played in the rain and mud, the Colts proved not to be as good mudders as the West Chicago Raiders. The Colt offense was unable to put together any sustained drive when the rain stopped the Colts most passing game. Two beautiful kick returns, a 65 yard punt return by Mike Moeller, and a 90 yard kickoff return of John Calkins kept the Colts in the game until the final three minutes when the Raiders scored two quick TDs. The Colt defense was unable to cope with power running of the Raiders tailback from the single wing formation. Defensive standouts for the Colts were Gary Stelzer and Bill Cumbo.

The Peewee Falcons ended up 6th in their division with a 2-4 record. The Colts finished in 3rd place in their division with a 5-3 record. The Redskins wound up in 3rd in the North Division with a 2-4 record.

Schaumburg Ice Hockey

The Schaumburg Kings Hockey Teams have skated their third league game of this season, showing great skating in all areas, indicating that they are strong competition for all opponents. Their record for this past week was three wins, two losses and one tie. The games are as follows:

KITES (Ages 7 & 8)
Schaumburg 6, Elmhurst 6
This was the first loss for the Kings' Mite team. They were outshot 10-1. The early scoring on the part of their opponents seemed to calm the team, which normally skates confident, sure and powerful. They had some difficulty skating the puck out of their zone, which offered the Huskies many scoring opportunities. The Mite team has shown great promise and feel this is only a temporary setback.

SQUITS (Ages 9 & 10)
Schaumburg 5, Streamwood 0
Once again the Squirt team added a win to their record by defeating the Streamwood Blades. Through the 2nd period the Schaumburg team kept their opponents from any shots on goal. There was excellent skating by the entire team. Two goals were scored by Scott Root, with one assist for Rudinski, Heutlin, Melkerson and Kliner. Assists went to McArthur, Atkinson and Daruca.

PEE WEES (Ages 11 & 12)
Schaumburg 7, Streamwood 6
The Kings Pee Wee team added another win by defeating their Streamwood opponents. The Schaumburg team skated exceptionally well with Jeff Roos scoring his first hat trick, and one goal each for Dave Dusak, Joe Mozulio, Jeff Mrozinski and Glenn Fancut. Assists were from Treman, Chapman, Mozulio and Mrozinski. The Schaumburg team had 29 shots on goal while the Blades had 18.

BANTAMS (Ages 13 & 14)
Schaumburg 3, Streamwood 1
The Omega Kings led by Scott Sholz, with his first hat trick, and Mike Waghorne with two goals and one assist won their third straight league game. Strong skating and excellent back-checking had Schaumburg outshooting the Blades 21-4. Goals were scored by Johnson, Depner, Murphy, Kazanski, Landis and Archibald.

MIDGETS (Ages 15 & 16)
Schaumburg 3, Streamwood 2
The Kings Midget team skated well outshooting the Blades 15-8. A goal in the last three seconds by the Blades left the disappointed Midgets with a tie. Joe Vuzlar had two goals, Mike Fabry one, with two assists going to Dan Wetas.

JUVENILES (Ages 17 & 18)
Schaumburg 3, Streamwood 4
The Campanelli Kings lost to a determined Blade team that scored three goals in the final period. Goal scorers for the Blues were Mike Fromovost, Dennis Follard and Don Neumann. Assists went to Dan Love and John Rebers. Shots on goal went to Schaumburg 19-15.

River Trails To Feature Tennis Leagues

League competition, long part of the scene in bowling and golf, has come to tennis.

That's the experience of River Trails Tennis Center, Mount Prospect, where women's "A," senior men's "A" and men's "B/C" singles leagues, including six to 12 entrants each, are poised for takeoff.

The senior men's group will feature Jack Laffey, Palatine, star of recent Paddock tournaments; John Clark, Arlington Heights, once No. 3 in Chicago-land; Al Valiquet and Ron Keim, Des Plaines Tennis Club "A" players; Ray Ames, Glenview, former Chicago Park District champion, and John Halpin, Elmhurst, several-time River Forest Tennis Club titlist.

Pat Rittle, Mount Prospect, is the guiding hand behind the women's league, and Lou Venuso, Rosemont, sparks the men's "B/C" which will hold matches on Saturday afternoons and can use three to five additional players.

River Trails manager Nelson Campbell said standings will be kept on a sets-won-and-lost basis and that every player will meet all other league members at least twice.

— McKay

unanimous preseason All-American choice, a 6-4, 228-pound crusher.

For field generalship, to deploy this talent, McKay has Mike Rae, a strong-armed senior quarterback, and sophomore Pat Haden, who has just as much poise and can throw even better. Haden and J. K. McKay were a dual entry at USC from Bishop Amat High School in West Covina, Calif., and were the state's co-players of the year.

"The thing is," says Norb Hecker, the former pro coach who now handled Stanford's defense, "there's no drop in quality anywhere. They're really animals."

The assortment, including his own kid, has McKay so spoiled that when they scored only 30 points against Stanford the defending Rose Bowl champs, the first time they had gone below 50 since penetrating Arkansas for 31 points in their season opener, McKay grumbled, "I was thoroughly displeased. We played as poorly as we could play."

It should have been a second moment. The man with the white mane, in his 13th year of professional tenure at USC, has a reputation for dispensing bon mots. "I want to beat 'em," McKay growled, "by 2,000 points."

It wasn't one of the more uplifting declamations in American sport. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Halloween 'Alternative'

'UNICEF's A Safe Choice'

This is an open letter to all parents. With Halloween coming up, you are all probably trying to decide whether or not to allow your children to go out trick-or-treating. I hope this letter will help in your decision.

All of you are worried that if you send your children out for a night of fun and laughter, they may return with a bag of potential killers. Innocent-looking candy that may contain LSD, or perhaps a nourishing apple with a very sharp razor blade inside. That sentence alone probably could make you decide not to allow your children out of your sight on Halloween, much less out of the house to go trick-or-treating, but I am really trying to persuade you to do just the opposite.

I, too, am a parent, but unlike you, I am not worried that my son will return home with a bag of lethal goodies. On the contrary, I am confident that he will return home with treats bearing only good. You see, on Halloween, instead of going out with a bag to collect candy for himself, my son goes out with a little cardboard to collect money for UNICEF. I would like other parents to share in my confidence, so I am writing this letter.

Do you think your children would give up getting all that candy on Halloween? I do, maybe because I happen to be somewhat of an idealist. I think that if you sit down with your children and explained the danger involved in trick-or-treating, they would listen and agree. I think they enjoy getting dressed up in costumes and becoming someone or something else for a night more than getting candy. This is why I think your children would be enthusiastic about collecting for UNICEF. They would still be able to dress up and go door-to-door, but without the threat of danger lurking about every time a treat gets thrown into their bags. Best of all, though, they would be helping other children who are not as fortunate as they.

UNICEF has programs in 112 countries which help improve the nutrition, medical care, and education of the children in each one, and is also called on for emergency relief. Right now, this relief is needed because of the earthquake in Peru, and the devastation in Bangladesh. UNICEF needs your children to help them help other children.

Perhaps you or they think that they would have to collect a lot of money to do any good or that one person really can't do that much. I have some figures that will change your mind. $1 will inoculate 80 children against tuberculosis, 50 cents protects seven children from malaria for one year, 25 cents will provide 175 vitamin tablets and 5 cents, one little nickel, will cure one child of trachoma. So you see, one person can do a lot of good, even if all he collects is one nickel.

If by now you have decided to allow

Wants Prospect News

I have read this complaint your newspaper many times, but I have never noticed any improvement.

We are Arlington Heights taxpayers, but because of districting our kids go to Prospect High School.

Wouldn't it be nice if you included their news in the Arlington Herald. They had homecoming, no king but a queen and do everything as well as the other high schools, but seldom get mentioned.

How about including Prospect in your high school news? Please!!!

your children to go out on Halloween, but to collect for UNICEF, not candy for themselves, my purpose for writing this letter has been fulfilled.

If you want more information or have any questions, call the UNICEF Information Center in Chicago. They will answer any questions you have and also tell you if there is an organization participating in UNICEF activities in your area. They also have the collection boxes your children will need for trick-or-treating there in the center.

The address is: UNICEF Information Center, 5 North Wabash Avenue, Room 1501, Chicago, Illinois 60602.

Please encourage your children to go out trick-or-treating for UNICEF on Halloween. You will then share my confidence that they will not be returning home with any harmful candy, plus one other thing I think is very important. You will be giving your children the chance to discover the special feeling you get when you've done something to help another human being.

Critic Explains Letters Stand . . .

It would seem that my criticism of the prayer vigil held at St. Joseph The Worker Church has stirred a tornado in a thimble; it has also brought a response which indicates that some people are not too well informed about their own faith, other than believing the official propaganda with which they have been brainwashed. I refer to Mr. Thomas F. Mahoney of Buffalo Grove, who, with typical crystal ball logic, has the "ability" to read hidden meanings in apparently any letter!

What Mr. Mahoney seems to forget is that religious freedom also means the option NOT to believe in "traditional" religion, the freedom to express one's opinion, and the legal and moral right to denounce what one considers ignorance and/or injustice, whether one be a deist, an agnostic, an atheist, a humanist or a rationalist!

If the "community" and one's "neighbors" would deny any person this freedom of choice, then the community and one's neighbors would be indulging in hypocrisy and ignoring the Christian concepts of justice in which they profess to believe.

If I were so narrow as to indulge in Mr. Mahoney's kind of reasoning, I would suggest that he's advocating "when in Rome do as the natives do"! Believe as everybody else believes, don't have an opinion, and for God's sake (no pun intended) don't rock the holy boat! I can only wonder: if Mr. M. had lived in Nazi Germany, would he have bleated "HEIL" with the rest of the sheep, simply to avoid "offending the community"? Would he have advocated the hanging of "witches," had he lived in Salem, Mass. in 1692?

As for my "patent ignorance of the positive emphasis" of Catholic education, I am more than familiar with this so-called emphasis, so much so that, as a professional author, I've written books both on Roman Catholic sexual philosophy and all from the Catholic viewpoint, too. Writing these books was simply another job, and I was well paid for the task.

I personally fail to find any "positive emphasis" in a moral credo that, among other things, would turn a woman into a baby-making machine by subjecting her to the rhythm system, which is considered a joke among medical men, who refer to it as "Vatican Roulette!" And woe to any RC wife who refuses to play the game. She is excommunicated latee sententiae — Canon Law 2250. This is the kind of "positive" teaching that evolved and was updated from the same "wisdom" that once taught, in the Middle Ages the craziness that a male fetus acquired a soul in 40 days and a female fetus in 80 days. St. Augustine said so, and this dictum was followed by the Church for three centuries. I can also assure the "community" that this is fact, since Jesuit friends of mine, teaching at St. Louis University, a Catholic institution, have told me so. Needless to say, they also considered it a joke!

Mr. Mahoney also indulges in the old fashioned Christian tactic used by Apologists: That of the false analogy. In this case, since I disagree with him, there must be something wrong with me. I must have a "peculiar problem." I would suggest Mr. M. acquire a good college logic (and a Roman Catholic Encyclopedia). Then again, perhaps he has read a few lay books on psychology and fancies himself a kind of "expert" in human nature.

Sorry, Mr. Mahoney, but I don't have any "peculiar problem" — financially, emotionally, or otherwise. In fact, I'm quite content and happy. I don't even have the problem of being bothered by narrow-minded people who don't even know the facts about their own religious heritage. But I don't complain, anymore

Many Homes Lose Fire Protection Tonight Midnight

Some 80 per cent of the residents in unincorporated subdivisions around Elk Grove Village have until midnight tonight to pay an $84 fee if their homes are to receive fire protection from the village.

Earlier this summer the Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees announced that beginning Nov. 1 the village would provide fire and ambulance service to homes in the Itasca Meadows, Martini and Forest View subdivisions only if the owners paid for the service.

If the fee was not paid, village trustees said the fire department would render emergency evacuation services to persons trapped in buildings, but once persons had been removed, no further fire-fighting services would be performed.

Village Finance Director George Coney said 19.1 per cent, or 50 of the 251 residents in the affected areas, had paid the fire protection fee as of yesterday morning. He said this included one out of 21 homes in the Martini subdivision, 38 of 121 Forest View homes, 11 homes in miscellaneous areas and no homes in the Itasca Meadows subdivision.

CONEY SAID he expected a lot more applications for fire protection would come in during the last two days before the deadline.

The fire protection fee is a flat $84, and it is not prorated, Coney said. "It doesn't matter if the homeowner is asking for protection for the first day of the year or the last day, the fee for that year is the same," he said.

November will mark the first time homeowners in the Martini subdivision, north of Devon Avenue and east of Toune Road, and Itasca Meadows subdivision, south of Blesterfield Road, have been assessed for fire protection and ambulance service.

Last year residents in Forest View Subdivision, south of Landmeier Road and north of Laurel Street, were billed $84 for protection through Nov. 1, 1972, and 100 of 121 homeowners paid it.

However so far this year only 31.4 per cent of the Forest View residents chose to pay for fire protection. One resident said there was no organized boycott of the $84 but that residents thought the cost was too high. "Most people feel $84 is too much money to pay, and they figure they'll take their chances," the homeowner said.

THE NEW Elk Grove Village fire protection policy has been labeled "heartless" and "inhumane" by township auditors, and one resident has called it "high class blackmail."

Auditor Bernard Lee has said the policy appeared to be a "heartless method of pressure" to induce the incorporated areas to annex to the village.

Edward Moder, president of Itasca Meadows Homeowners Association, has called the fee "ridiculously high." He said most Itasca Meadows residents were contracting with the Roselle Fire Protection District to provide services at a cost of $2.03 per $1,000 assessed valuation. He said this would run about $20 per home.

Elk Grove Village Fire Chief Allen Hullett has said the fee was based on what the village spends for fire protection in a year for a single-family home.

BIKERS WERE FULL of spirit despite the cold, as they began American Cancer Society Bike-A-Thons in Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village Sunday. Pledges worth $2,500 were raised in Elk Grove Village. Pledges amount to about $1.00 in Arlington Heights.

NFL Official Will Speak Here Nov. 8

Arthur J. Holst, president of Promotional, Inc., is to speak at the annual meeting of the Elk Grove Village Association of Industry and Commerce at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 8 at the Navarone Restaurant, 1905 E. Higgins Rd.

Holst served on the economic security committee of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce for two years and currently is active in his local chapter in Peoria. He was graduated from Knox College in Galesburg, and pursued graduate studies in salesmanship and marketing at the University of Illinois.

After serving as administrator of the Forest Park Foundation in Peoria for 12 years, he formed his own company in January, 1969.

Holst also is a member of the professional football officiating staff of the National Football League, and he worked as a line judge at last year's Super Bowl game between the Dallas Cowboys and the Miami Dolphins.

Tickets for the annual meeting are $8.50 each. There will be a cocktail hour at 6:30 p.m. preceding the dinner, and dancing from 10 p.m. to midnight.

2 Hospitals Recommended For Northwest Suburbs

by STEVE BROWN

Recommendations for two hospitals to be built by 1975, coordinated with the development of medical office centers plus the immediate development of emergency medical treatment centers, were among the major items contained in the preliminary draft of health care needs for Northwest Cook County.

The study, conducted by the Northwest Cook County Health Care Needs Study Committee, was released yesterday.

The report, prepared by the consulting firm of Ernst and Ernst, recommends the construction of two hospitals, one a 300-bed facility to be located at Schaumburg and Barrington roads in Schaumburg Township. The second hospital, with a recommended size of 250 beds, is to be located near the intersection of Routes 59 and 22 north of Barrington.

THE 23-PAGE STUDY states that by constructing these two facilities the health care needs of the area will be adequately served through 1980.

Richard Kasten of the consulting firm, said the locations are to be considered general. He added these are based on result of analysis of projected population growth, existing medical referral patterns and travel patterns.

A completed study, including all statistical data, is expected to be released in about five weeks, Kasten said.

Kasten said that the proposed Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes Medical Center site near Roselle and Schaumburg roads, was not considered ideal because it is too close to Alexian Brothers Medical Center

Bike-A-Thon Gets $2,500 For Cancer

by MARY HOULIHAN

Sunday, the day of the American Cancer Society's Bike-A-Thon dawned cold and windy in Elk Grove Village and Arlington Heights.

The Elk Grove and Arlington Heights bike clubs and the Elk Grove Jaycees, promoters of the bike hike, stationed at check points along routes in both villages feared the worst when only 10 riders showed up at 10 a.m. at the first check point. But in the early afternoon, the skies cleared and with the sun came more than 100 bikers.

The turnout was best in Elk Grove Village where 84 riders turned up to ride 2,537 miles and raise almost $2,500 for cancer research. Ages of the riders ranged from seven to 49 years, but most were between 10 and 15 years old. Tom Carollo, one of the coordinators of the bike-a-thon, said.

IN ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, the turnout was less than expected. There were 34 riders in all. About $1,000 was pledged, according to Dick Spirek, president of the park district. However, two riders in the hike did stand out: Doug Vogel, who rode 52 miles, and Mike Smiley, who had 54 sponsors, and raised more than $300 in pledges.

Despite the small number of bikers, organizers of the hike said they were pleased with the response.

"I'm pleased with the turnout. I didn't expect this much considering the weather and the time we had to put the program on," Carollo said.

Organizers of the hike distributed 4,000 flyers on the bike-a-thon in both villages.

"But since the hike was locked in to a national promotion by the Partridge Family, coordinators of the hike in Elk Grove and Arlington Heights had only about a month to get the whole thing together," Carollo said.

"This was probably the worst time in the world to run a bike-a-thon," he said. "But this was a pilot program. Next year, we plan to run it in May or June in 19 communities in the Northwest suburbs," he said.

FOR THE BIKERS who did turn out Sunday, however, enthusiasm ran high. Many of the riders, members of bike clubs, traveled the 16-mile course two and three times.

"Many of them were determined to make the 80 miles," Jan Rodriguez, stationed at one of the Elk Grove rest stops, said. "They looked cold, but they looked like they were having a good time," she said.

Jack Pahl, former president of Elk Grove Village, decked out in a green riding outfit, outdid everyone, riding the full 80 miles and collecting $287. Two young boys on the course, Mike and Bill Hohman said they saw Pahl go by two or three times while they were still on their first 16 miles.

The bikers said they decided to make the bike-a-thon because "they liked to ride" and also "because it was a good cause." Cynthia Wilkerson, 13, perhaps gave the best reason. "I did it for cancer. If I had cancer, I'd like someone to do it for me," she said.

All proceeds of the bike-a-thon are to be donated to the American Cancer Society.

This Morning In Brief

The State

A commuter train loaded with rush hour passengers rammed into the rear of another packed train in Chicago, trapping dead and injured inside. Hours after the crash the Cook County morgue reported 45 bodies had been brought from the crash. At least 100 and possibly more were injured. The death toll was expected to rise as workmen pried the wreckage apart.

President Nixon's scheduled visit to Chicago today was canceled because of the Chicago commuter train wreck, the White House announced. Secretary of Transportation John Volpe flew to Chicago to head the investigation of the crash.

The Chicago Patrolmen's Association

and the Confederation of Police, representing more than half of Chicago's 13,500 policemen, are completing plans for a "blue flu" protest election day to back their demands for a contract. Many leaders, however, expressed belief that Mayor Daley would intervene and prevent the walkout.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Daniel J. Walker donated a pint of blood to aid victims of the Chicago commuter train crash and said he would forego "partisan" political statements for the day.

The Nation

President Nixon said he will sign into law a sweeping $5.3 billion a year increase in Social Security and welfare benefits affecting nearly a million widowed and disabled elderly persons. The bill, which will require sharply increased payroll taxes, replaced Nixon's proposed welfare reform that would have guaranteed an annual income of $2,400 for a family of four.

The United States repeated it will not sign its agreement with Hanoi in time to end the war in South Vietnam by tomorrow. The Viet-Cong objected, but hinted negotiations would continue even if today's deadline is not met.

The British government offered Northern Ireland the long-term option of remaining part of Britain or joining the Irish Republic, but left the decision up to the people.

Canadians voted to test Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's 4½-year mandate in a federal election whose outcome could mean minority rule for Trudeau's Liberal Party.

From The Library

Film has a hold on us all. The flickering images that captivated us in the twenties, and charmed us with sound in the thirties, have all but enslaved us, according to some observers.

For people who would like to explore film making the Elk Grove Village Public Library has a new club — the filmmakers club. It's a club for persons of all ages with an interest in film. There will

FOR THOSE WHO will be making films, the library will provide a dual-smm. edviewer, for viewing the film prior to editing it, and a splicer, for the actual editing process. It will also have a dual-smm. projector for watching the finished product, and a variety of sound equipment for recording and playing soundtracks.

All of this equipment must be used in

There will be sessions where members actually working on films can get together and exchange experiences and perhaps expertise. There will be time to make movies, and some equipment to help make them. And, come spring, there will be a festival of films made by club members, perhaps with awards.

The club will be informal. No dues, no need to attend regularly, no need, even, to plan to make a movie. You might just want to come along for the fun of the lectures and showings. The lectures and showings will be open to the general public, as well as to club members.

Sanitary District Delays Sewer Shutdown In Area

Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) hearing examiners postponed a decision on closing sewers in the area of Higgins Road and Oakton Street Monday after local businesses assured MSD officials the sewer line would be cleaned and inspected.

Bernard Lee, Elk Grove Township auditor, said releases were obtained from nine businesses along the line to contract for rodding, or cleaning, and inspection of the pipe. He said funds were contributed for the job by the businesses, and a contract would be awarded today.

The restaurants and other businesses in the area have been faced with a possibility of closing because of backed up sewers which have created a health hazard.

After an inspection of the sewer lines, the businessmen will be told how much it will cost to repair the sewers and bring them up to MSD standards, Lee said.

"If they (businesses) don't pay for the work to be done, MSD has indicated it will block off the sewer and the businesses will be forced to close," he said. Lee said another hearing will be held Friday for a status report on the project.

The land and the sewer system in question were owned by Lewis Gauger until his death about 1 1/2 years ago. Since Gauger's death, no money has been spent to maintain the sewer, and recent construction along Higgins Road may have damaged the lines.

in Elk Grove Village. Both Henry J. Buhrman, the newly appointed director of the Schaumburg facility and Schaumburg Village Atty. Jack Sigal said they were "encouraged" by the report, citing a need for a hospital in Schaumburg.

Buhrman said that he and other officials of Presbyterian-St. Lukes will have to examine the report in detail before making further comments.

BOTH MEN SAID they did not feel this report would deter the plans for the Schaumburg hospital.

"We have an agreement with Presbyterian-St. Lukes and the only way it would not be fulfilled is if we could not raise the necessary money," Sigal said. About $4 million will be needed to be raised in this area for the proposed $12 million facility, according to the agreement with Presbyterian-St. Lukes.

Dr. Sanford Block, representing a group of physicians who have announced plans to build a 200-bed hospital in western portion of Hoffman Estates, said the findings of the study merely confirmed the research his group did about one year ago.

"This may accelerate our plans," Block said.

Dr. Sheldon Waldstein, executive director of the North Suburban Association for Health Resources, said the completion of the study represents nearly two years work by the committee.

Minister Really Walks Into One

An offhand remark by a Hoffman Estates minister recently resulted in a trip on foot to Alexian Brothers Medical Center yesterday.

The Rev. W. C. Smith of the First Christian Church of Hoffman Estates, told Mrs. Verona Nyquist who was expecting that if she had twins, "I will walk to the hospital to visit you."

The prophetic pronouncement was answered Saturday morning as Mr. and Mrs. Nyquist, 421 Slingerland Dr., Schaumburg became the parents of Todd and Tony.

The Rev. Mr. Smith reportedly completed the six-mile trek to the Elk Grove Village hospital in slightly more than two hours.

Principals Praise Student Freedom Programs

Principals of the four Dist. 211 high schools had little except praise last week for several programs which have given students more freedom in recent years.

The four, reporting to the Dist. 211 Board of Education, said that generally the variable school day, student smoking areas and study hall option plans have been working with few problems.

However, all four agreed they would hesitate to expand programs to give students more freedom until more staff is available for supervision.

The board also was presented with a preliminary report on open campus practices in other school districts which it declined to make available to the public. Board Pres. Robert Creek said the open campus issue will come up at the Nov. 9 board meeting.

OPEN CAMPUS has been discussed in the district since late September when students at Schaumburg High School staged a walk-out demanding the privilege. Open campus would allow students to leave the school grounds when not in class, particularly during lunch hour.

In the report by the principals, made before a small audience containing students from several of the schools, the administrators said generally few problems have been caused by the smoking areas or other programs.

The variable school day, which allows students to start early and finish early, has been in effect for two or three years. The plan, the principals said, has allowed students to take more subjects, has made scheduling of electives easier for students and has caused few difficulties of any kind.

Leonard Newendorp, principal of Palatine High School, said, "I think it gives the students and parents some options that are important."

THE STUDENT smoking areas, now set up outside at all four schools, are working reasonably well, the principals reported, although they have caused some litter problems and some students still break rules and smoke in the buildings.

Fremd High School Principal Stan Smith said, "The kids are reasonably good about going to the smoking area, and I don't think we're creating more smokers."

Study hall option plans, which allow students to go to the library or to areas for conversation during study halls, have created some extra noise in the halls at some schools, the principals said, but also work well.

CARL ZDEB, Conant High School principal, said, "It has worked really well and our libraries have never been better used."

Principal Carl Weimer of Schaumburg High School added that the layout of his school has made study hall option plans difficult. "We do get traffic past classrooms," he said, "and my staff is divided in terms of their opinions of this thing."

The principals also agreed they cannot extend many of the programs without extra staff. Newendorp said, "Our problems with each of these programs really boil down to a small percentage of kids who would always cause problems. In order to allow more freedom I think we would need more personnel because there are rules we need to enforce."

More Than 2,000 Enter Coloring Book Contest

More than 2,000 Elk Grove Village area youngsters entered the "Tricks or Treats" Coloring Book contest, held last week in the village as a Halloween safety project.

The coloring books, distributed free to most local elementary schools, warned children of the dangers of getting Halloween candy and fruit that had been tampered with. The idea of the book originated with two Elk Grove Village women. Various local civic groups and businesses helped in the preparation and distribution.

Winners in the contest were named in a ceremony yesterday afternoon at the Elk Grove Village hall. First, second and third prizes in three groups were awarded.

In the kindergarten-first grade category, first prize went to Joey Aiello, Ridge School. Second place went to Carrie Thomas, Byrd School; and third went to Jeff Moses, also of Byrd.

In the second-third grade category, first place went to Lisa Hahn of Byrd School; second place to Colleen Friedlund of Queen of the Rosary School; and third went to Cindy Johnson of Dan Cook.

FIRST PLACE WINNER in the fourth-fifth grade category was Eric Harvey, of Queen of the Rosary; second place, Lisa Ann Stone of Ridge; and third place, Jim Kinn of Queen of the Rosary.

Each winner received a gift certificate for a local ice cream store. First prize winners got $4 certificates; second-place winners got $2 certificates; and $1 certificates went to third-place winners.

Judging was by Elk Grove Policeman Ken Krzywicki; Forman Onderdok, Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 coordinator; and Darlene Greaves, Elk Grove Park District arts and crafts coordinator.

Yesterday's awards were to be presented by Village Mgr. Charles Willis and Rotary Club Pres. Robert Loesse. Prizes were donated by the Rotary Club.

The idea of the coloring book was devised by Marian Noehre and Barbara Mulick. The two are members of the Clearmont School PTO and had planned, originally, to distribute the book only to Clearmont students. But the idea proved so popular that enough copies were printed for other Elk Grove Village schools.

Correction

Unit District Panel To Meet Thursday

The citizens' committee on unit districting for Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 will hold its first organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Rupley School, 305 Oakton St., Elk Grove Village.

The committee is expected to be divided into several subcommittees to study possible unit districting for Dist. 59.

The committee will work with the Illinois School Consultant service which has been contracted by the district to conduct a feasibility study on unit districting.

The committee's report and the consultant's study are to be presented to the school board by March 1, 1973.

The 20-year-old was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The juvenile will be turned over to juvenile officials, police said.

Both women were released after posting $1,000 bond. They are scheduled to appear in court at Schaumburg on Dec. 8.

Three Women Charged

Three women, one a juvenile, were charged over the weekend by the Schaumburg police in an incident which began as a shoplifting attempt at the Marshall Field's store in Woodfield.

Police said security guards at the store stopped the juvenile after she was observed allegedly taking a pants suit valued at $80. After questioning, police released the girl, but followed her to the parking lot.

There police found two other women and a hand gun.

Police said Bonnie Mhoon, 23, of 534 W. Division, Chicago and Norma Mhoon, 20, of the same Chicago address, were charged after the juvenile reportedly told them the older women told her to steal something from the store.

The older woman was charged with un-

Band Overcomes Rain, Wins Top Honor At UI Fest

The Wheeling High School Marching Band overcame rainy weather Saturday to win top honors in the Illinois Marching Band Festival, sponsored by the University of Illinois at Champaign.

The band won first place in parade and field routines, competing against 10 other school bands in the same classification (Class AA large schools). The band also was named grand champion of both events, winning over 77 other bands participating in the festival.

The band's color guard and flag corps also won honors as the best in the competition.

Jack Williamson, director of the band, said this was the most important state competition the band has competed in. "This is the largest competition ever held in the state," he said. "Every band in the state was invited to attend."

He said the high school band competed in the festival last year, winning the parade contest but coming in third in the field routine.

THIS YEAR the band scored 98.6 points out of a possible 100 in the parade competition. It was judged on marching and maneuvering, music and showmanship. In the field routine, the band scored 96 points out of a possible 100 for the same categories. One official said the Wheeling band was "in a class by itself." These scores brought Wheeling the grand championship honors.

Saturday night a contingent of police, firemen, and townspeople met the returning band as it left the tollway, and escorted the buses to the high school. Village Pres. Ted Scanlon and other local officials greeted the triumphant band members.

Williamson said there was also a large number of parents and band alumni who attended the competition in Champaign. He said many of the old band members hitch-hiked, bused and drove to see the band compete.

The band's most recent victory was in international competition in Winnipeg, Canada.

Wheeling Cyclist Injured In Accident

A 23-year-old Wheeling man remained in satisfactory condition at Holy Family Hospital yesterday after he was injured Friday in an accident in Mount Prospect.

John H. Ritter, 18 E. Old Willow Rd., was driving a motorcycle on River Road, near Camp McDonald Road, when he collided with a car that was making a left turn in front of him. The car was operated by Michael R. Skanse, 25, of Cary, who was not injured.

According to police, Skanse, who was turning into a restaurant at 1440 N. River Rd., said he never saw the motorcycle coming. The motorcycle was destroyed by fire.

Skanse was charged with failure to yield the right of way to oncoming traffic and Ritter was charged with violation of his driver's license classification. Dec. 13 court appearances in Mount Prospect were set.

Cardinal Cody Leads St. Mary's Service

Led by an honor guard of plumed Knights of Columbus, the procession of finely robed priests moved slowly past the crowd gathered at the entrance of St. Mary's Church in Buffalo Grove.

The parishioners of the church and an array of dignitaries headed by His Eminence, John Cardinal Cody, Archbishop of Chicago, joined Sunday in a special service commemorating the 125th anniversary of the first mass in this area.

THE BEAUTIFUL old Gothic church stands in the very heart of the community as a reminder that this fast-growing suburb did not spring up overnight. Built at a cost of $29,000, St. Mary's was dedicated in 1899 in a service that was probably similar to the one on Sunday.

One of the differences between that first service and the anniversary service is the size of the congregation. Members of the 70 families who were the original parishioners of St. Mary's were the first to sit in the pews of the new church. Today, there are 1,350 families on the church roll.

The mass Sunday was said in the chapel of the school finished in 1966, an ironic reversal of roles considering that until 1912, parish children attended classes in the church.

The Catholic Church itself has changed a lot since 1899, too. Even the non-Catholic guests at the anniversary service, including Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, were easily able to follow the mass, now said in English.

Before the mass, the five concelebrants conducted a liturgical service in the church, during which the choir sang an old Latin hymn, identified with the liturgy of the 1800s. The procession then moved to the cemetery, where many of St. Mary's first members are buried.

"GLORY, GLORY, hallelujah, His truth is marching on!" sang the 700 children of St. Mary's School, who formed a path for the procession to the cemetery.

Shivering a little in the cold gray chill of late afternoon, Cardinal Cody offered a prayer for the dead and blessed the graves.

Settled in the warmth of the new chapel in the school, a congregation of about 200 listened as Monsignor Harry Koenig, pastor of St. Joseph's Church in Libertyville and Vicar of Vicariate I, outlined the history of St. Mary's, beginning with the first mass said in 1847 in the home of John Simon Hennemann, which stood on the Lake-Cook county line. The Hennemanns, among the first settlers of the area, allowed their home to be used as a church until a regular building could be built in 1853.

The monsignor concluded his sermon with a prayer for "a future as great and prosperous as St. Mary's past has been."

Pastor Emeritus George Ballweber, former pastor of St. Mary's for 25 years, was one of the five concelebrants of the mass. Father Donald Duffy, the present pastor, celebrated the mass. Associate pastor, Father Edwin Pacocha, joined him, along with Father Menesius Madaj, of St. Mary of the Lake Seminary and Father Simon Kenny, prior, Carmel.

Buffalo Grove Gets Flood Insurance OK

by JILL BETTNER

For the first time, Buffalo Grove residents will soon be able to recoup some or all of their flood damage losses. Word was received Monday that the village has been approved for federally subsidized flood insurance.

Established under the Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Act of 1968, the National Flood Insurance Program provides limited amounts of flood insurance to homeowners through a federal subsidy.

In return for the subsidy the HUD act requires that state and local governments adopt and enforce land-use and control measures to guide future development of land in flood-prone areas, to avoid or reduce future flood damage.

BUFFALO GROVE is the ninth community in Illinois to be approved for the HUD program. Wheeling officials submitted their application to HUD Oct. 24 and expect to learn within the next two weeks whether they have been accepted. They have been working on it for the past several months.

The Buffalo Grove Village Board first began discussing the idea of obtaining federal flood insurance last June. Village Trustee Jim Shirley introduced the idea.

Village Mgr. Dan Larson said the only thing that remains to be done is for the village to receive a letter from HUD verifying the phone call he received Friday from the Department of Local Government Affairs, the HUD liaison.

LOCAL HOMEOWNERS may purchase flood insurance policies from any area property and casualty insurance agent or broker licensed to do business in Illinois. One to four-family dwellings and properties principally occupied by small businesses are the types of properties eligible for the coverage. Contents are also covered.

Flood loss claims will be processed the same as loss claims for other types of property insurance. A claim is filed with the local insurance agent or broker who sold the policy or with the local insurance company that serviced the policy.

The federal flood insurance policy covers losses resulting from the inundation of normally dry land areas from:

—The overflow of inland or tidal water;

—the unusual and rapid accumulation or runoff of surface waters from any source.

—Mudslides that are caused by accumulations of water on or under the ground.

The policy does not cover water damage that results principally from causes on the policy owner's property or within his control, or from a condition that does not cause general flooding in the area.

The subsidized premium rates may be purchased in amounts up to $17,500 for single family homes and up to $30,000 for two to four family homes and small businesses. Contents coverage at subsidized rates is available in amounts up to $5,000.

This Morning In Brief

The State

A commuter train loaded with rush hour passengers rammed into the rear of another packed train in Chicago, trapping dead and injured inside. Hours after the crash the Cook County morgue reported 45 bodies had been brought from the crash. At least 100 and possibly more were injured. The death toll was expected to rise as workmen pried the wreckage apart.

President Nixon's scheduled visit to Chicago today was canceled because of the Chicago commuter train wreck, the White House announced. Secretary of Transportation John Volpe flew to Chicago to head the investigation of the crash.

The Chicago Patrolmen's Association

and the Confederation of Police, representing more than half of Chicago's 13,500 policemen, are completing plans for a "blue flu" protest election day to back their demands for a contract. Many leaders, however, expressed belief that Mayor Daley would intervene and prevent the walkout.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Daniel J. Walker donated a pint of blood to aid victims of the Chicago commuter train crash and said he would forego "partisan" political statements for the day.

The Nation

President Nixon said he will sign into law a sweeping $3.3 billion a year increase in Social Security and welfare benefits affecting nearly a million widowed and disabled elderly persons. The bill, which will require sharply increased payroll taxes, replaced Nixon's proposed welfare reform that would have guaranteed an annual income of $2,400 for a family of four.

The United States repeated it will not sign its agreement with Hanoi in time to end the war in South Vietnam by tomorrow. The Viet Cong objected, but hinted negotiations would continue even if today's deadline is not met.

The World

The British government offered Northern Ireland the long-term option of remaining part of Britain or joining the Irish Republic, but left the decision up to the people.

2 Hospitals Urged In NW Suburbs

by STEVE BROWN

Recommendations for two hospitals to be built by 1975, coordinated with the development of medical office centers plus the immediate development of emergency medical treatment centers, were among the major items contained in the preliminary draft of health care needs for Northwest Cook County.

The study, conducted by the Northwest Cook County Health Care Needs Study Committee, was released yesterday.

The report, prepared by the consulting firm of Ernst and Ernst, recommends the construction of two hospitals, one a 300-bed facility to be located at Schaumburg and Barrington roads in Schaumburg Township. The second hospital, with a recommended size of 250 beds, is to be located near the intersection of Routes 59 and 22 north of Barrington.

THE 33-PAGE STUDY states that by constructing these two facilities the health care needs of the area will be adequately served through 1980.

Richard Kasten of the consulting firm, said the locations are to be considered general. He added these are based on result of analysis of projected population growth, existing medical referral patterns and travel patterns.

A completed study, including all statistical data, is expected to be released in about five weeks, Kasten said.

Kasten said that the proposed Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes Medical Center site near Roselle and Schaumburg roads, was not considered ideal because it is too close to Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

Both Henry J. Buhrman, the newly appointed director of the Schaumburg facility and Schaumburg Village Atty. Jack Siegal said they were "encouraged" by the report, citing a need for a hospital in Schaumburg.

Buhrman said that he and other officials of Presbyterian-St. Lukes will have to examine the report in detail before making further comments.

Two Accidents Reported Sunday In Buffalo Grove

Buffalo Grove police were kept busy early Sunday morning with two accidents at the south and north intersections of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads.

Police first charged a Wheeling woman with crossing the center line in an accident that injured her and a Buffalo Grove woman.

Nannette Nilson, 23, of 819 Valley Stream Dr., was charged after she reportedly struck a car driven by John Klotter, 23, of 946 Plum Grove Circle. Klotter's wife, Deborah, was injured in the crash. She and Miss Nilson were both taken to Northwest Community Hospital, where they were treated and released.

Police said the Klotter car was westbound on Dundee Rd. when the Nilson car, eastbound on Dundee Road, reportedly swerved to miss a car and hit the other auto.

MINUTES after the first crash police received a call of a hit and run accident at the corner of Dundee and north Arlington Heights roads. Buffalo Grove, with the aid of Wheeling police, arrested a Chicago man and charged him with two traffic violations in connection with the crash.

Police arrested Alfred Nolan, 45, of Chicago, on charges of leaving the scene of an accident and driving on a revoked license.

Police said Nolan allegedly struck a car driven by John Crump, 1131 Miller Dr., Buffalo Grove, and left the scene as Crump got out of his car. Crump reportedly told police the Nolan car was headed toward Wheeling.

A radio report with the description of the car went out to all area police, after which Wheeling police reported the car at a local food store. Police said the car matched Crump's description and was badly damaged in the front end. They also said parts of the Nolan car, found at the scene of the crash matched areas of Nolan's car.

Nolan told police he was not driving the car at the time of the accident, but that a female companion was at the wheel. However, police said he later changed his story and the unidentified woman was not charged.

Music used during both anniversary services also blended the old and new. The choir was accompanied by the organ in the church for the Liturgical Service while several young people provided guitar accompaniment to congregational hymns sung during the mass.

In a brief message following the communion portion of the chapel service, Cardinal Cody delivered best wishes and a blessing from Pope Paul VI.

The service ended with the congregation singing "America the Beautiful" in tribute, as Father Duffy said, "to the country where all of this has been possible."

Amvets Officers Are Sworn In

Federal Government Clears Way

Help For The Flood-Weary: Village OK'd For Insurance

by JILL BETTNER

For the first time, Buffalo Grove residents will soon be able to recoup some or all of their flood damage losses. Word was received Monday that the village has been approved for federally subsidized flood insurance.

Established under the Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Act of 1968, the National Flood Insurance Program provides limited amounts of flood insurance to homeowners through a federal subsidy.

In return for the subsidy the HUD act requires that state and local governments adopt and enforce land-use and control measures to guide future development of land in flood-prone areas, to avoid or reduce future flood damage.

BUFFALO GROVE is the ninth community in Illinois to be approved for the HUD program. Wheeling officials submitted their application to HUD Oct. 24 and expect to learn within the next two weeks whether they have been accepted. They have been working on it for the past several months.

The Buffalo Grove Village Board first began discussing the idea of obtaining federal flood insurance last June. Village Trustee Jim Shirley introduced the idea.

Village Mgr. Dan Larson said the only thing that remains to be done is for the village to receive a letter from HUD verifying the phone call he received Friday from the Department of Local Governmental Affairs, the HUD liaison.

LOCAL HOMEOWNERS may purchase flood insurance policies from any area property and casualty insurance agent or broker licensed to do business in Illinois. One to four-family dwellings and properties principally occupied by small businesses are the types of properties eligible for the coverage. Contents are also covered.

Flood loss claims will be processed the same as loss claims for other types of property insurance. A claim is filed with the local insurance agent or broker who sold the policy or with the local insurance company that serviced the policy.

The federal flood insurance policy covers losses resulting from the inundation of normally dry land areas from:

—The overflow of inland or tidal water;

—the unusual and rapid accumulation or runoff of surface waters from any source.

—Mudslides that are caused by accumulations of water on or under the ground.

The policy does not cover water damage that results principally from causes on the policy owner's property or within his control, or from a condition that does not cause general flooding in the area.

The subsidized premium rates may be purchased in amounts up to $17,500 for single family homes and up to $30,000 for two to four family homes and small businesses. Contents coverage at subsidized rates is available in amounts up to $5,000.

Wheeling Band Wins At UI

The Wheeling High School Marching Band overcame rainy weather Saturday to win top honors in the Illinois Marching Band Festival, sponsored by the University of Illinois at Champaign.

The band won first place in parade and field routines, competing against 10 other school bands in the same classification (Class AA large schools). The band also was named grand champion of both events, winning over 77 other bands participating in the festival.

The band's color guard and flag corps also won honors as the best in the competition.

Jack Williamson, director of the band, said this was the most important state competition the band has competed in. "This is the largest competition ever held in the state," he said. "Every band in the state was invited to attend."

He said the high school band competed in the festival last year, winning the parade contest but coming in third in the field routine.

THIS YEAR the band scored 98.5

points out of a possible 100 in the parade competition. It was judged on marching and maneuvering, music and showmanship. In the field routine, the band scored 96 points out of a possible 100 for the same categories. One official said the Wheeling band was "in a class by itself."

These scores brought Wheeling the grand championship honors.

Saturday night a contingent of police, firemen, and townspeople met the returning band as it left the tollway, and escorted the buses to the high school. Village Pres. Ted Scanlon and other local officials greeted the triumphant band members.

Williamson said there was also a large number of parents and band alumni who attended the competition in Champaign. He said many of the old band members hitch-hiked, bused and drove to see the band compete.

The band's most recent victory was in international competition in Winnipeg, Canada.

HIS EMINENCE John Cardinal Cody, Archbishop of Chicago, presided at special services Sunday at St. Mary's Church in Buffalo Grove. Elements of the past and present were combined in the celebration that commemorated the 125th anniversary of the first Mass said in the area.

Cardinal Cody Leads St. Mary's 125th Anniversary Service

by JILL BETTNER

Led by an honor guard of plumed Knights of Columbus, the procession of finely robed priests moved slowly past the crowd gathered at the entrance of St. Mary's Church in Buffalo Grove.

The parishioners of the church and an array of dignitaries headed by His Eminence, John Cardinal Cody, Archbishop of Chicago, joined Sunday in a special service commemorating the 125th anniversary of the first mass in this area.

THE BEAUTIFUL old Gothic church stands in the very heart of the community as a reminder that this fast-growing suburb did not spring up overnight. Built at a cost of $29,000, St. Mary's was dedicated in 1869 in a service that was probably similar to the one on Sunday.

One of the differences between that first service and the anniversary service is the size of the congregation. Members of the 70 families who were the original parishioners of St. Mary's were the first to sit in the pews of the new church. Today, there are 1,350 families on the church roll.

The mass Sunday was said in the chapel of the school finished in 1968, an ironic reversal of roles considering that until 1912, parish children attended classes in the church.

The Catholic Church itself has changed a lot since 1869, too. Even the non-Catholic guests at the anniversary service, including Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, were easily able to follow the mass, now said in English.

Before the mass, the five con-celebrants conducted a liturgical service in the church, during which the choir sang an old Latin hymn, identified with the liturgy of the 1800s. The procession then moved to the cemetery, where many of St. Mary's first members are buried.

"GLORY, GLORY, hallelujah. His truth is marching on!" sang the 700 children of St. Mary's School, who formed a path for the procession to the cemetery.

Shivering a little in the cold gray chill of late afternoon, Cardinal Cody offered a prayer for the dead and blessed the graves.

Settled in the warmth of the new chapel in the school, a congregation of about 200 listened as Monsignor Harry Koenig, pastor of St. Joseph's Church in Libertyville and Vicar of Vicariate I, outlined the history of St. Mary's, beginning with the first mass said in 1847 in the home of John Simon Hennemann, which stood on the Lake-Cook county line. The Hennemanns, among the first settlers of the area, allowed their home to be used as a church until a regular building could be built in 1853.

The monsignor concluded his sermon with a prayer for "a future as great and prosperous as St. Mary's past has been."

Pastor Emeritus George Ballwebber, former pastor of St. Mary's for 25 years, was one of the five concelebrants of the mass. Father Donald Duffy, the present pastor celebrated the mass. Associate pastor Father Edwin Pacocha joined him, along with Father Menceslaus Madaj, of St. Mary of the Lake Seminary and Father Simon Kenny, prior, Carme-

This Morning In Brief

The State

A commuter train loaded with rush hour passengers rammed into the rear of another packed train in Chicago, trapping dead and injured inside. Hours after the crash the Cook County morgue reported 45 bodies had been brought from the crash. At least 100 and possibly more were injured. The death toll was expected to rise as workmen pried the wreckage apart.

President Nixon's scheduled visit to Chicago today was canceled because of the Chicago commuter train wreck, the White House announced. Secretary of Transportation John Volpe flew to Chicago to head the investigation of the crash.

The Chicago Patrolmen's Association

and the Confederation of Police, representing more than half of Chicago's 13,500 policemen, are completing plans for a "blue flu" protest election day to back their demands for a contract. Many leaders, however, expressed belief that Mayor Daley would intervene and prevent the walkout.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Daniel J. Walker donated a pint of blood to aid victims of the Chicago commuter train crash and said he would forego "partisan" political statements for the day.

The Nation

President Nixon said he will sign into law a sweeping $5.3 billion a year increase in Social Security and welfare benefits affecting nearly a million widowed and disabled elderly persons. The bill, which will require sharply increased payroll taxes, replaced Nixon's proposed welfare reform that would have guaranteed an annual income of $2,400 for a family of four.

The United States repeated it will not sign its agreement with Hanoi in time to end the war in South Vietnam by tomorrow. The Viet Cong objected, but hinted negotiations would continue even if today's deadline is not met.

The World

The British government offered Northern Ireland the long-term option of remaining part of Britain or joining the Irish Republic, but left the decision up to the people.

Canadians voted to test Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's 4½-year mandate in a federal election whose outcome could mean minority rule for Trudeau's Liberal Party.

The War

With both sides trying to seize as much territory as possible before a cease-fire, South Vietnamese forces recaptured a district capital deep behind Communist lines and Communist attacks throughout South Vietnam exceeded the 100 mark for the fifth consecutive day. Increased fighting was reported in Laos and Cambodia.

The Weather

Temperatures from around the nation:

Miami Beach	87	70
New Orleans	78	59

Phoenix	79	52
San Francisco	63	52

The Market

A generally uninspired stock market closed with a small loss in slow trading as investors awaited the signing of a Vietnam peace pact. The Dow Jones Average closed at 946.42, unchanged for the day. Declines led advances, 721 to 677. Volume was 11,620,000 shares compared with 15,470,000 the previous session. Prices closed slightly lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

2 Hospitals Urged In NW Suburbs

by STEVE BROWN
Recommendations for two hospitals to be built by 1975, coordinated with the development of medical office centers plus the immediate development of emergency medical treatment centers, were among the major items contained in the preliminary draft of health care needs for Northwest Cook County.

The study, conducted by the Northwest Cook County Health Care Needs Study Committee, was released yesterday.

The report, prepared by the consulting firm of Ernst and Ernst, recommends the construction of two hospitals, one a 300-bed facility to be located at Schaumburg and Barrington roads in Schaumburg Township. The second hospital, with a recommended size of 250 beds, is to be located near the intersection of Routes 59 and 22 north of Barrington.

THE 33-PAGE STUDY states that by constructing these two facilities the health care needs of the area will be adequately served through 1980.

Richard Kasten of the consulting firm, said the locations are to be considered general. He added these are based on result of analysis of projected population growth, existing medical referral patterns and travel patterns.

A completed study, including all statistical data, is expected to be released in about five weeks, Kasten said.

Kasten said that the proposed Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes Medical Center site near Roselle and Schaumburg roads, was not considered ideal because it is too close to Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

Both Henry J. Buhrman, the newly appointed director of the Schaumburg facility and Schaumburg Village Atty. Jack Siegal said they were "encouraged" by the report, citing a need for a hospital in Schaumburg.

Buhrman said that he and other officials of Presbyterian-St. Lukes will have to examine the report in detail before making further comments.

BOTH MEN SAID they did not feel this report would deter the plans for the Schaumburg hospital.

"We have an agreement with Presbyterian-St. Lukes and the only way it would not be fulfilled is if we could not raise the necessary money," Siegal said. About $4 million will be needed to be raised in this area for the proposed $12 million facility, according to the agreement with Presbyterian-St. Lukes.

Dr. Sanford Block, representing a group of physicians who have announced plans to build a 200-bed hospital in western portion of Hoffman Estates, said the findings of the study merely confirmed the research his group did about one year ago.

"This may accelerate our plans," Block said.

Dr. Sheldon Waldstein, executive director of the North Suburban Association for Health Resources, said the completion of the study represents nearly two years work by the committee.

Two Accidents Reported Sunday In Buffalo Grove

Buffalo Grove police were kept busy early Sunday morning with two accidents at the south and north intersections of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads.

Police first charged a Wheeling woman with crossing the center line in an accident that injured her and a Buffalo Grove woman.

Nannette Nilson, 23, of 819 Valley Stream Dr., was charged after she reportedly struck a car driven by John Klotter, 23, of 946 Plum Grove Circle. Klotter's wife, Deborah, was injured in the crash. She and Miss Nilson were both taken to Northwest Community Hospital, where they were treated and released.

Police said the Klotter car was westbound on Dundee Rd. when the Nilson car, eastbound on Dundee Road, reportedly swerved to miss a cat and hit the other auto.

MINUTES after the first crash police received a call of a hit and run accident at the corner of Dundee and north Arlington Heights roads. Buffalo Grove, with the aid of Wheeling police, arrested a Chicago man and charged him with two traffic violations in connection with the crash.

Police arrested Alfred Nolan, 45, of Chicago, on charges of leaving the scene of an accident and driving on a revoked license.

Police said Nolan allegedly struck a car driven by John Crump, 1191 Miller Dr., Buffalo Grove, and left the scene as Crump got out of his car. Crump reportedly told police the Nolan car was headed toward Wheeling.

A radio report with the description of the car went out to all area police, after which Wheeling police reported the car at a local food store. Police said the car matched Crump's description and was badly damaged in the front end. They also said parts of the Nolan car, found at the scene of the crash matched areas of Nolan's car.

Nolan told police he was not driving the car at the time of the accident, but that a female companion was at the wheel. However, police said he later changed his story and the unidentified woman was not charged.

lite Fathers.

SEVERAL MEMBERS of the congregation participated in the service that combined elements of the old and new, signifying the development of the church. During the offertory portion of the mass, the first baptismal record was brought forward, along with items showing the progression of education during the church's history.

Gifts were brought to the altar by families representing the fifth generation to attend St. Mary's and the newest family to be registered in the parish. During the mass, a candle was lighted to represent all those who now belong to the church. Music used during both anniversary services also blended the old and new. The choir was accompanied by the organ in the church for the Liturgical Service while several young people provided guitar accompaniment to congregational hymns sung during the mass.

In a brief message following the communion portion of the chapel service, Cardinal Cody delivered best wishes and a blessing from Pope Paul VI.

The service ended with the congregation singing "America the Beautiful" in tribute, as Father Duffy said, "to the country where all of this has been possible."

PROPERTY VALUES

It is the duty of the assessor to assess all taxable property on a uniform basis of valuation so that the assessed full values of the various properties are a just and equal assessment of such properties according to law. The assessment roll, recording the values of property determines only the distribution of the total tax load among the individual property owners. The Assessor of Cook County has no control over the amount of taxes levied, nor the public expenditures. The amount of these assessed values does not determine the amount of your tax bill. The established tax rate does that. The assessor does not make the rate, he merely finds the value of your property.

LEGAL NOTICE

BARRINGTON TOWNSHIP

1972 Quadrennial Assessment List

OFFICIAL ASSESSMENT LIST

This Publication List is the official notice to property owners of the 1972 Quadrennial Assessments of Land and Improvements in the Township of Barrington. The 1972 assessments as published herein are those determined by the Assessor of Cook County.

LAND VALUATIONS

The land valuations as set forth are the 1972 appraised full values of land per front foot for all city and suburban lots - or per square foot or per acre for industrial and farm lands. The determination of full value of a rectangular lot is obtained by multiplying the unit front foot value of the lot by the number of feet frontage, modified by the shape, depth, corner or other influences which affect any individual lot or tract of land.

BUILDING VALUATIONS

Similar development of sound data and procedures were used in valuing buildings under the conditions of January 1, 1972. Simplification of the rules and careful revision and application of unit building costs based on sound data, which included determination of reproduction cost (new) of different types of buildings with allowances for age, condition and obsolescence produced equitable and uniform assessment of buildings of all classes. Some building values are partial assessments based on occupancy for a fraction of the year. They will be fully assessed for following years.

PROPERTY VALUES

The figures listed herein for the lands and improvements are the assessed full values of such property as of January 1, 1972, as determined by the Assessor of Cook County.

It is the duty of the assessor to assess all taxable property on a uniform basis of valuation so that the assessed values of the various properties are a just and equal assessment of such properties according to law. The assessment record recording the values of property determines only the distribution of the total tax load among the individual property owners. The Assessor of Cook County has no control over the amount of taxes levied, nor the public expenditures. The amount of these assessed values does not determine the amount of your tax bill. The established tax rate does that. The assessor does not make the rate, he merely finds the value of your property.

PERMANENT REAL ESTATE INDEX NUMBER

The permanent real estate index number system was designed for the purpose of simplifying the very complex assessing, tax collecting and tax distribution problems in Cook County, Illinois. In this system areas and sub-areas are established. Generally, areas substitute for townships and sub-areas represent sections. These sub-areas are divided into blocks, as follows:

Blocks 100 to 199 are located in N. W. Quarter.
Blocks 200 to 299 are located in N. E. Quarter.
Blocks 300 to 399 are located in S. W. Quarter.
Blocks 400 to 499 are located in S. E. Quarter.

-INFORMATION ON ASSESSMENTS

Any property owner who has any question in regard to the assessment of his property should inquire at the office of the Assessor of Cook County, Room 312, in the County Building, Clark, Washington and Randolph Streets, Chicago, information on the above, as well as the general basis and methods of determining the assessment of the land and improvements thereon will be furnished without cost.

Combined Appeal Drive At $6,000; Goal Is $15,000

Funds contributed to the Community Combined Appeal drive in Palatine have reached the $6,000 mark, and organizers are optimistic that the $15,000 goal will be met.

Though the fund drive unofficially ends today, donations will be accepted through the end of the year, according to drive president Charles H. Foss.

Foss pointed out that the contributions are running ahead of last year's pace, when most donations were received in the months of November and December.

He speculated that many residents are prompted to contribute as the end of the year nears, and they realize that donations are tax deductible.

John Minor, treasurer of the fund drive, estimated that $5,000 of the funds received so far have been from individuals, and $1,000 from businesses.

He too was optimistic that the goal would be reached.

Last year, $14,529 was raised, some $3,000 short of the goal. Some 65 per cent of the contributions came from residents, and the balance from businesses, municipal employees and school employees.

Recipients of the charity are: Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Countryside Center, United Servicemen's Organization, Salvation Army welfare fund and community service, Homemakers, Santa Teresita Church day care center, Northwest Mental Health, Clearbrook Center and Camp Reinberg.

Contributions can be sent to Post Office Box 241, Palatine.

COUCHES and a wide assortment of reading materials have been set up in the intermediate multi-age classrooms at Virginia Lake School in Palatine. The students, with guidance from their teacher, plan their own class schedules and are able to pursue special interest areas.

Township Issue Meeting Held Behind Closed Doors

Lawyers for three area townships and the League of Women Voters met in closed session yesterday with Illinois Supreme Court Justice Daniel P. Ward to determine if the LWV appeal should be heard before the state court.

Justice Ward is considering their arguments before making a decision. If the Supreme Court doesn't hear the appeal, the case will move to the Intermediate Appellate Court.

The LWV appeal was set in motion

Wednesday after Circuit Court Judge Harry G. Comerford ruled that an election to abolish township government could not be held, based on township arguments that no legal notice had been given within the state's 20-day deadline.

Maine, Palatine and Niles townships are involved in the current LWV appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court.

The original lawsuit was filed by the LWV against officials for the three townships in September. The township argument about legal notice came during a preliminary hearing before the actual issues in the lawsuit could be heard.

JUDGE COMERFORD'S ruling legally ends the case unless a higher court reverses his judgment.

A Northfield Township appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court was rejected yesterday, sending the issue to the Appellate Court level.

Justice Ward's decision on Palatine, Maine and Niles isn't expected until later this week.

Township officials say the referendum shouldn't be held because the state legislature has not provided an alternate form of government to take over for the township if it is abolished. But LWV members claim that the legislature will act after the referendum passes, and local municipalities or the county could take over.

Voter petitions gathered by the LWV requesting the referendum were submitted to the individual townships, who in turn either rejected the referendum or refused to consider it. Lawsuits were filed three days after Palatine Township auditors rejected the referendum in late September.

Any court action will have to come soon, with the Nov. 7 election just eight days away.

The state LWV has officially opposed the township form of government, saying it is archaic and outdated, particularly in highly-populated incorporated areas.

2 Hospitals Urged In NW Suburbs

by STEVE BROWN

Recommendations for two hospitals to be built by 1975, coordinated with the development of medical office centers plus the immediate development of emergency medical treatment centers, were among the major items contained in the preliminary draft of health care needs for Northwest Cook County.

The study, conducted by the Northwest Cook County Health Care Needs Study Committee, was released yesterday.

The report, prepared by the consulting firm of Ernst and Ernst, recommends the construction of two hospitals, one a 300-bed facility to be located at Schaumburg and Barrington roads in Schaumburg Township. The second hospital, with a recommended size of 250 beds, is to be located near the intersection of Routes 59 and 22 north of Barrington.

THE 33-PAGE STUDY states that by constructing these two facilities the health care needs of the area will be adequately served through 1980.

Richard Kasten of the consulting firm, said the locations are to be considered general. He added these are based on result of analysis of projected population growth, existing medical referral patterns and travel patterns.

A completed study, including all statistical data, is expected to be released in about five weeks, Kasten said.

Kasten said that the proposed Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes Medical Center site near Roselle and Schaumburg roads, was not considered ideal because it is too close to Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

Both Henry J. Buhrman, the newly appointed director of the Schaumburg facility and Schaumburg Village Atty. Jack Siegal said they were "encouraged" by the report, citing a need for a hospital in Schaumburg.

Buhrman said that he and other officials of Presbyterian-St. Lukes will have to examine the report in detail before making further comments.

BOTH MEN SAID they did not feel this report would deter the plans for the Schaumburg hospital.

"We have an agreement with Presbyterian-St. Lukes and the only way it would not be fulfilled is if we could not raise the necessary money," Siegal said.

About $4 million will be needed to be raised in this area for the proposed $12 million facility, according to the agreement with Presbyterian-St. Lukes.

Dr. Sanford Block, representing a group of physicians who have announced plans to build a 200-bed hospital in western portion of Hoffman Estates, said the findings of the study merely confirmed the research his group did about one year ago.

"This may accelerate our plans," Block said.

Dr. Sheldon Waldstein, executive director of the North Suburban Association for Health Resources, said the completion of the study represents nearly two years work by the committee.

Absentee Ballot Deadline Near

Registered voters who want to cast absentee ballots for next week's election have only a few days left in which to do so.

Residents who have already received absentee ballots must complete them and have them notarized and postmarked by midnight next Monday.

Requests for absentee ballots must be in the hands of the Cook County clerk's office by midnight tonight.

Absentee ballots will not be mailed to any address in Cook County, but only to county residents who are temporarily living outside of the area, such as service men or students.

Another alternative for voters who will not be able to vote on Nov. 7 is to cast their ballots at the clerk's office.

The office, at 118 N. Clark St., Chicago, Room 402, will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. today through Friday and from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday.

A spokesman for the election division in the clerk's office said voters whose eligibility was challenged in the canvass earlier this month but who signed the forms and mailed them to the clerk's office will be able to vote.

The challenged voters will not receive special notice of their eligibility, he said.

This Morning In Brief

The State

A commuter train loaded with rush hour passengers rumbled into the rear of another packed train in Chicago, trapping dead and injured inside. Hours after the crash the Cook County morgue reported 45 bodies had been brought from the crash. At least 100 and possibly more were injured. The death toll was expected to rise as workmen pried the wreckage apart.

President Nixon's scheduled visit to Chicago today was canceled because of the Chicago commuter train wreck, the White House announced. Secretary of Transportation John Volpe flew to Chicago to head the investigation of the crash.

The Chicago Patrolmen's Association

and the Confederation of Police, representing more than half of Chicago's 13,500 policemen, are completing plans for a "blue flu" protest election day to back their demands for a contract. Many leaders, however, expressed belief that Mayor Daley would intervene and prevent the walkout.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Daniel J. Walker donated a pint of blood to aid victims of the Chicago commuter train crash and said he would forego "partisan" political statements for the day.

The Nation

President Nixon said he will sign into law a sweeping $5.3 billion a year increase in Social Security and welfare benefits affecting nearly a million widowed and disabled elderly persons. The bill, which will require sharply increased payroll taxes, replaced Nixon's proposed welfare reform that would have guaranteed an annual income of $2,400 for a family of four.

The United States repeated it will not sign its agreement with Hanoi in time to end the war in South Vietnam by tomorrow. The Viet Cong objected, but hinted negotiations would continue even if today's deadline is not met.

The British government offered Northern Ireland the long-term option of remaining part of Britain or joining the Irish Republic, but left the decision up to the people.

Canadians voted to test Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's 4½-year mandate in a federal election whose outcome could mean minority rule for Trudeau's Liberal Party.

The War

With both sides trying to seize as much territory as possible before a cease-fire, South Vietnamese forces recaptured a district capital deep behind Communist lines and Communist attacks throughout South Vietnam exceeded the 100 mark for the fifth consecutive day. Increased fighting was reported in Laos and Cambodia.

The Market

A generally uninspired stock market closed with a small loss in slow trading as investors awaited the signing of a Vietnam peace pact. The Dow Jones Average closed at 946.42, unchanged for the day. Declines led advances, 721 to 677. Volume was 11,820,000 shares compared with 15,470,000 the previous session. Prices closed slightly lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

WILDLIFE ARTIST Gene Wasmer of Arlington Heights spends many a winter night in the basement of his home doing what he likes best — painting game birds. And though Wasmer may spend little more than a dozen hours on this painting, he may have taken years to develop the idea. Wasmer is very particular about detail, and he has a clump of weeds in his studio for reference.

From A Hunter's Palette

Gene Paints The Outdoors

by DAVID MAHSMAN

To Gene Wasmer, there's no feeling like the feeling he gets watching a flock of ducks or geese gliding over a lake, taking off in a flurry of flapping wings or simply flying in formation.

That feeling is hard to explain, Wasmer says. So he follows the old adage that one picture is worth a thousand words.

Wasmer is a painter. His specialty is birds, game birds in particular. And in his paintings, he tries to get across to the viewer something of the thrill he experiences while out hunting or just bird-watching.

During the day, Wasmer heads up the art department of General American Transportation Co.'s research division in Niles. At night, he returns to his home at 15 S. Orchard St., Arlington Heights. And in a small, cramped corner of his workshop in the basement, Wasmer relaxes by painting his loved ducks and geese.

Although it may seem strange that a man who works with art all day would relax by painting, Wasmer says it isn't strange at all. His bird paintings are fine art, not at all like the work he does at the office, he says.

WASMER'S HOBBY is the natural combination of his love of art and love of the outdoors. As a boy growing up in Murphysboro, the small-town county seat of Jackson County in southern Illinois, Wasmer enjoyed plenty of time outdoors — and there was plenty of the outdoors to enjoy.

"Birds have always fascinated me, just their ability to fly more than anything," Wasmer said in his slow, quiet manner. Wasmer's paintings reflect his statement. He usually paints birds in flight.

And when Wasmer paints a bird in flight, he wants to get it right. He said he spends a lot of time outdoors, just looking through his binoculars. He also takes photographs and keeps a notebook of when and where he sighted a particular bird.

Wasmer is a stickler for detail. A clump of foxtail grass sits in the corner of his small studio so that Wasmer can get the detail right on the painting he's working on now. He also uses "stuffed" birds for models. Wasmer is a taxidermist as well as painter and photographer.

Because of all the research that goes into one of Wasmer's paintings, each painting represents more time than just painting hours. He said that his current painting will take some 13 hours to complete. But a painting may start in Wasmer's head years before he is ready to put it on canvas. For example, Wasmer did some paintings in 1965 of scenes he remembered from his Air Force days in Alaska — in the early '60s.

AND WASMER is not easily satisfied with a painting. He says he will keep working on it until it is right — or he will throw it away or hide it.

It's only natural to ask a bird painter his opinion of the work done by John J. Audubon, the father of bird painting. Wasmer said that he thinks Audubon's paintings were "great for his day," but that they are unnatural and stiff.

"I hesitate to criticize Audubon, but vitality seems to be lacking (in his paintings)," Wasmer said, looking somewhat embarrassed.

Wasmer began to specialize in bird paintings in 1967. He cannot remember how many he has done since then, but he says he is still relatively new in a field, a field that is highly competitive.

To be very successful at selling paintings, Wasmer says a painter has to build a reputation, something he claims he hasn't done yet.

But at least one of Wasmer's paintings has been circulated nationally. A painting done by Wasmer of a flock of Canada geese flying over a cornfield — a scene inspired by Horseshoe Lake in Southern Illinois — appeared as the cover of a recent issue of Ducks Unlimited. The magazine is the journal of the 60,000-member conservation society of the same name. Wasmer is also a member.

EIGHT OR NINE other Wasmer originals hang in his home, and another three are for sale at Abercrombie and Fitch in Chicago. Wasmer said that as soon as he builds up his supply of paintings — he will paint more during the winter months — he plans to enter exhibits of wildlife paintings. Other paintings will be auctioned to raise funds for Ducks Unlimited.

Wasmer seems to have a greater goal in mind than simply making money off his hobby, though.

"It's a shame the way some wildlife is disappearing," Wasmer mused. "Maybe if more people get an appreciation of its beauty, it will better their chance for survival."

Yearbook Wins Award

The 1972 Fremd High School yearbook has been awarded a Golden Eagle Award for excellence by the Northwest Illinois School Press Association.

The "Valhalla" also won individual blue ribbons for cover, coverage, creativity and graphics. It was one of seven yearbooks to receive the Golden Eagle.

Consumer Avenue Parking Prohibited

Parking will soon be prohibited along Consumer Avenue in Palatine, near the new sports complex.

Parking on the east side of the street was banned several months ago by the Palatine Village Board. The trustees followed that action this week by prohibiting parking on the west side of Consumer Avenue.

Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun said a spot check by the police department indicated "a considerable traffic hazard" in terms of driver visibility and traffic movement because of the parked cars.

He noted many of the cars parked on Consumer Avenue bear dealer license plates, belonging to the nearby Arlington Park Dodge.

The west side parking ban will become effective with its publication.

Court Decision Due Soon On Building

An appellate court decision is anticipated soon in the dispute over whether a 78-acre tract on Palatine Road in Hoffman Estates will support 1,352 apartments, or single family homes instead.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert argued on appeal yesterday morning asking a panel of three judges to reverse a Circuit Court order of June 21, 1971, directing the village to grant building permits for the apartments.

A decision on the appeal is to be delivered later, at an unspecified time. Attorneys had submitted written briefs prior to yesterday's oral arguments.

Supporting Hofert in his case was J. William Bralithwaite, representing owners of surrounding property. Arguing against the reversal was Robert Haskins, representing owners of the tract who include Chicago Aldermen Thomas Keane and Paul Wigoda; George Keane, Cook County zoning board chairman; Frank Chesrow, former Metropolitan Sanitary District president, and David Chesrow, his brother.

THE SUIT involves a land parcel between Palatine and Bradwell roads, west of the Howie-In-The-Hills property, and in the extreme north end of the village. It originally was zoned B-2, or business.

In April 1970, Haskins initiated a petition for rezoning to multiple family for the $15 million apartment complex of 28 buildings, each four stories tall.

The following August the village rezoned the property for single family homes on minimum lot sizes of 10,000 square feet.

Yesterday's arguments focused on existing structures and zoning around the site, the density of surrounding areas as compared with that proposed by the land trust, the compliance of zoning with the village's master plan and the impact of development on sewer and water facilities and traffic.

Hofert pointed out specific tracts around the 78 acres, and said the overall density of the surrounding acreage is five units per acre, with some parcels ranging as low as one per acre. Much of the area is not yet developed, and now is cultivated farmland, he said.

BUT DEVELOPMENT is moving toward the area, he said. Part of the undeveloped land is Howie-In-The-Hills, which has been in a federal receivership and unavailable for development for a number of years. With the announcement of plans for Woodfield in Schaumburg, said Hofert, the village knew the 78 acres would not be developed as business property. But development with 17 or 18 units per acre, the density with 1,352 apartments, would mean "staggering loss" of single family homes for the village, said Hofert.

The apartment complex also depreciates the value of surrounding land, said Bralithwaite. He listed the values of some parcels, noting a 122-acre site valued at $900,000, an 80-acre site valued at $600,000, and a 15-lot development, on which homes are planned in a price range of $70,000 to $90,000 each.

Hofert said sewer and water service would be provided for the development, either as apartments or single family homes. The impact of the apartment plan on traffic would be tremendous, doubling use of Bradwell Road by six or seven times.

HASKINS SAID the village had admitted it would not be able to provide sewer and water service to the development "for several years," and said the land trust had offered to pay for a community well and sanitary sewage treatment plant for the project. Few single family homes currently exist in the area, and little building has proceeded on adjoining land. Depreciation of land value for surrounding owners "is pure conjecture," Haskins said in response to a question from the court.

Hearing the case were First District Illinois Appellate Court Judges Mayer Goldberg, Joseph Burke and Henry Dieringer.

Battle Of Wellington Was Won On Eton Playing Fields

by MARY HOULIHAN

The enormous, gray castle of the evil Mordor stands on a high ridge in the distance. Behind the castle walls — hundreds of footmen, cavalry and trolls — all soldiers of the evil Mordor, poised for battle. In the dense forest to the north — the opposing forces, the good people of the west await.

"My advice to you guys is retreat and save face," a voice from above bellowed. "Ha! The side of evil will let those reinforcements," the other rejoins.

A reenactment of a famous historical battle? Not quite, but almost. Though the soldiers and trees are plastic, the strategy is as technical as a real battle and in many cases, involves almost as much brain power.

This battle is a military game, played by members of the Mount Prospect Military Gaming club, which meets every other week in the skylight room of the Mount Prospect Country Club. And though the game played here was fictional, many military games are based on actual historical battles.

Military men have used war games to map out the strategy for upcoming battles for centuries. Napoleon prepared many of his battles beforehand in military games. The Japanese raid on Pearl Harbor in 1941 was planned out beforehand in a military game, as was the German invasion of France in World War II.

THE FIRST commercial military game was produced in 1959 by the Avalon Hill Co. A publisher of adult games Avalon Hill began producing printed war games as a side business. "Their forte was making adult-type games," Peter Mazzenga, a leader of the Mount Prospect group, explained.

It's estimated today that there are more than 10,000 military gaming enthusiasts throughout the country. "Strategy and Tactics," a quarterly magazine devoted to military gaming, today has a circulation of 35,000. "When they first started printing military games, they didn't realize they were making a hobby. The whole thing just blossomed into something fantastic," Mazzenga explained.

At the Mount Prospect Country Club, watching a game for the first time, one tends to become highly intimidated. There's a lot of talk about ratios and missile ranges and road bonuses. Imagining yourself playing reminds one a little of waiting to be clobbered by a wealthy apartment owner on Monopoly's Boardwalk and Park Place.

Despite the apparent difficulty of the game, however, almost anyone can play with a little practice. "Anyone who plays should have an orderly mind, but that is about all that is important," Tony Adams, founder of the Mount Prospect club, explained.

Before the game begins, players choose sides. Equipment is doled out — soldiers, including footmen and cavalry men, tanks and extras such as fortresses, castles, trees, bushes, sponges for mountains and masking tape to make the roads.

To determine which force moves first and what casualties they inflict, six or seven dice are rolled. Avalon Hill has set up a ratio rulebook to establish what action the roll of the die determines. For instance, in a contest between two light foot soldiers, two sixes rolled on the dice determines that the player levels six men from the other side. Rubber bands are tied around the six to show that they are killed. Then when the opponent rolls the die, whatever he rolls determines what kind of damage he inflicts to the first side. A game takes about two hours to play.

PLANNING A military game depends on the type of game being used. Board games, already planned as far as strategy and type of battle, are the easiest. The miniature games, in which players create their own game with their own plastic soldiers is a lot harder. This type of game requires from four to six hours to plan, Mazzenga said.

Spartan International, publishers of "Strategy and Tactics," sponsors regular matches between military games four times a year. "They usually match you up with someone of similar ability and you start the game with your opponent by mail," Tony Adams, founder of the Mount Prospect club, explained.

"The rules are standardized by the Avalon Hill Co. which puts out the games and all arguments are settled by the international organization (Spartan)," Adams said.

In addition to the quarterly matches, Spartan also sponsors a convention every year. The east coast meeting is held in the battleship Massachusetts; the convention in the west near the University of Southern California.

In Mount Prospect, the military gaming club has about 15 regular members. Eight of the members are registered with Spartan International. The chapter holds a meeting every two weeks, usually in the skylight room of the country club. "Anyone interested is welcome at our meetings, either to participate or just to see what we do," Adams said.

Park, School District Agree

The Rolling Meadows Park District has entered into a two-year agreement with Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15.

Under the terms of the agreement, the park district will have priority use of school facilities for recreation programs at no cost to the park district during the week.

In return, the park district has agreed to plow snow in the parking lots at the six Dist. 15 schools in Rolling Meadows during the winter. During the summer the park district will be responsible for mowing the six school grounds, turf grooming and maintaining established ball diamonds.

This type of reciprocal arrangement has been used for several years. The major difference this year is the park district will not be responsible for shoveling snow from the sidewalks leading to the schools, but will include Willow Bend School in the agreement.

Reading Program To Be Explained

The Title I Reading Program in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 will be explained to parents Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Stuart Paddock School in Palatine.

Parents with children in the reading program are invited to attend. Slides of students working during the day will be shown and students will also be present to demonstrate how they use special equipment and materials to help them with reading.

Rummage, Bake Sale

Girl Scout Troop 290 of Virginia Lake School in Palatine will hold a rummage and bake sale Thursday and Friday at 707 Stark Dr., Palatine.

The profits will be used for the girls' spring campout.

Art Show To Benefit Little City Children

Works of art by international artists will be shown in a benefit for Little City, the residential training center in Palatine for mentally handicapped and blind retarded children.

The exhibit will be open at L'Affaire Des Arts Gallery, 1825 N. Lincoln Plaza, Chicago, from noon to 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Ranging in price from $15 to $2,500, art work will be offered in oils, watercolors, etchings and lithographs. Artists represented in the exhibit include Marc Chagall, Pablo Picasso, George Braque, Salvador Dali, Johnny Friedlaender and Alexander Calder.

Cheese and wine will be served to visitors.

Little City celebrates its 13th anniversary this season.

Village Opposes Recessed Driveways

The Palatine Village Board has officially gone on record as encouraging the elimination of recessed driveways in areas of town that are subject to flooding.

The trustees unanimously passed a resolution last week expressing its intent to grant variations sought to eliminate recessed driveways and to refund the $75 petition filing fee if the variation is granted.

The trustees had indicated on previous occasions that they oppose the driveways that slant from the sidewalk level down toward a garage, because they are conducive to flooding.

The resolution did not indicate what the trustees would consider an appropriate means of eliminating such driveways, but trustees earlier had said that they believe the driveways should be filled in and another driveway and garage built around the side of the house.

Estimated cost of this type of work is $4,000.

City Wins Battle To Be Included On Illinois Map

Even though the election still is a week away, one local campaign has already emerged a winner, namely the one urging the state to include Rolling Meadows on the official 1973 state map of Illinois.

Rotary Club Pres. Billy McMinn, unofficial chairman of the campaign, received official confirmation of the victory yesterday in a copy of a letter from Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie to Mayor Roland Meyer. The letter said Ogilvie has "instructed the Illinois Department of Transportation to include Rolling Meadows on both sides (the entire view of the state and the blowup of the Chicago area) of the official map."

The letter said that "the size and importance of Rolling Meadows merited its inclusion on the map."

"I called the governor's office," McMinn said yesterday, "and his secretary told me I should be receiving the letter shortly. When I picked up my mail, I found a copy of the letter waiting. 'This is a complete about-face from what we've been told,' McMinn said happily. 'At least he's (Ogilvie) committed himself.'"

McMinn said the tone of Ogilvie's letter has left no doubts in his mind now that the city will appear on the map. "He could have said 'I support your effort' or 'I will recommend or do what I can to help," but he comes out and says he's instructing the department to include Rolling Meadows on the map."

The victory marks the end of efforts by local government, legislators, citizens, and clubs to get the city's name inscribed on the map. The city has always been confined to the regional enlargement map of the Chicago area because officials said the complete map didn't have room to include the city.

Following the example of Palatine, where a letter-writing campaign last year succeeded in getting that community placed on the map, the chamber of commerce several months ago began an effort to get residents to write to Springfield to convince officials to change their minds about Rolling Meadows. Most of the officials replies from Springfield, including those sent to State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, said it was unlikely anything could be done to put the city on the map.

McMinn made inquiries to the governor's office seeking to enlist Ogilvie's support, but admitted that if approval did not come before Nov. 7, the city would likely be doomed to another year of anonymity.

"There are a lot of things that were involved, and probably that's why an election year was one reason we succeeded," McMinn conceded. "But probably the main reason was the concerned people writing to the state. I don't think any one individual had the power to convince Springfield alone."

"It's a pretty big thing for the chamber and for the city," Chamber of Commerce secretary Betty Hawes said. "It's a big thing for us because we started the effort."

The map should be ready for publication on or around Jan. 1, according to the Ogilvie letter.

2 Hospitals Urged In NW Suburbs

by STEVE BROWN

Recommendations for two hospitals to be built by 1975, coordinated with the development of medical office centers, plus the immediate development of emergency medical treatment centers, were among the major items contained in the preliminary draft of health care needs for Northwest Cook County.

The study, conducted by the Northwest Cook County Health Care Needs Study Committee, was released yesterday.

The report, prepared by the consulting firm of Ernst and Ernst, recommends the construction of two hospitals, one a 300-bed facility to be located at Schaumburg and Barrington roads in Schaumburg Township. The second hospital, with a recommended size of 250 beds, is to be located near the intersection of Routes 59 and 22 north of Barrington.

THE 32-PAGE STUDY states that by constructing these two facilities the health care needs of the area will be adequately served through 1990.

Richard Kasten of the consulting firm, said the locations are to be considered general. He added these are based on result of analysis of projected population growth, existing medical referral patterns and travel patterns.

A completed study, including all statistical data, is expected to be released in about five weeks, Kasten said.

Kasten said that the proposed Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes Medical Center site near Roselle and Schaumburg roads, was not considered ideal because it is too close to Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

Both Henry J. Burman, the newly appointed director of the Schaumburg facility and Schaumburg Village Atty. Jack Segal said they were "encouraged" by the report, citing a need for a hospital in Schaumburg.

Burman said that he and other officials of Presbyterian-St. Lukes will have to examine the report in detail before making further comments.

BOTH MEN SAID they did not feel this report would deter the plans for the Schaumburg hospital.

"We have an agreement with Presbyterian-St. Lukes and the only way it would not be fulfilled is if we could not raise the necessary money," Segal said.

About $4 million will be needed to be raised in this area for the proposed $12 million facility, according to the agreement with Presbyterian-St. Lukes.

Dr. Sanford Block, representing a group of physicians who have announced plans to build a 200-bed hospital in western portion of Hoffman Estates, said the findings of the study merely confirmed the research his group did about one year ago.

"This may accelerate our plans," Block said.

Dr. Sheldon Waldstein, executive director of the North Suburban Association for Health Resources, said the completion of the study represents nearly two years work by the committee.

Closed-Door Meet On Township Issue

Lawyers for three area townships and the League of Women Voters met in closed session yesterday with Illinois Supreme Court Justice Daniel P. Ward to determine if the LWV appeal should be heard before the state court.

Justice Ward is considering their arguments before making a decision. If the Supreme Court doesn't hear the appeal, the case will move to the intermediate Appellate Court.

The LWV appeal was set in motion Wednesday after Circuit Court Judge Harry G. Comerford ruled that an election to abolish township government could not be held, based on township arguments that no legal notice had been given within the state's 20-day deadline.

Maine, Palatine and Niles townships are involved in the current LWV appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court.

The original lawsuit was filed by the LWV against officials for the three townships in September. The township argument about legal notice came during a preliminary hearing before the actual issues in the lawsuit could be heard.

JUDGE COMERFORD'S ruling legally ends the case unless a higher court reverses his judgment.

A Northfield Township appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court was rejected yesterday, sending the issue to the Appellate Court level.

Justice Ward's decision on Palatine, Maine and Niles isn't expected until later this week.

Township officials say the referendum shouldn't be held because the state legislature has not provided an alternate form of government to take over for the township if it is abolished. But LWV members claim that the legislature will act after the referendum passes, and local municipalities or the county could take over.

Voter petitions gathered by the LWV requesting the referendum were submitted to the individual townships, who in turn either rejected the referendum or refused to consider it. Lawsuits were filed three days after Palatine Township auditors rejected the referendum in late September.

Any court action will have to come soon, with the Nov. 7 election just eight days away.

The state LWV has officially opposed the township form of government, saying it is archaic and outdated, particularly in highly-populated incorporated areas.

Ex-Bear Mike Pyle To Speak At Banquet

Former Chicago Bear Michael Pyle will be the guest speaker at the Rolling Meadows Boys Football Association awards banquet Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at the Rolling Meadows Community Church.

Pyle was the starting center for the Bears from 1961 to 1969 and offensive captain of the Bears from 1963 to 1969. He was all-pro in 1963 and played in the Pro Bowl in 1964. He also served as president of the National Football League Players Association in 1967.

Awards will be presented at the banquet to members of the all-star team and outstanding players.

The lightweight team finished the season with a 5-3 record and the heavyweight team finished with a 2-7 record.

This Morning In Brief

The State

A commuter train loaded with rush hour passengers rammed into the rear of another packed train in Chicago, trapping dead and injured inside. Hours after the crash the Cook County morgue reported 45 bodies had been brought from the crash. At least 100 and possibly more were injured. The death toll was expected to rise as workmen pried the wreckage apart.

President Nixon's scheduled visit to Chicago today was canceled because of the Chicago commuter train wreck, the White House announced. Secretary of Transportation John Volpe flew to Chicago to head the investigation of the crash.

The Chicago Patrolmen's Association

and the Confederation of Police, representing more than half of Chicago's 13,500 policemen, are completing plans for a "blue flu" protest election day to back their demands for a contract. Many leaders, however, expressed belief that Mayor Daley would intervene and prevent the walkout.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Daniel J. Walker donated a pint of blood to aid victims of the Chicago commuter train crash and said he would forego "partisan" political statements for the day.

The Nation

President Nixon said he will sign into law a sweeping $6.3 billion a year increase in Social Security and welfare benefits affecting nearly a million widowed and disabled elderly persons. The bill, which will require sharply increased payroll taxes, replaced Nixon's proposed welfare reform that would have guaranteed an annual income of $2,400 for a family of four.

The United States repeated it will not sign its agreement with Hanoi in time to end the war in South Vietnam by tomorrow. The Viet Cong objected, but hinted negotiations would continue even if today's deadline is not met.

The World

The British government offered Northern Ireland the long-term option of remaining part of Britain or joining the Irish Republic, but left the decision up to the people.

Canadians voted to test Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's 4½-year mandate in a federal election whose outcome could mean minority rule for Trudeau's Liberal Party.

The War

With both sides trying to seize as much territory as possible before a cease-fire, South Vietnamese forces recaptured a district capital deep behind Communist lines and Communist attacks throughout South Vietnam exceeded the 100 mark for the fifth consecutive day. Increased fighting was reported in Laos and Cambodia.

Gene Wasmer Paints The Outdoors

by DAVID MAHSMAN

To Gene Wasmer, there's no feeling like the feeling he gets watching a flock of ducks or geese gliding over a lake, taking off in a flurry of flapping wings or simply flying in formation.

That feeling is hard to explain, Wasmer says. So he follows the old adage that one picture is worth a thousand words.

Wasmer is a painter. His specialty is birds, game birds in particular. And in his paintings, he tries to get across to the viewer something of the thrill he experiences while out hunting or just bird-watching.

During the day, Wasmer heads up the art department of General American Transportation Co.'s research division in Niles. At night, he returns to his home at 15 S. Orchard St., Arlington Heights. And in a small, cramped corner of his workshop in the basement, Wasmer relaxes by painting his loved ducks and geese.

Although it may seem strange that a man who works with art all day would relax by painting, Wasmer says it isn't strange at all. His bird paintings are fine art, not at all like the work he does at the office, he says.

WASMER'S HOBBY is the natural combination of his love of art and love of the outdoors. As a boy growing up in Murphysboro, the small-town county seat of Jackson County in southern Illinois, Wasmer enjoyed plenty of time outdoors — and there was plenty of the outdoors to enjoy.

"Birds have always fascinated me, just their ability to fly more than anything," Wasmer said in his slow, quiet manner. Wasmer's paintings reflect his statement. He usually paints birds in flight.

And when Wasmer paints a bird in flight, he wants to get it right. He said he spends a lot of time outdoors, just looking through his binoculars. He also takes photographs and keeps a notebook of when and where he sighted a particular bird.

Wasmer is a stickler for detail. A clump of foxtail grass sits in the corner of his small studio so that Wasmer can get the detail right on the painting he's working on now. He also uses "stuffed" birds for models. Wasmer is a taxidermist as well as painter and photographer.

Because of all the research that goes into one of Wasmer's paintings, each painting represents more time than just painting hours. He said that his current painting will take some 13 hours to complete. But a painting may start in Wasmer's head years before he is ready to put it on canvas. For example, Wasmer did some paintings in 1965 of scenes he remembered from his Air Force days in Alaska — in the early '60s.

AND WASMER is not easily satisfied with a painting. He says he will keep working on it until it is right — or he will throw it away or hide it.

It's only natural to ask a bird painter his opinion of the work done by John J. Audubon, the father of bird painting. Wasmer said that he thinks Audubon's paintings were "great for his day," but that they are unnatural and stiff.

"I hesitate to criticize Audubon, but vitally seems to be lacking (in his paintings)," Wasmer said, looking somewhat embarrassed.

Wasmer began to specialize in bird paintings in 1967. He cannot remember how many he has done since then, but he says he is still relatively new in a field, a field that is highly competitive.

To be very successful at selling paintings, Wasmer says a painter has to build a reputation, something he claims he hasn't done yet.

But at least one of Wasmer's paintings has been circulated nationally. A painting done by Wasmer of a flock of Canada geese flying over a cornfield — a scene inspired by Horseshoe Lake in Southern Illinois — appeared as the cover of a recent issue of Ducks Unlimited. The magazine is the journal of the 60,000-member conservation society of the same name. Wasmer is also a member.

EIGHT OR NINE other Wasmer originals hang in his home, and another three are for sale at Abercrombie and Fitch in Chicago. Wasmer said that as soon as he builds up his supply of paintings — he will paint more during the winter months — he plans to enter exhibits of wildlife paintings. Other paintings will be auctioned to raise funds for Ducks Unlimited.

Wasmer seems to have a greater goal in mind than simply making money off his hobby, though.

"It's a shame the way some wildlife is disappearing," Wasmer mused. "Maybe if more people get an appreciation of its beauty, it will better their chance for survival."

Public Works Committee Weighs Coming Projects

The city council's public works committee held another Saturday meeting over the weekend to discuss maintenance priorities and major projects to be considered in budget recommendations for the coming year.

Committee chairman Ald. Daniel Weber said yesterday the Saturday meetings were planned as a way to provide more time to discuss and view the city's maintenance needs.

"By holding meetings on Saturday, we can go out and see the problems first hand," Weber said. It also means the committee can start off fresh and not have to worry about running into the late hours of night meetings, Weber added.

"If a project needs attention, we can devote time to it with this format," he said. The committee will also assign study teams to prepare ongoing progress reports on special projects, Weber added.

DURING THE LENGTHY six-hour session, the committee members reviewed proposals to include in budget recommendations several "major projects," as Weber called them, including construction of a maintenance building for one of the city's well sites. He said a resurfacing program for Wilke Road was also discussed.

"One side of Wilke Road has just been turned over to us and the other side is part of Arlington Heights," Weber said. He said resurfacing of the Rolling Meadows side would depend on when Arlington Heights could begin similar work on their half of the road.

Approval of any budgetary recommendations would be left to the council, Weber said.

The committee also saw a demonstration of some of the public works department equipment as a preview to an open house to be held Nov. 11.

Both the public works and Civil Defense departments will display equipment at the event, Weber said. The Civil Defense Department's new second floor office will also be open for public viewing. Weber said if enough interest is shown, tours to other public works facilities around the city will be made available.

"We want to let the citizens know about the department because we think there is a wealth of information of interest there," Weber said.

Court Decision Expected Soon On Building Project

An appellate court decision is anticipated soon in the dispute over whether a 78-acre tract on Palatine Road in Hoffman Estates will support 1,352 apartments, or single family homes instead. Village Atty. Edward Hofert argued on appeal yesterday morning asking a panel of three judges to reverse a Circuit Court order of June 21, 1971, directing the village to grant building permits for the apartments.

A decision on the appeal is to be delivered later, at an unspecified time. Attorneys had submitted written briefs prior to yesterday's oral arguments.

Supporting Hofert in his case was J. William Braithwaite, representing owners of surrounding property. Arguing against the reversal was Robert Haskins, representing owners of the tract who include Chicago Aldermen Thomas Keane and Paul Wigoda; George Keane, Cook County zoning board chairman; Frank Chesrow, former Metropolitan Sanitary District president, and David Chesrow, his brother.

THE SUIT involves a land parcel between Palatine and Bradwell roads, west of the Howie-In-The-Hills property, and in the extreme north end of the village. It originally was zoned B-2, or business. In April 1970, Haskins initiated a petition for rezoning to multiple family for the $15 million apartment complex of 28 buildings, each four stories tall.

The following August the village rezoned the property for single family homes on minimum lot sizes of 10,000 square feet.

Yesterday's arguments focused on existing structures and zoning around the site, the density of surrounding areas as compared with that proposed by the land trust, the compliance of zoning with the village's master plan and the impact of development on sewer and water facilities and traffic.

Hofert pointed out specific tracts around the 78 acres, and said the overall density of the surrounding acreage is five units per acre, with some parcels ranging as low as one per acre. Much of the area is not yet developed, and now is cultivated farmland, he said.

BUT DEVELOPMENT is moving toward the area, he said. Part of the undeveloped land is Howie-In-The-Hills, which has been in a federal receivership and unavailable for development for a number of years. With the announcement of plans for Woodfield in Schaumburg, said Hofert, the village knew the 78 acres would not be developed as business property. But development with 17 or 18 units per acre, the density with 1,352 apartments, would mean "staggering loss" of single family homes for the village, said Hofert.

The apartment complex also depreciates the value of surrounding land, said Braithwaite. He listed the values of some parcels, noting a 122-acre site valued at $900,000 an 80-acre site valued at $600,000 to $650,000, and a 15-lot development, on which homes are planned in a price range of $70,000 to $80,000 each.

Hofert said sewer and water service would be provided for the development, either as apartments or single family homes. The impact of the apartment plan on traffic would be tremendous, doubling use of Palatine Road and multiplying use of Bradwell Road by six or seven times.

HASKINS SAID the village had admitted it would not be able to provide sewer and water service to the development "for several years," and said the land trust had offered to pay for a community well and sanitary sewage treatment plant for the project. Few single family homes currently exist in the area, and little building has proceeded on adjoining land. Depreciation of land value for surrounding owners "is pure conjecture," Haskins said in response to a question from the court.

Hearing the case were First District Illinois Appellate Court Judges Mayer Goldberg, Joseph Burke and Henry Dieringer.

WILDLIFE ARTIST Gene Wasmer of Arlington Heights spends many a winter night in the basement of his home doing what he likes best — painting game birds. And though Wasmer may spend little more than a dozen hours on this painting, he may have taken years to develop the idea. Wasmer is very particular about detail, and he has a clump of weeds in his studio for reference.

'Open Spaces' Aren't There, But It Could Be Worse

The wide open spaces in Mount Prospect have become much less open in the last several years.

A study of the Mount Prospect and River Trails Park Districts shows that open space in both areas is below the national standard for open land for the number of people in both districts.

Despite the cramped conditions, however, representatives of both park districts feel that facilities are generally the best that can be provided under the circumstances.

In the Mount Prospect Park District, the estimated park district population is "probably 60,000," Paul Caldwell, assistant park director said. The standard for recommended open space is one acre per 100 people.

"At that rate, we would need 600 acres," Caldwell said. The park district now includes 272.2 acres that it owns and 60.6 acres that it leases. According to the standards, this leaves the district about 258 acres short.

ASKED IF THE district plans to acquire any more land, Caldwell said the only additional open space the district might acquire would be smaller sites for neighborhood parks.

"The problem is there just isn't that much open space anymore," Caldwell said. "The park district was formed when the northern part of the town was already developed. One thing we have had in mind was the Gregory school site (11 acres), but that's been tied up in legal difficulties," he said. (The park district offered to buy the Gregory school site from Mount Prospect School Dist. 57 last year, but the district has declined because of a lawsuit by the former owner of the property.)

Also, Caldwell said, "You have to realize that with the standard, you're talking about an optimum situation. It's a goal. As the population increases the standard drops because it's impossible to apply any longer," he said.

The park district hopes to improve the situation several ways, including more intensive use of existing park lands and facilities, additional family construction (community center buildings and ice rinks, etc.) and improved park appearance.

IN THE RIVER TRAILS Park District, the problem of open space is even more acute than Mount Prospect. According to Marvin Weiss, park director, there are about 14,000 people living within the district, but only 68.5 acres of park land to accommodate them. According to the national standard of open space, the park district should have as an optimum, 140 acres.

Despite the substandard amount of acreage, Weiss does not feel that open space in River Trails is inadequate. "I don't think these standards are relevant since every community is different," Weiss said. "It depends on the type of community, and the way the roads cut it up. A community of 20,000 with no major thoroughfares can get by with less open space," he said.

"For example, a community like Niles that is cut by so many major thoroughfares, needs about twice the open space that we do, yet I think they have less than we do," Weiss said. "For the present population and the way the community is presently laid out, I think the open space is roughly adequate. Certain sections could use a little more land but then some sections use a park more than other areas," he said.

Parkway Signs Illegal: Manager

Advertising signs on village parkways in Mount Prospect are illegal and Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley is about to crack down on them.

Eppley said Friday that such signs are illegal and "a visual hazard." "They will have to be removed immediately upon notification, probably by hand," he said. "Otherwise the owners will have to come down here to pick them up."

The signs proliferate in front of gas stations and restaurants especially, according to Eppley. They usually advertise specials or "open" or "breakfast served."

"They (business operators) try to outdo each other as to the size of the signs," Eppley said. He added that written notification of the violation would be given this time, before public works crews remove the signs.

The ordinance calls for a fine in the cases of such illegal signs, but Eppley said he is not talking of fines "right now."

Eppley also issued a warning to persons putting up political signs on utility poles, which are illegal.

Garage sale signs are allowed because they are up for only a short time. Of the garage signs, Eppley said, "Some people are getting very sloppy in taking them down."

STEVEN MCGUIRE, member of the Mount Prospect Gaming Club, sets up the battlefield for the next war game. Battles are "fought" with plastic tanks and soldiers. Masking tape on the floor designates roads.

Playing Games Is Deadly Serious

by MARY HOULIHAN

The enormous, gray castle of the evil Mordor stands on a high ridge in the distance. Behind the castle walls — hundreds of footmen, cavalry and troops — all soldiers of the evil Mordor, poised for battle. In the dense forest to the north — the opposing forces, the good people of the west await.

"My advice to you guys is retreat and save face," a voice from above bellows.

"Ha! The side of evil will of those reinforcements," the other rejoins.

A reenactment of a famous historical battle? Not quite, but almost. Though the soldiers and trees are plastic, the strategy is as technical as a real battle and in many cases, involves almost as much brain power.

This battle is a military game, played by members of the Mount Prospect Military Gaming Club, which meets every other week in the skylight room of the Mount Prospect Country Club. And though the game played here was fictional, many military games are based on actual historical battles.

Military men have used war games to map out the strategy for upcoming battles for centuries. Napoleon prepared many of his battles beforehand in military games. The Japanese raid on Pearl Harbor in 1941 was planned out beforehand in a military game, as was the German invasion of France in World War II.

THE FIRST commercial military game was produced in 1959 by the Avalon Hill Co. A publisher of adult games, Avalon Hill began producing printed war games as a side business. "Their forte was making adult-type games," Peter Mazzenga, a leader of the Mount Prospect group, explained.

It's estimated today that there are more than 10,000 military gaming enthusiasts throughout the country. "Strategy and Tactics," a quarterly magazine devoted to military gaming, today has a circulation of 15,000. "When they first started printing military games, they didn't realize they were making a hobby. The whole thing just blossomed into something fantastic," Mazzenga explained.

At the Mount Prospect Country Club, watching a game for the first time, one tends to become highly intimidated. There's a lot of talk about ratios and missile ranges and road bonuses. Imagining yourself playing reminds one a little of waiting to be clobbered by a wealthy apartment owner on Monopoly's Boardwalk and Park Place.

Despite the apparent difficulty of the game, however, almost anyone can play with a little practice. "Anyone who plays should have an orderly mind, but that is about all that is important," Tony Adams, founder of the Mount Prospect club, explained.

Before the game begins, players choose sides. Equipment is doled out — soldiers, including footmen and cavalry men, tanks and extras such as fortresses, castles, trees, bushes, sponges for mountains and masking tape to make the roads.

To determine which force moves first and what casualties they inflict, six or seven dice are rolled. Avalon Hill has set up a ratio rulebook to establish what action the roll of the die determine. For instance, in a contest between two light foot soldiers, two sixes rolled on the dice determines that the player levels six men from the other side. Rubber bands are tied around the six to show that they are killed. Then when the opponent rolls the die, whatever he rolls determines (Continued on page 4)

Boo! It's Halloween At This Household

Bored with your trick-or-treatin'? Go knock on Dan Alberti's door, but watch out. When you ring his doorbell a ghostly sound will begin and a black coffin will open, and a Frankenstein monster, complete with a bolt in his neck, will rise.

Or you may also run into the Wicked Witch of the North who'll either be high up on a pole or in the tree across the street, or Harvey the Teenage Monster who is in the bushes by Alberti's porch.

For the fourth year in a row, Alberti, who runs a television shop in the village, will have his Halloween show for all the local children at his home, 118 N. Emerson St., Mount Prospect. The porch will be lighted by a black light.

All the noises that the monsters give forth have been taped by Alberti. He had to do it by himself because his wife doesn't like monsters and she couldn't help laughing when he tried to record her voice. The two Alberti children, Cindy, 12, and Tommy, 14, help their father run all the machinery, as the electronic sequences have to be retriggered after each "victim."

ALBERTI SAID he started his Halloween show because he felt the children were getting bored with Halloween.

"They go up and get candy at every house," he said. "I felt it would be a good idea to do something scary. It's like when I was a kid. We never wanted the candy. We'd look for the crabby people so we could trick them."

"Frankie" is made out of old juke box parts and took about 200 man-hours to make," Alberti said. Two friends made "Frankie"; Alberti this year has created only one of the monsters, that's Harvey, the new spook.

The whole show is very popular with the neighborhood children. Last year when Halloween fell on a Sunday, Alberti was at a Bears' football game and didn't get home until late. "I came home about 8:30 p.m. and there the whole yard was filled with kids waiting. I scrambled and got everything going."

This Morning In Brief

The State

A commuter train loaded with rush hour passengers rammed into the rear of another packed train in Chicago, trapping dead and injured inside. Hours after the crash the Cook County morgue reported 45 bodies had been brought from the crash. At least 100 and possibly more were injured. The death toll was expected to rise as workmen pried the wreckage apart.

President Nixon's scheduled visit to Chicago today was canceled because of the Chicago commuter train wreck, the White House announced. Secretary of Transportation John Volpe flew to Chicago to head the investigation of the crash.

The Chicago Patrolmen's Association

and the Confederation of Police, representing more than half of Chicago's 13,500 policemen, are completing plans for a "blue flu" protest election day to back their demands for a contract. Many leaders, however, expressed belief that Mayor Daley would intervene and prevent the walkout.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Daniel J. Walker donated a pint of blood to aid victims of the Chicago commuter train crash and said he would forego "partisan" political statements for the day.

The Nation

President Nixon said he will sign into law a sweeping $5.3 billion a year increase in Social Security and welfare benefits affecting nearly a million widowed and disabled elderly persons. The bill, which will require sharply increased payroll taxes, replaced Nixon's proposed welfare reform that would have guaranteed an annual income of $2,400 for a family of four.

The United States repeated it will not sign its agreement with Hanoi in time to end the war in South Vietnam by tomorrow. The Viet Cong objected, but hinted negotiations would continue even if today's deadline is not met.

The World

The British government offered Northern Ireland the long-term option of remaining part of Britain or joining the Irish Republic, but left the decision up to the people.

Canadians voted to test Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's 4½-year mandate in a federal election whose outcome could mean minority rule for Trudeau's Liberal Party.

The War

With both sides trying to seize as much territory as possible before a cease-fire, South Vietnamese forces recaptured a district capital deep behind Communist lines and Communist attacks throughout South Vietnam, exceeded the 100 mark for the fifth consecutive day. Increased fighting was reported in Laos and Cambodia.

Saturday Auto Accidents Injure 5; None Serious

Five persons were injured in two separate Mount Prospect automobile accidents Saturday.

The accident took place on S. Busse Road, just north of Catalpa Lane about 10:30 p.m. Dale and John Heil were drivers of two of the vehicles. William Barnett, 46, of 1615 E. Central Road, Arlington Heights was driving the third car. Barnett and his passengers escaped injury.

Details of the accident were few.

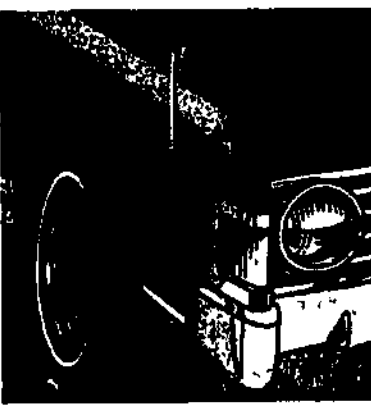

In the second accident, which took place about 6 a.m., a car operated by Shelly Pearson, 19, of 11 N. Maple St., Mount Prospect, struck a tree in front 404 See-Gwin Ave. Miss Pearson was in satisfactory condition yesterday at Northwest Community Hospital. She had been in the intensive care unit earlier.

As with the other accident, police did not have the full details.

WILDLIFE ARTIST Gene Wasmer of Arlington Heights spends many a winter night in the basement of his home doing what he likes best — painting game birds. And though Wasmer may spend little more than a dozen hours on this painting, he may have taken years to develop the idea. Wasmer is very particular about detail, and he has a clump of woods in his studio for reference.

Gene Wasmer Paints The Outdoors

by DAVID MAHISMAN

To Gene Wasmer, there's no feeling like the feeling he gets watching a flock of ducks or geese gliding over a lake, taking off in a flurry of flapping wings or simply flying in formation.

That feeling is hard to explain, Wasmer says. So he follows the old adage that one picture is worth a thousand words.

Wasmer is a painter. His specialty is birds, game birds in particular. And in his paintings, he tries to get across to the viewer something of the thrill he experiences while out hunting or just bird-watching.

During the day, Wasmer heads up the art department of General American Transportation Co.'s research division in Niles. At night, he returns to his home at 15 S. Orchard St., Arlington Heights. And in a small, cramped corner of his workshop in the basement, Wasmer relaxes by painting his loved ducks and geese.

Although it may seem strange that a man who works with art all day would relax by painting, Wasmer says it isn't strange at all. His bird paintings are fine art, not at all like the work he does at the office, he says.

WASMER'S HOBBY is the natural combination of his love of art and love of the outdoors. As a boy growing up in Murphysboro, the small-town county seat of Jackson County in southern Illinois, Wasmer enjoyed plenty of time outdoors — and there was plenty of the outdoors to enjoy.

"Birds have always fascinated me, just their ability to fly more than anything," Wasmer said in his slow, quiet manner. Wasmer's paintings reflect his statement. He usually paints birds in flight.

And when Wasmer paints a bird in flight, he wants to get it right. He said he spends a lot of time outdoors, just looking through his binoculars. He also takes photographs and keeps a notebook of when and where he sighted a particular bird.

Wasmer is a stickler for detail. A clump of foxtail grass sits in the corner of his small studio so that Wasmer can get the detail right on the painting he's working on now. He also uses "stuffed" birds for models. Wasmer is a taxidermist as well as painter and photographer.

Because of all the research that goes into one of Wasmer's paintings, each painting represents more time than just painting hours. He said that his current painting will take some 13 hours to complete. But a painting may start in Wasmer's head years before he is ready to put it on canvas. For example, Wasmer did some paintings in 1965 of scenes he remembered from his Air Force days in Alaska — in the early '50s.

AND WASMER is not easily satisfied with a painting. He says he will keep working on it until it is right — or he will throw it away or hide it.

It's only natural to ask a bird painter his opinion of the work done by John J. Audubon, the father of bird painting. Wasmer said that he thinks Audubon's paintings were "great for his day," but that they are unnatural and stiff.

"I hesitate to criticize Audubon, but vitality seems to be lacking (in his paintings)," Wasmer said, looking somewhat embarrassed.

Wasmer began to specialize in bird paintings in 1967. He cannot remember how many he has done since then, but he says he is still relatively new in a field, a field that is highly competitive.

But at least one of Wasmer's paintings has been circulated nationally. A painting done by Wasmer of a flock of Canada geese flying over a cornfield — a scene inspired by Horseshoe Lake in Southern Illinois — appeared as the cover of a recent issue of Ducks Unlimited. The magazine is the journal of the 60,000-member conservation society of the same name. Wasmer is also a member.

2 Hospitals Recommended In Area

by STEVE BROWN

Recommendations for two hospitals to be built by 1975, coordinated with the development of medical office centers plus the immediate development of emergency medical treatment centers, were among the major items contained in the preliminary draft of health care needs for Northwest Cook County.

The study, conducted by the Northwest Cook County Health Care Needs Study Committee, was released yesterday.

The report, prepared by the consulting firm of Ernst and Ernst, recommends the construction of two hospitals, one a 300-bed facility to be located at Schaumburg and Barrington roads in Schaumburg Township. The second hospital, with a recommended size of 250 beds, is to be located near the intersection of Routes 59 and 22 north of Barrington.

THE 32-PAGE STUDY states that by constructing these two facilities the health care needs of the area will be adequately served through 1980.

Richard Kasten of the consulting firm, said the locations are to be considered general. He added these are based on result of analysis of projected population growth, existing medical referral patterns and travel patterns.

A completed study, including all statistical data, is expected to be released in about five weeks, Kasten said.

Kasten said that the proposed Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes Medical Center site near Roselle and Schaumburg roads, was not considered ideal because it is too close to Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

Both Henry J. Buhrman, the newly appointed director of the Schaumburg facility and Schaumburg Village Atty. Jack Siegal said they were "encouraged" by the report, citing a need for a hospital in Schaumburg.

Buhrman said that he and other officials of Presbyterian-St. Lukes will have to examine the report in detail before making further comments.

BOTH MEN SAID they did not feel this report would deter the plans for the Schaumburg hospital.

"We have an agreement with Presbyterian-St. Lukes and the only way it would not be fulfilled is if we could not raise the necessary money," Siegal said. About $4 million will be needed to be raised in this area for the proposed $12 million facility, according to the agreement with Presbyterian-St. Lukes.

Dr. Sanford Block, representing a group of physicians who have announced plans to build a 200-bed hospital in western portion of Hoffman Estates, said the findings of the study merely confirmed the research his group did about one year ago.

"This may accelerate our plans," Block said.

Dr. Sheldon Waldstein, executive director of the North Suburban Association for Health Resources, said the completion of the study represents nearly two years work by the committee.

what kind of damage he inflicts to the first side. A game takes about two hours to play.

PLANNING A military game depends on the type of game being used. Board games, already planned as far as strategy and type of battle, are the easiest. The miniature games, in which players create their own game with their own plastic soldiers is a lot harder. This type of game requires from four to six hours to plan, Mazzenga said.

Spartan International, publishers of "Strategy and Tactics," sponsors regular matches between military games four times a year. "They usually match you up with someone of similar ability and you start the game with your opponent by mail," Tony Adams, founder of the Mount Prospect club, explained.

"The rules are standardized by the Avalon Hill Co. which puts out the games and all arguments are settled by the international organization (Spartan)," Adams said.

In addition to the quarterly matches, Spartan also sponsors a convention every year. The east coast meeting is held in the battleship Massachusetts; the convention in the west near the University of Southern California.

In Mount Prospect, the military gaming club has about 15 regular members. Eight of the members are registered with Spartan International. The chapter holds a meeting every two weeks, usually in the skylight room of the country club. "Anyone interested is welcome at our meetings, either to participate or just to see what we do," Adams said.

Burglary Reported

Burglars cracked open a file cabinet at the home of Ruby M. Patterson, 1431 S. Busse Rd., Mount Prospect, and took $505 Thursday.

Mount Prospect police said nothing else appeared to have been taken in the break-in which occurred sometime between 8:15 a.m. and 1:10 p.m. The cabinet was located in a bedroom. Police believe that the rear door had been pried open to gain entry to the house.

Theater Will Not Be Included

$2.6 Million Park District Referendum Set Dec. 16

A $2.6 million Arlington Heights Park District referendum will be held Dec. 16, it was decided last night by the park board.

The referendum will be held in conjunction with a village referendum, and will include 18 precincts.

Though four theater groups from the area came to the park board last night with a 35-page study on a theater building, the board unanimously decided not to include a $300,000 theater in the referendum.

"There is a need for a theater building, and building it with taxpayers' money is justified, but a building of this nature would preempt the construction of a village cultural center which has been under study for several years," said Board Member Kay Muller.

"Taxpayers' money has already been spent on studies for this facility, and the money would be wasted if the village cultural commission were not allowed time to complete their study," she said. "The theater people and cultural center people should resolve their differences and work together on this project."

The theater groups proposed several other uses for the building besides their performances including a charm school, film series, folk concerts, drama classes and creative dance classes.

"This study is not just speculation, we called people, and did a great deal of research," said Dea Jurco, chairman of the citizen's committee studying the theater. Most of the theater group walked out of the meeting following the vote.

Though Tony Tomaso, chairman of the citizen's referendum committee, agreed with the board decision, Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation told the board they were making a mistake.

"You'll never get them together," said Thornton, referring to the cultural commission and the four theater groups. The theater groups have said they could not go along with the commission's plans for a $2 million center.

WHILE THE REFERENDUM has been set at $2.6 million, a few items have not been researched and firmed up to the satisfaction of the park board.

Though $70,000 has been included in the package for land on which to build a senior citizen's center, the board has not decided for sure to purchase the land. A decision will probably be made on this issue at a special meeting Saturday.

The board also wishes to discuss the proposed $1.25 million indoor ice facility further with Arch. Joe Bennett. Several interior and exterior changes were recently requested by the board, and according to Mrs. Muller there are "lots of further questions."

"You have to have more confidence in Bennett as a professional architect," said Thornton. "We have your requirements and we have to make changes based on new costs that come in all the time."

The board must also obtain a deed to land adjacent to Dryden School, 722 N. Dryden, on which they want to build a $150,000 fieldhouse.

WILDLIFE ARTIST Gene Wasmer of Arlington Heights spends many a winter night in the basement of his home doing what he likes best — painting game birds. And though Wasmer may spend little more than a dozen hours on this painting, he may have taken years to develop the idea. Wasmer is very particular about detail, and he has a clump of weeds in his studio for reference.

Road Work Delayed Until Spring?

Construction work at the intersection of Arlington Heights and Central roads may not be completed until next spring, despite the fact that the busy intersection has been torn up for seven months.

Wet weather has been responsible for delays this summer and if the weather turns cold work will be suspended until next spring, according to a spokesman for the Palumbo Excavating Co. which is doing the road reconstruction.

"We'll go until the weather gets cold," said John Wells, manager of the project for Palumbo. "We can lay asphalt above 40 degrees and concrete from 40 to 45 (degrees) but after that I don't know."

Wells said it would be "foolish" to predict that the improvements would be completed before spring.

Because of rain and other delays this summer, the contractor has used only 90 actual working days of his 160 working day contract and is not in jeopardy of being penalized, according to Village Engineer Allen Sander.

"ORIGINALLY WE anticipated the project would be complete by Oct. 15 but that was under ideal working conditions," Sander said.

"This has been one of the wettest summers ever and everytime it rained it meant the men couldn't work and that pushed the project back," he said.

Both Wells and Sander say the road work is about half complete but both men said they could not speculate on when the project would be finished.

"We've done as much in the last four weeks as we did in three months," Wells said. "We will complete everything we humanly can before it gets cold."

If the work is not complete after 160 working days, the contractor theoretically could be fined $150 a day for every day it takes to finish the job after the deadline.

For this to happen, however, the state would have to file for damages against the contractor charging that failure to complete the project within the specified number of days has resulted in financial losses.

This, according to Sander, is a complicated and often lengthy court proceeding.

All the sewer work is complete and most of the lighting poles have been installed at the intersection.

"Mostly what remains now is paving," Sander said.

OF A TOTAL PROJECT cost of slightly more than a million dollars, Arlington Heights will pay about $303,000. The federal government is paying about 50 per cent of the cost with the state paying the remaining percentage.

Sander said it is a "joint decision" between the village and the contractor on whether or not work can continue on the project on any given day.

"Palumbo has told us they will continue working as long as the weather permits," he said, adding that the state marks Nov. 15 as the official end of the construction season in its contracts.

After Nov. 15, working days are no longer charged against the contractor until the start of the spring construction season March 15.

"All of this is set by the state. They wrote the contract and awarded the bids," Sander said.

The disrupted intersection is a major bottleneck during morning and evening rush hours and has been a source of irritation to merchants who say the work is hurting business.

No Yule Parade Next Month

For the first time in five years, there won't be a November Christmas parade in Arlington Heights next month.

Earl Johnson, executive director of the chamber of commerce, said yesterday, that the chamber's retail committee and board of directors both agreed not to sponsor a holiday parade this year.

"In the past, the parade has been so early in November that it really was having very little effect, and after Thanksgiving, we found that the high school bands just weren't available," Johnson said.

Instead of a parade, the chamber will concentrate its Christmas efforts around the downtown railroad station.

Johnson said the chamber already has purchased twenty 53-inch lanterns which it plans to hand in the railroad station square. The new lanterns should be up by Thanksgiving.

"We're also hoping that the railroad will let us decorate the depot," Johnson said.

Last Year's Christmas parade was held Nov. 13. The parade has been sponsored by the chamber every year since 1967.

Johnson said the chamber will be selling Christmas wreaths to merchants again this year. Last year over 100 of the frosted 48-inch wreaths were sold and displayed in the downtown area, he said.

The wreaths cost $18.50 and can be ordered by calling the chamber office at 253-1703.

This Morning In Brief

The State

A commuter train loaded with rush hour passengers rammed into the rear of another packed train in Chicago, trapping dead and injured inside. Hours after the crash the Cook County morgue reported 45 bodies had been brought from the crash. At least 100 and possibly more were injured. The death toll was expected to rise as workmen pried the wreckage apart.

President Nixon's scheduled visit to Chicago today was canceled because of the Chicago commuter train wreck, the White House announced. Secretary of Transportation John Volpe flew to Chicago to head the investigation of the crash.

The Chicago Patrolmen's Association

and the Confederation of Police, representing more than half of Chicago's 13,500 policemen, are completing plans for a "blue flu" protest election day to back their demands for a contract. Many leaders, however, expressed belief that Mayor Daley would intervene and prevent the walkout.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Daniel J. Walker donated a pint of blood to aid victims of the Chicago commuter train crash and said he would forego "partisan" political statements for the day.

The Nation

President Nixon said he will sign into law a sweeping $5.3 billion a year increase in Social Security and welfare benefits affecting nearly a million widowed and disabled elderly persons. The bill, which will require sharply increased payroll taxes, replaced Nixon's proposed welfare reform that would have guaranteed an annual income of $3,400 for a family of four.

The United States repeated it will not sign its agreement with Hanoi in time to end the war in South Vietnam by tomorrow. The Viet Cong objected, but hinted negotiations would continue even if today's deadline is not met.

The World

The British government offered Northern Ireland the long-term option of remaining part of Britain or joining the Irish Republic, but left the decision up to the people.

Canadians voted to test Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's 4½-year mandate in a federal election whose outcome could mean minority rule for Trudeau's Liberal Party.

The War

With both sides trying to seize as much territory as possible before a cease-fire, South Vietnamese forces recaptured a district capital deep behind Communist lines and Communist attacks throughout South Vietnam exceeded the 100 mark for the fifth consecutive day. Increased fighting was reported in Laos and Cambodia.

Eye On Arlington

Let's Hear It For The Sponge!

by KURT BAER

My mind was wandering over all the different programs, platitudes and promises that have come in the wake of the summer's flooding, when it was accidentally jarred by what may be an ultimate solution to this messy problem.

The answer, I submit, must take the form of an enormous sponge, literally big enough to stop up and trap a million gallons of clear, clean storm water.

Now before I am accused of proposing a simplistic solution to what everyone keeps telling me is a complex problem, let me say that I quickly realized that a sponge, no matter how big, could not do the job.

There certainly would have to be at least several of them, spotted like sentries throughout the village, standing guard in flood-threatened neighborhoods.

EACH SYNTHETIC representative of Hippo-spongia could soak up lingering flood water for blocks. After the rain stopped and as fast as the sewers and the Metropolitan Sanitary District will allow, each sponge then could simply be squeezed dry.

During occasional dry spells in Arlington Heights, the mighty sponges could be used as new, surrealist playgrounds. Youngsters could climb and crawl over their pock-marked surface. And in kitchen colors of pink, yellow, blue and green a sponge could be an attractive addition to any neighborhood park.

They could provide soft shade for afternoon picnickers and even be carved into colorful pieces of maxi-sculpture.

In fact, when compared to an average retention basin, a super sponge's versatility is staggering.

The whole sponge project would, of course, cost some money. But consider the thousands of dollars it takes to dig an inert hole in the ground or the millions of billions it would take to implement the Chicago Underflow Plan.

Compared to the cost of these flood control schemes, the price tag on a few sponges, even big ones, is apt to be modest indeed.

Yes, it may seem improbable, especially to engineers, politicians and other self-styled hydrological experts, that the lowly sponge could answer the clamor of residents for drier basements.

But simple solutions sometimes solve complex problems. And I say, the sponge deserves a chance!

Recommend Zone Change For Recreation Vehicles

The plan commission has recommended zoning, subject to a planned development, of 4.4 acres near the southwest corner of Arlington Heights and Algonquin roads for the sale of recreational vehicles.

If approved by the village board, the dealership could bring an additional $60,000 in sales tax revenue to Arlington Heights.

Representatives of Open Road Industries, a major manufacturer of recreational vehicles, told the plan commission motor homes are the fastest growing industry in the country.

Open Road dealers have been averaging $8 million in sales annually, the representatives said. One per cent of these sales would be returned to Arlington Heights in sales tax revenue.

The land, owned by Carl Klehm, would be leased to Open Road Industries for the purpose of constructing a showcase dealership.

THE SHOWROOM and service buildings would represent an investment of nearly a half million dollars, the representatives testified.

In a planned development, a builder is required to adhere to detailed plans approved by the plan commission and the village board. Under a simple rezoning procedure, the developer may build any one of a number of permitted uses in that zoning category provided construction meets the building code.

In recommending rezoning to permit the sales facility, the plan commission made it clear there were still some unresolved problems in the development's site plan.

Included were the location and number of driveways along Arlington Heights and Algonquin roads, the number of recreational vehicles that would be displayed or stored on the site and provision for a special use permit for rental of the vehicles.

Storm water retention is also being required.

A POTENTIAL PROBLEM stems from the fact that recreational vehicles cannot be parked in driveways, parking lots or unscreened yards, according to village ordinance.

Former plan commission member James McGrath said he thought it was important that some provision for the storage of vehicles be included in the dealership's plans.

Open Road officials said their studies indicated the Northwest suburbs were an ideal market area for recreational vehicles. The average vehicle buyer is between 35 and 60 years of age with an income of $10,000 or more, they said.

Motor homes are sold in a range of prices and generally cost from $7,000 to $20,000.

Earns College Degree

Keith M. Felder, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. M. Felder, 1605 E. Central, Arlington Heights, recently earned a bachelor of science in education degree in psychology from North Texas State University, Denton, Tex.

'Farmers' Urged To Clean Up

Pumpkins, squash and other late-harvest items must be removed from Prairie Park garden plots on South Belmont and Council Trails by Wednesday, or they will be plowed under.

Over 200 gardeners from the Arlington Heights Park District grew a variety of vegetables in the plots this summer, which was the second year of the program.

"We hope that the poor 1972 gardening season has not dampened gardeners' spirits, and with the cooperation of the weatherman, we look forward to a better year in 1973," said a park district spokesman. The plots were rain-soaked most of the season.

Park district tractors will turn over the soil after Wednesday to prepare it for next year.

Percy Hopes Nike Site Park Plan Remains A Possibility

Although Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., has not been available for comment on the Arlington Heights Nike base park proposal since May, he says he hopes plans for a park aren't dead.

Local park and village officials have been attempting to create a park out of the 137-acre Nike site for several years and in January, Percy endorsed the park program.

In August, a Military Construction Authorization bill was passed by the U. S. Congress which, among other items, called for the construction of 350 units of naval housing in this area. According to navy spokesmen, 165 of the units are earmarked for the Arlington base, which would sharply curtail plans for a park.

"Plans are not definite yet," Percy said in a recent interview. "I'm looking for an alternate place to suggest to the military to build the housing."

After the interview Percy reportedly called the secretary of the Navy in Washington to find out the status of the naval housing. According to Percy's Chicago office, the senator found out that the base is being considered, but nothing is definite.

ON SEPT. 1, the Arlington Heights Park District received a letter from Rear Admiral W. M. Enger of the Naval Facilities Engineering Command in Washington, D.C. He said suitable areas for the housing project were only available at the Libertyville and Arlington Heights Nike bases.

"A study is now being made to determine the cost of the development of a portion of the 350-unit project at the Arlington Heights site," he said.

In January, Percy wholeheartedly endorsed a plan to turn the site into a regional park.

"This is one of the most imaginative plans for the setting aside of open space that I have ever seen," Percy said in January when mayors and park district representatives of the four-township area asked for Percy's endorsement.

PERCY WAS INSTRUMENTAL in having an evaluation of the base made in March. Shortly after the survey on whether the base was being adequately utilized by the military was completed, the General Services Administration recommended that 13 acres be designated as surplus to military requirements.

"That 13 acres is a beginning," said Percy. "And I will fight to get more land for a park, and I don't intend to lose."

BIKERS WERE FULL of spirit despite the cold, as they worth $2,500 were raised in Elk Grove Village. Pledges began American Cancer Society Bike-A-Thons in Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village Sunday. Pledges amount to about $1,000 in Arlington Heights.

Elk Grove Cyclists Set Pace

Bike-A-Thon Gets $2,500 For Cancer

by MARY HOULIHAN
Sunday, the day of the American Cancer Society's Bike-A-Thon dawned cold and windy in Elk Grove Village and Arlington Heights.

The Elk Grove and Arlington Heights bike clubs and the Elk Grove Jaycees, promoters of the bike hike, stationed at check points along routes in both villages feared the worst when only 10 riders showed up at 10 a.m. at the first check point. But in the early afternoon, the skies cleared and with the sun came more than 100 bikers.

The turnout was best in Elk Grove Village where 84 riders turned up to ride 2,537 miles and raise almost $2,500 for cancer research. Ages of the riders ranged from seven to 49 years, but most were between 10 and 15 years old, Tom Carollo, one of the coordinators of the bike-a-thon, said.

IN ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, the turnout was less than expected. There were 34 riders in all. About $1,000 was pledged, according to Dick Spirek, president of the park district. However, two riders in the hike did stand out: Doug Vogel, who rode 52 miles and Mike Smiley, who had 54 sponsors, and raised more than $300 in pledges.

Despite the small number of bikers, organizers of the hike said they were pleased with the response.

"This was probably the worst time in the world to run a bike-a-thon," he said. "But this was a pilot program. Next year, we plan to run it in May or June in 19 communities in the Northwest suburbs," he said.

FOR THE BIKERS who did turn out Sunday, however, enthusiasm ran high. Many of the riders, members of bike clubs, traveled the 16-mile course two and three times.

"Many of them were determined to make the 80 miles," Jan Rodriguez, stationed at one of the Elk Grove rest stops, said. "They looked cold, but they looked like they were having a good time," she said.

Jack Pahl, former president of Elk Grove Village, decked out in a green riding outfit, outdid everyone, riding the full 80 miles and collecting $287. Two young boys on the course, Mike and Bill Hohman said they saw Pahl go by two or three times while they were still on their first 16 miles.

The bikers said they decided to make the bike-a-thon because "they liked to ride" and also "because it was a good cause." Cynthia Wilkerson, 13, perhaps gave the best reason. "I did it for cancer. If I had cancer, I'd like someone to do it for me," she said.

All proceeds of the bike-a-thon are to be donated to the American Cancer Society.

2 Hospitals Recommended In Area

by STEVE BROWN
Recommendations of two hospitals to be built by 1975, coordinated with the development of medical office centers plus the immediate development of emergency medical treatment centers, were among the major items contained in the preliminary draft of health care needs for Northwest Cook County.

The study, conducted by the Northwest Cook County Health Care Needs Study Committee, was released yesterday.

The report, prepared by the consulting firm of Ernst and Ernst, recommends the construction of two hospitals, one a 300-bed facility to be located at Schaumburg and Barrington roads in Schaumburg Township. The second hospital, with a recommended size of 250 beds, is to be located near the intersection of Routes 59 and 22 north of Barrington.

THE 33-PAGE STUDY states that by constructing these two facilities the health care needs of the area will be adequately served through 1980.

Richard Kasten of the consulting firm, said the locations are to be considered general. He added these are based on result of analysis of projected population growth, existing medical referral patterns and travel patterns.

A completed study, including all statistical data, is expected to be released in about five weeks, Kasten said.

Kasten said that the proposed Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes Medical Center site near Roselle and Schaumburg roads, was not considered ideal because it is too close to Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

Both Henry J. Buhrman, the newly appointed director of the Schaumburg facility and Schaumburg Village Atty. Jack Siegal said they were "encouraged" by the report, citing a need for a hospital in Schaumburg.

Buhrman said that he and other officials of Presbyterian-St. Lukes will have to examine the report in detail before making further comments.

BOTH MEN SAID they did not feel this report would deter the plans for the Schaumburg hospital.

"We have an agreement with Presbyterian-St. Lukes and the only way it would not be fulfilled is if we could not raise the necessary money," Siegal said. About $4 million will be needed to be raised in this area for the proposed $12 million facility, according to the agreement with Presbyterian-St. Lukes.

Dr. Sanford Block, representing a group of physicians who have announced plans to build a 200-bed hospital in western portion of Hoffman Estates, said the findings of the study merely confirmed the research his group did about one year ago.

"This may accelerate our plans," Block said.

Dr. Sheldon Waldstein, executive director of the North Suburban Association for Health Resources, said the completion of the study represents nearly two years work by the committee.

Extinguish Fire At Fieldhouse

Arlington Heights firemen late Sunday afternoon put out a fire that had started in the doorway of Recreation Park Fieldhouse, 500 E. Miner St.

A fire department spokesman said the cause of the fire has not been determined, but noted that traces of an "accelerant" were found at the fire.

The fire took only 10 minutes to extinguish, but firemen had to use forcible entry to get to the fire. Amount of damage is not known, but is believed to be minor. The fire was discovered by a security guard.

Large Firms Boost United Fund Gifts

After a disappointing collection from small businesses and individual households in Arlington Heights, the United Fund pledges and contributions from large businesses are coming in at a higher rate than last year, according to fund president Omer C. Lunsford.

So far, $32,000 has been collected by the fund this year toward a goal of $75,000. The United Fund supports 11 local agencies.

"Responding to the report of slowing contributions, employees of the Village of Arlington Heights indicated their concern for continued support by pledging about three times their contributions over last year," said Lunsford.

Village employees have pledged $2,204, according to Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson.

Another unusually high contribution was made by employees of A. O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., who pledged more than $1,400 to the fund. The total was an increase of 300 per cent over last year.

The Bank & Trust Company of Arlington Heights gave the United Fund a corporate gift of $1,400.

"This response gives us great confidence that the community of Arlington Heights will provide the funds necessary to meet current needs," said Ronald Berling, general chairman of the campaign.

Area residents who missed the door-to-door campaign earlier this fall can expect to receive solicitation by mail, said Lunsford.

Scouts To Honor Their Founder

In honor of the birthday of Juliette Low, founder of the Girl Scouts, 180 scouts and brownies at Juliette Low School, 1530 Highland Ave., will hold a special assembly at 9:15 today.

Mrs. Robert Curran, troop organizer at the school, said the assembly will include skits, troop singing and donation of books to the school by the scouts.

A special award will be presented to Mrs. Dorothy Engelhardt for her service to the scouts at Low School.

700 In 12-Mile Hike For Hospitalized Mt. Prospect Youth, 14

by MARY HOULIHAN

More than 700 weary hikers, each identified by a day-glo orange footprint sticker, finished the 12-mile "Walk for Jim" O'Brien Saturday.

O'Brien, 14, has been hospitalized with a rare bone infection in Sherman Hospital in Elgin since Labor Day. Neighbors organized the hike to help defray some of the family's skyrocketing medical expenses. The 12-mile route was through Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights.

Though the exact amount of money raised by the hike will not be available until Saturday, organizers of the walk said they were "overwhelmed with the response. We have many people to thank, but mostly the kids," Patricia Busse, a hike coordinator, said.

The hikers ranged in age from 10 to 15 years. Many knew O'Brien through school or from his neighborhood in Mount Prospect. They said they decided to make the hike just "because we had heard about it at school and wanted to help."

At 8 A.M. 340 YOUNGSTERS lined up at the St. Raymond Catholic Church parking lot in Mount Prospect to check in.

"When I saw that, it was worth all the work we put into it," Dick Hunsinger, another hike leader, said.

At the first check-in, the youngsters all said they were determined to finish the 12-mile hike. Even at the six-mile rest stop, "most of them looked hale and hearty, determined to go all the way," commented Norman Allen, who was stationed in the Salvation Army Canteen. But as they arrived at the last check-in at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights, many admitted that the last six miles were pretty tough.

"It was tiring. I ran most of the second part just to get done quicker," Dan Gillo-goy, 13, confessed. Bob Magnus, also 13, said "he continued after the first six miles, 'just because I didn't want to get cramps.'"

Those with the greatest cause for fatigue however, were not the kids, but two teachers from Forest View. Fred Lusow, the football coach, who had 4732 pledged to his hike, jogged the 12-miles. The cross country coach, William Mohrman, followed close behind.

MANY MERCHANTS in the Mount Prospect area donated refreshments for Saturday's hike. The Mount Prospect Civil Defense provided three mobile units and 17 men to direct traffic at dangerous intersections. The Forest View Boosters had about 50 men stationed at various street corners along the way.

"I just can't say who was the greatest — the kids, their parents who came and took kids back to St. Raymond's after the hike or the merchants," Mrs. Busse said.

Round Table Is Thursday

The Berkley Square Civic Assn. will host a mayor's round table with members of the village board at 8:30 p.m., Thursday at the Edgar Allen Poe School, 2800 N. Highland Ave.

A half-hour social meeting with coffee and refreshments will precede the meeting, which is open to all residents.

Gas Tank Explodes; 2 Men Burned Badly

Two area men are in the intensive care unit at Northwest Community Hospital after suffering burns to their hands and face when a propane gas tank in their camper exploded Sunday along Rte. 53 near Palatine Road.

James Ward, 25, of Des Plaines, and James Nelson, 21, of Park Ridge, suffered first and second-degree burns in the mishap but do not appear to have suffered any permanent damage, a hospital spokesman said yesterday.

Receives Degree

Linda J. Burr, daughter of Mrs. Helen A. Burr, 6 E. Lillian Lane, Arlington Heights, recently earned her bachelor of arts degree from Lake Forest College, Lake Forest.

Miss Burr received her degree in social psychology. She is an Arlington High School graduate and has been a member of the concert choir and Madrigal Singers at Lake Forest College for three years.

Honor Veterinarian

Dr. Anthony J. Prasnika, 10 S. Salein, Arlington Heights, recently received the President's Award of the Illinois Inter-professional Council of the Health Professions.

The award is given to past presidents and Dr. Prasnika was president of the council for the 1971-72 year. The council represents the Illinois State Veterinary Medical Assn., Illinois Podiatry Society, Illinois Optometric Assn., Illinois Association of Osteopathic Physicians & Surgeons and the Illinois State Dental Society.

No Fast, Simple Solutions To Flooding

There are no fast, simple solutions to flooding problems experienced by residents in the Northgate subdivision.

That was the overriding message at a recent joint meeting of Northgate Civic Association officers, village officials and Miller Builders who built the subdivision.

Two potential remedies to Northgate's flooding woes were outlined by Village Engineer Allen Sander. But the village board decided that any specific action should await completion of an overall village flooding study being prepared by a private engineering firm.

The two measures detailed by Sander included the construction of a retention basin in Camelot Park, a project which has been scheduled for several years but has been put off because of a lack of funds; and the installation of a second 48-inch storm sewer to drain the subdivision to McDonald Creek.

THE JOINT meeting was called to discuss complaints by Northgate residents alleging improper grading in the subdivision and building defects in their houses.

Trustee Frank Palmatier, chairman of the Citizens' Action Committee Against Flooding, cautioned against taking what he called a piecemeal approach to the flooding problem.

"I'm personally against giving Northgate any impression they're going to get preferred treatment," Palmatier said, adding that an effective flood control program was going to require village-wide support.

"I think that to say flooding up there is caused by the lack of a second 48-inch sewer is a fallacy. The problem is much deeper than that and this would probably be just a stopgap measure," he said.

During the heavy storm of Aug. 25, there were four Northgate houses which reported surface water flooding and these were in the vicinity of Dryden and Brogton places, Sander said, calling that area "the only real severe flooding problem" in Northgate.

"A MAJORITY of people that listed flooding problems were really referring to leaks or seepage," he said.

Sander said he had checked the grading in most of the subdivision and had found the most serious problems exist where Northgate joins Miller Builders Mill Creek subdivision.

That subdivision is still largely incomplete and Buffalo Grove Village Engineer Arnold Seaberg said he would work with Arlington Heights engineers to see that a proper drainage swale is constructed between the two subdivisions.

Sander discounted complaints that water was standing in the backyards after heavy rains.

"This is not really a flooding problem. A flooding problem is when the entire house is in danger from surface water," he said.

Most of the surface water flooding in Northgate is caused by the overflow of the subdivision's 48-inch storm sewer which leads to McDonald Creek. The water collects around the intersection of Dryden Place and Burr Oak Drive, which is the low elevation in the subdivision, Sander said.

CHESTER MOSKAL, director of property management for Miller Builders, charged that the sewer was being overloaded because of illegal connections made to it in the Brookside and Merry Green subdivisions which lie just south of Northgate.

Sander said that in past years, checks on subdivision grading were not clearly defined as an engineering or building department responsibility and that as a result they may have "fallen through the cracks."

"This is a problem we have all over town, not just in Miller's subdivision," he said.

Since the building of Northgate Units 1 and 2, the engineering department has assumed responsibility for checking all subdivision grades, he said.

Sander said Miller Builders also has agreed to regrade five lots along Hackberry Drive near McDonald Creek.

Other drainage problems are caused by homeowners who unknowingly alter the original grading by installing above grade patios, filling in the backyard swale or grading their yards up higher along the foundation of the house, Sander said.

AT ONE HOUSE, he said, he found a rock garden that had been built around a backyard catch basin.

A build up of silt in McDonald Creek was also cited as a problem and Sander said there were plans to do some dredging of the creek in the next couple of weeks. He also said Miller had agreed to modify the storm sewer outlet at the creek.

"This is no solution but just something that might help" he said.

In the end, however, the number of little things that can be done and the effect they would have on the flooding problem is small.

"There is nothing minor that can be done anymore," Sander said.

Whatever the solution to the Northgate flooding problem, whether it be a retention basin in Camelot Park, another storm sewer to the creek or anything else, it will be made part of an overall flood control plan now under study, the trustees said.

Gene Wasmer Paints The Outdoors

"Birds have always fascinated me, just their ability to fly more than anything," Wasmer said in his slow, quiet manner. Wasmer's paintings reflect his statement. He usually paints birds in flight.

And when Wasmer paints a bird in flight, he wants to get it right. He said he spends a lot of time outdoors, just looking through his binoculars. He also takes photographs and keeps a notebook of when and where he sighted a particular bird.

Wasmer is a stickler for detail. A clump of foxtail grass sits in the corner of his small studio so that Wasmer can get the detail right on the painting he's working on now. He also uses "stuffed" birds for models. Wasmer is a taxidermist as well as painter and photographer.

Because of all the research that goes into one of Wasmer's paintings, each painting represents more time than just painting hours. He said that his current painting will take some 13 hours to complete. But a painting may start in Wasmer's head years before he is ready to put it on canvas. For example, Wasmer did some paintings in 1965 of scenes he remembered from his Air Force days in Alaska — in the early '50s.

AND WASMER is not easily satisfied with a painting. He says he will keep working on it until it is right — or he will throw it away or hide it.

It's only natural to ask a bird painter his opinion of the work done by John J. Audubon, the father of bird painting. Wasmer said that he thinks Audubon's paintings were "great for his day," but that they are unnatural and stiff.

"I hesitate to criticize Audubon, but vitality seems to be lacking (in his paintings)," Wasmer said, looking somewhat embarrassed.

Wasmer began to specialize in bird paintings in 1967. He cannot remember how many he has done since then, but he says he is still relatively new in a field, a field that is highly competitive.

But at least one of Wasmer's paintings has been circulated nationally. A painting done by Wasmer of a flock of Canada geese flying over a cornfield — a scene inspired by Horseshoe Lake in Southern Illinois — appeared as the cover of a recent issue of Ducks Unlimited. The magazine is the journal of the 60,000-member conservation society of the same name. Wasmer is also a member.

To be very successful at selling paintings, Wasmer says a painter has to build a reputation, something he claims he hasn't done yet.

EIGHT OR NINE other Wasmer originals hang in his home, and another three are for sale at Abercrombie and Fitch in Chicago. Wasmer said that as soon as he builds up his supply of paintings — he will paint more during the winter months — he plans to enter exhibits of wildlife paintings. Other paintings will be auctioned to raise funds for Ducks Unlimited.

Wasmer seems to have a greater goal in mind than simply making money off his hobby, though.

"It's a shame the way some wildlife is disappearing," Wasmer mused. "Maybe if more people get an appreciation of its beauty, it will better their chance for survival."

State Justice Weighs Township Issue Arguments

Lawyers for three area townships and the League of Women Voters met in closed session yesterday with Illinois Supreme Court Justice Daniel P. Ward to determine if the LWV appeal should be heard before the state court.

Justice Ward is considering their arguments before making a decision. If the Supreme Court doesn't hear the appeal, the case will move to the intermediate Appellate Court.

The LWV appeal was set in motion Wednesday after Circuit Court Judge Harry G. Comerford ruled that an election to abolish township government could not be held, based on township arguments that no legal notice had been given within the state's 20-day deadline.

Maine, Palatine and Niles townships are involved in the current LWV appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court.

The original lawsuit was filed by the LWV against officials for the three townships in September. The township argument about legal notice came during a preliminary hearing before the actual issues in the lawsuit could be heard.

JUDGE COMERFORD'S ruling legally ends the case unless a higher court reverses his judgment.

A Northfield Township appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court was rejected yesterday, sending the issue to the Appellate Court level.

Justice Ward's decision on Palatine, Maine and Niles isn't expected until later this week.

Township officials say the referendum shouldn't be held because the state legislature has not provided an alternate form of government to take over for the township if it is abolished. But LWV members claim that the legislature will act after the referendum passes, and local municipalities or the county could take over.

Voter petitions gathered by the LWV requesting the referendum were submitted to the individual townships, who in turn either rejected the referendum or refused to consider it. Lawsuits were filed three days after Palatine Township auditors rejected the referendum in late September.

Any court action will have to come soon, with the Nov. 7 election just eight days away.

The state LWV has officially opposed the township form of government, saying it is archaic and outdated, particularly in highly-populated incorporated areas.

Environment Agency Studies Gas Tank Laws

by JACK PENCHOFF

The Illinois Institute of Environmental Quality has launched a study into the adequacy of state laws and regulations governing underground gasoline storage tanks.

The study was prompted by the environmental control division of the Illinois Attorney General's office after an investigation of gasoline storage tanks in downtown Des Plaines.

Harvey Sheldon, who heads the northern region of the environmental control division, told the Herald yesterday he requested the study Oct. 12 in a letter to the institute, which is the state agency responsible for research on environmental matters.

In the letter Sheldon asked the institute to study "whether adequate state laws and regulations exist to protect the environment and citizenry from the potential dangers of the underground storage of petroleum products, particularly at service stations."

Sheldon asked the institute to study the environmental impact on public water supply of faulty storage tanks and examine whether regulations now governing the installation and safety precautions of tanks are adequate.

"The letter results from a careful investigation of a complaint in Des Plaines of alleged leaks. While we don't believe there is sufficient evidence to charge any individual for his possible leaks we believe the problem of possible leakage should be studied," Sheldon said.

HE WAS REFERRING to a complaint by Berton Kosmen, 709 River Rd., who since last October has charged that leaks in underground storage tanks at Ross Automotive, 697 River, next to the Kosmen home, were leaking gasoline that seeped into his basement sump hole.

The tanks were tested with negative results and removed last month after the service station stopped pumping gasoline and became a repair garage.

However, at the time a strong odor of gasoline was detected in the ground where the tanks were unearthed and a film of gasoline observed floating on top of the ground water by a Herald reporter.

A leak was discovered last week by the Des Plaines fire prevention bureau in an underground storage tank at Maine Automotive Supply, 1300 Miner St., Des Plaines. The company has had the tank pumped dry and will soon replace it.

A leak was detected in Jeff's River-Rand Standard station, 1530 Rand Rd. earlier this month. The tanks were replaced after the leak was discovered by tests taken by the fire prevention bureau.

Larry Hardin, an engineer with the institute, told the Herald yesterday his office is beginning to study laws and regulations in other states governing underground gasoline storage tanks.

"We want to see what the experience

"We want to see what the experience in this area is nationwide and find a reasonable solution to the problem. Based on that information we can plot a course of action," Hardin explained.

Hardin said at the conclusion of the study, which will take from three to four months, the institute will advise the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency which enforces the state's pollution laws and the Illinois Pollution Control Board which sets up the state's pollution control regulations.

AIDING THE INSTITUTE in its study will be the Citizens for a Better Environment (CBE) a Chicago-based environmental group which presented Kosmen's complaint in September, asking the attorney general's office to consider filling charges against Ross Automotive and Cities Service Oil Co., owner of the underground storage tanks.

Philip Miller, assistant director of research for the CBE, told the Herald he was very pleased with the attorney general's request and will be aiding the state in its study.

Lt. Richard Arthur of the Des Plaines

Fire Prevention Bureau told the Herald that leaks in metal underground storage tanks are caused by electrolysis.

He explained electrolysis is caused by stray electric current from homes, high tension wires and railroad transformers which have electrical connections to the ground. He said the stray current corrodes through the metal.

He said the petroleum industry has taken steps to combat the problem by devising non-corroding fiberglass tanks to be used underground.

Earlybird Sam Gladhands Commuters

It's Sam Young Day in Des Plaines.

Young, 10th District Republican Congressional candidate, and Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie will campaign throughout the city beginning at 6:45 a.m. at the Chicago & North Western Ry. downtown railroad station.

Young campaign workers and a Dixieland band will greet commuters with coffee to kick off Halloween until 8 a.m. At 6:30, Young and Ogilvie will meet with banking and city officials for coffee and doughnuts at First Federal Savings and Loan, 794 Lee St. The public is invited.

City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach, co-chairman of Young's Des Plaines campaign, said the candidates will tour local banks beginning at 10 a.m.

The candidates will meet workers at Monarch Consolidated Foods, 1794 Winthrop Dr., and Union Bag and Camp Co., 100 E. Oakton St., at 11 a.m.

This Morning In Brief

The State

A commuter train loaded with rush hour passengers rammed into the rear of another packed train in Chicago, trapping dead and injured inside. Hours after the crash the Cook County morgue reported 45 bodies had been brought from the crash. At least 100 and possibly more were injured. The death toll was expected to rise as workmen pried the wreckage apart.

President Nixon's scheduled visit to Chicago today was canceled because of the Chicago commuter train wreck, the White House announced. Secretary of Transportation John Volpe flew to Chicago to head the investigation of the crash.

The Chicago Patrolmen's Association

and the Confederation of Police, representing more than half of Chicago's 13,500 policemen, are completing plans for a "blue flu" protest election day to back their demands for a contract. Many leaders, however, expressed belief that Mayor Daley would intervene and prevent the walkout.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Daniel J. Walker governed a pint of blood to aid victims of the Chicago commuter train crash and said he would forego "partisan" political statements for the day.

The Nation

President Nixon said he will sign into law a sweeping $8.3 billion a year increase in Social Security and welfare benefits affecting nearly a million widowed and disabled elderly persons. The bill, which will require sharply increased payroll taxes, replaced Nixon's proposed welfare reform that would have guaranteed an annual income of $2,400 for a family of four.

The United States repeated it will not sign its agreement with Hanoi in time to end the war in South Vietnam by tomorrow. The Viet Cong objected, but hinted negotiations will continue even if today's deadline is not met.

The World

The British government offered Northern Ireland the long-term option of remaining part of Britain or joining the Irish Republic, but left the decision up to the people.

Canadians voted to test Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's 4 1/2-year mandate in a federal election whose outcome could mean minority rule for Trudeau's Liberal Party.

The War

With both sides trying to seize as much territory as possible before a cease-fire, South Vietnamese forces recaptured a district capital deep behind Communist lines and Communist attacks throughout South Vietnam exceeded the 100 mark for the fifth consecutive day. Increased fighting was reported in Laos and Cambodia.

Ed Frank, the challenger, alone before a crowd of students at Deerfield High School.

Will The Gods Smile, Or Rain On Ed Frank's Parade?

by JAMES VESELY

It is 7 a.m. at the Deerfield train station and Ed Frank is nowhere to be found. The commuter train has arrived and several hundred suburban residents have climbed aboard for the trip to the Loop.

As they slide out of the station how many of them know of the man who was to be here to greet them?

The silent passengers are residents of the 12th Congressional District, whether they all know it or not. Their most direct link to the Nation's Capitol as prescribed by the Constitution is up for grabs and here they are, aboard the Milwaukee Road, heading on down the line as if they didn't miss a thing.

The thing they did miss was the man who wants to go to Washington for them. Oh, they've got a congressman there already, Republican by the name of Crane, but Ed Frank is out to unseat him.

And Ed Frank, the challenger, the usurper, the jousting with giants, has missed the train.

THROUGH A SCHEDULING mixup Ed Frank missed all the trains that morning in Deerfield. Four trainloads boarded and pulled away filled with how many voters who would have greeted him, maybe even voted for him, on election day.

But when the last train leaves, Ed Frank is busy elsewhere. Instead of going to the train station as planned, he has gone directly to Deerfield High School for a morning of talking to kids — and hopefully a confrontation with his nemesis, Phillip M. Crane.

Crane's elusiveness — interpreted by Frank as the congressman's unwillingness to face him — is a theme Ed Frank strikes hard and often. Traveling with him for even half a day is likely to get you half a dozen references to "Phantom Phil," the congressman who is never home. Frank, like underdog challengers everywhere, offers to debate the incumbent and receives only silence in reply.

Frank is telling all this to the roomful of high school students. Whether he really believes Crane is unwilling to face him or if this is simply part of his campaign is hard to say.

He must know inside him that his race for Congress is not a battle but a plea for divine deliverance. Old pros of the Democratic party view the 12th Congressional District as solidly Republican that Lynn Williams, district Democratic central committeeman, said he was afraid the vote might be unanimous for Crane this time.

FRANK IS BUYING none of this and in fact seems a bit concerned what kind of opposition he will face two years hence when he is running for the seat as an incumbent Congressman.

"The Republicans will put a million dollars into the campaign to get the district back," he says.

Got the district back? Is Ed Frank really thinking ahead to the 1974 congressional race while posturers and political pundits already have decided he is running this race from the bottom of a well?

The answer does not come easy, for Ed Frank is not a man who slides easily into categories. He is not someone easily labeled as wise or naive, ambitious or slothful, zealous or ambivalent.

He now stands before a roomful of high school students fielding questions thrown to him in innocence but sometime landing pretty close to the mark.

"Mr. Frank, how do you stand on the issue of gun control and the various bills introduced on gun laws?" This from a doe-eyed young lady who might be 16.

"Well," Frank says, "I'm not for all of them."

Silence in the room for a moment. The candidate switches field a bit and begins talking about guns themselves and the various arguments for and against them. He takes another question, and then another.

HE IS STANDING in shirt and tie and he is beginning to enjoy the dialogue with the students. He emerges from the questions as Democrat with slightly conservative leanings — no doubt reflective of his suburban home. He was educated in New Jersey and his accent is still with him, giving his voice a faintly foreign lilt to Midwestern ears.

He seems on firmest ground when he is attacking Crane's record which he says he maintains in a looseleaf book to study nightly.

"Crane is a conservative radical," he says, and goes on to charge that Crane is out of tune with his own district, if not the world. Crane, Crane, Crane. Phantom Phil. The man is not here but still he lingers over this district like woodsmoke. Why won't he show himself, Frank charges.

As a matter of fact, Phantom Phil is just now pulling up outside Deerfield High School and the two men will meet for the second time of the campaign.

The meeting will be a brief one — little more than a handshake — but Frank will treat it like Stanley shaking hands with Livingston.

THE PREVIOUS meeting of the two was an explosive one, but in a curious way. It was at the Libertyville parade and Frank and Crane were both there to wave to the folks. Crane was in the back seat of a red convertible, Frank walks the curbs shaking hands. The parade stopped momentarily and Frank, seizing his opportunity, walks up to Crane's car, extends his hand and says, "Hi, Phil, when will you answer my telegram calling for a discussion of the issues?"

At that moment, the parade float in front of Crane's car depicting a sinking ship bursts into flames by accident and the parade is in an uproar. The question is never answered and the red convertible moves on.

In ancient times such a message from the gods would have meant something. In private, both Frank and Crane joke about the incident, although Crane's laugh is a bit more hearty.

Now the two meet again. Frank approaches Crane in the crowded classroom and offers to stay on in Crane's time period and "discuss the issues."

Crane says, "Well, let me talk a bit first and we'll see how it goes," and at this point a teacher intervenes and points out debates are not part of the ground rules of the day. Crane is still in his red convertible and Frank is still the man with hand outstretched as the parade goes by.

BUT IT STILL is only morning and Ed Frank has places to go. A scheduled appearance before a union group has not materialized so Frank and his driver, Jack Sullivan, a Harper student, will go to the Schaumburg Rotary luncheon for a quick stop. Frank entered the Rotary meeting, went around the room shaking hands and left to stop briefly at a Democratic coffee in Arlington Heights.

His Rotary luncheon appearance is a point of controversy. He claims he was welcomed there by officers of the club. Some Rotarians will later complain he crashed the luncheon uninvited.

He careens from the luncheon to the Arlington Heights coffee to Conant High School for another hot at a roomful of students.

His day will be long and at times frustrating. He made some points and lost some. It is a day of minor inconveniences and flashes of glory. He has been welcomed and shunned, applauded and ignored.

But after the election things will be all right.

Few Residents Seek Flood Insurance

Federal flood insurance has received a cold shoulder from Des Plaines residents since program approval three weeks ago.

A sampling of State Farm Insurance Co. agents here, Illinois underwriters of the federally subsidized program, showed yesterday that few residents have called to inquire about the insurance.

A spokesman for State Farm at Bloomington, Ill., Dick Muir, said he has reviewed only one Des Plaines application. "There's some time delay involved. The program only began three weeks ago. Local agents must have manuals and forms. Many have requested them, but it takes time to mail them out."

Statewide, applications have increased from 150 on Sept. 1 to more than 280 by Monday. Largest amount of recent sales has been in the Arlington Heights-Palatine area.

"A lot of people are disenchanted with the program when they find out about it," David Kent, a State Farm agent at 1102 S. Lee St., said.

MONEY IS THE first problem. Premium cost is about 30 cents per $100 assessed property valuation, up to a maximum of $17,500 total insurance. Cost for one year with maximum coverage would be one year with maximum coverage also is available, up to $5,000, for about 10 cents per $100.

Maximum coverage for both home and contents would be about $72,500 a year, "a small fortune," one agent said.

Second problem with the coverage is its limitations. Homes must have sump pump shut-off valves and overhead sewers. The coverage then extends only to water that enters through doors or windows, Kent said. "A lot of people say that water never will come in through high windows. Most backup is through the sump pumps which aren't covered."

Final problem is the program's $200 deductible clause. "If your house is damaged by flooding, it would be easier to apply for flood relief funds from the Small Business Administration," Melvin Dahl, area State Farm representative said.

DAHL CONTENDED that a person who suffers $500 damage to his home and its contents due to a flood could receive only $100 on the policy since $400 would be deducted ($200 for each phase of coverage).

Muir warned that policies become effective 15 days after approved.

Policies do not cover sewer backup or damage if the home is the only structure in a neighborhood to incur loss as a result of heavy rains.

Most agents said they were "surprised" that more residents have not inquired about the program.

Des Plaines was notified Oct. 10 by the Department of Housing and Urban Development that residents could purchase insurance in the $42 million National Flood Insurers Association. The city was the 13th in Illinois to join the program.

Residents can buy the insurance from any agent who then submits the policy to State Farm for underwriting.

Few businesses have contacted local agents about the program, although the insured maximum for 50 cents per $100 assessed valuation is $50,000.

Students To Play In Music Festival

Fifteen junior high school students from East Main Elementary School Dist. 63 will participate Nov. 11 in the annual Illinois Music Educators Festival at Oak Park-River Forest High School.

According to Donald Filla, director of instrumental music for the district, the festival will bring together the outstanding junior high school musicians from schools in the northeastern part of the state for an inspiring musical experience under the direction of an outstanding conductor.

Students selected from Apollo School are Douglas Ford, Lynn Nordeen, Mark

Sensaman, Alan Wax, Charles Kulas, Janet Warmack, Roni Sue Rosen and Norm Cook. Gemini School will be represented by Glenn Silverman, Nancy Englund, Nancy Pauzer, Norman Peterson, Michael Eterno, Elizabeth Petray and Richard Flack. Instrumental music teacher Dennis Gibbons will be the faculty sponsor, along with Filla.

The students will be involved in an all-day rehearsal and will participate in a concert presented by the festival band, orchestra and chorus at 3 p.m. The public is invited.

'Sam Young Day' In City Today

Chicago. Ogilvie then told officials he would participate in the parade, leaving Des Plaines about 10 a.m.

Late yesterday, Nixon canceled the Chicago parade because of the Illinois-Central train crash near the Loop. "The president felt that it wasn't an opportune time for a parade," an Illinois campaign spokesman said.

THE PARADE switch should free Ogilvie for the luncheon, Mrs. Rohrbach said Monday.

Young, and the Harvey Levy Dixieland band, will attend a Halloween party from 5 to 9 p.m. at the Casa Royale, 783 Lee St. Admission will be $1, the price of one drink, Mrs. Rohrbach said. Hors d'oeuvres, popcorn and peanuts will be free.

Two Killed, Seven Hurt In Auto Crashes

Two persons were killed and seven injured during the weekend in two separate auto accidents.

A head-on collision on Golf Road at 11:04 p.m. Saturday took the life of Gary Schremmer, 25, of 607 Jefferson St., Elgin, driver of one of the cars.

Earlier Saturday, James T. Considine, 48, of 1820 Walnut, Park Ridge, was killed when his auto collided with an auto in the intersection of Oakton and Maple streets.

Police said Schremmer was driving westbound on Golf Road between River and Rand Roads when his auto apparently veered into the eastbound lane, colliding with an auto driven by Joseph Bauer, 55, of Lombard.

A passenger in Schremmer's auto, Phyllis DeParis, 18, of 301 N. First, Maywood, was in critical condition yesterday at Holy Family Hospital.

SCHREMMER'S WIFE, Kay, 19, was in serious condition and another passenger in the Schremmer car, Gregg Boddy, 23, of 6908 Meadowbrook Ln., Hanover Park, was in fair condition. A fourth passenger, Frank Ruffin, 21, of 706 N.

Ridgeland, Oak Park, was treated and released Saturday night.

Bauer and his wife, Agnes, 59, were both treated and released from Lutheran General Hospital Sunday. A passenger in the Bauer auto, Mrs. Elynn Wynerd, 64, of 21W261 Briarcliff, Lombard, was in good condition yesterday.

Police said Schremmer's auto apparently was traveling about 55 miles per hour when the collision occurred. Bauer said police he slowed down and tried to pull off the road just before the collision when he saw Schremmer's auto veer into the eastbound lane.

Peter B. Willmings, 26, of 1816 Orchard, Des Plaines, was charged with reckless homicide, drunken driving and failure to slow down to avoid a collision after he struck Considine who was walking across Oakton St. about 9:56 a.m. Saturday.

Willmings told police he was traveling about 25 to 30 miles per hour eastbound on Oakton when Considine walked in front of his auto.

Willmings was released on a $5,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Nov. 30 at 11 a.m.

Class In Horticulture Just Grows On Students

by WANDALYN RICE
In the mid-1950s when much of the Northwest suburbs was still farmland, Lou Shalrer began teaching vocational agriculture at Arlington High School.

Several years later he became a biology teacher when the agriculture program was phased out of High School Dist. 214.

Today he has come just about full circle and is once again teaching about things that grow — in classes in turfgrass management and ornamental horticulture.

The 15 students in the two classes are based at Rolling Meadows High School, but come from Arlington and Prospect, providing their own transportation for the class and to the jobs they hold two days a week.

STUDENTS IN THE turfgrass management class work at local golf courses and for the Arlington Park District, applying the skills they discuss in class. The horticulture students work at local florist shops and nurseries.

The classwork emphasizes activity rather than theory, Shalrer says. "I grew up on a farm and the philosophy of the course is to get the kids out doing something they like to do. Once you get them doing something, you can talk about theory."

Recently, the students went out to the home of a teacher to do some shrub trimming as part of Shalrer's program of activity.

"Some of the kids had never trimmed

a shrub before," he says. "Once they started we could talk about why they were doing things, but I didn't learn how to milk a cow by reading a book."

The turfgrass management class began last year with six students and the horticulture class was added this year. The classes are open to all students in the district who can get to Rolling Meadows High School.

THE PROGRAM HAS grown slowly because "counselors in some of the schools don't know about it," Shalrer says, but he hopes the program will expand.

Naperville High School has a similar program with 200 students, he says. "I think we could do the same thing here." Shalrer's emphasis in the class is not only on teaching about trees, grass and shrubs, however. He emphasizes the relationship he tries to build with his students.

"My main concern is to help the kids find out who they are," he says. "Not long ago we took a trip to Morton Arboretum and we got to talking about all kinds of things while we walked on the paths in the forest."

And so far, Shalrer believes he has had some success in reaching the students.

"I'm not sure how many students will do this as a career," he says, "but last year I had a boy who was in the bottom quarter of his class at Arlington and now he is at Michigan State University in their turf management program."

In France, Auto Racing Is Woman's Work

by ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS (NEA) — She is a tall, willowy, green-eyed, 37-year-old blonde and she has a unique specialty for a woman. She can really "talk automobiles."

Marlene Cotton has headed the "Competition Racing Section" of the Citroen automobile company since August 1971.

A French edition of Lauren Bacall, Madame Cotton explains that when her husband died last year, the Citroen board of directors asked her to carry on with his department, which handles Citroen's participation in the prestigious international auto races.

"You see," she says, "for 12 years I had worked very closely with my husband. We were never separated. I soon acquired his passionate interest in and love for automobile competition over the years, helped him in the very minutest details of his job and became, in fact, his alter ego. We would work long, long hours, never looking at the clock."

WHEN SHE MARRIED Rene Cotton, who was 21 years her senior, he was an automobile racer. Twelve years ago Citroen asked him to direct the "Citroen Competition" department and he suggested that his wife work with him.

"He taught me everything there was to learn in his sphere, where, everyone agreed, he had no rival," continues Marlene Cotton. "Anyway, if the directors of Citroen had not judged me capable of carrying on alone they would not have offered me the job."

Her husband's last professional accomplishment was the Citroen victory in the Rallye of Monaco (Monte Carlo). She had all his notes covering future engagements and plans. There seemed nothing else for her to do but carry on.

Her crew comprises 28 men technicians, mechanics and shop foremen as well as three secretaries (women) and one telephonist.

OUTSIDE OF THE purely technical aspects, Marlene Cotton's job consists of selecting the competitions where the Citroen automobile stands the better chances of winning, choosing the type of car best suited and the drivers who will drive it to win.

There are also the hundred and one details which go into preparation for a competition — countless meetings with automobile associations, with the organizers and with the various departments of the Citroen works. Reconnaissance of the terrain, establishing servicing points, medical stations, then the make-up of crews. Marlene Cotton explains all this in a smiling, matter-of-fact way, without ever emphasizing the magnitude of the operation.

In a country where men are apt to consider that the automobile is strictly a masculine interest, how do all the men she comes in contact with consider her presence among them? Here Marlene shrugged her shoulders ever so lightly and said, "It is perhaps hard to believe, but I do think that most of the time they forget I am a woman. My 'team' has never doubted my ability to carry on."

MADAME COTTON travels a great deal. Inspection of routes, checkpoints and the mile add up to something like 100,000 kilometers a year. She has never had an accident.

As for women drivers in general, "they are either very good or very bad. There seems to be no happy medium. Their best point is that they are much calmer than men, do not think they are little Napoleons behind the wheel. Also many more women know what goes on under the hood than is commonly thought."

Madame Cotton believes all learners should be taught to drive in a "closed circuit" before being let loose on a four-lane highway. Driving tests should be much tougher, and 18 is the earliest age at which a driving license should be granted.

Madame Cotton has two children — a 19-year-old daughter, Sylvia, and a 12-year old son, Thierry. However time-consuming her work, she always has made a point of spending all her free time with them. They are weekly boarders in a private school.

FOR ALL HER man-sized job, she admits to loving clothes, feminine but never fussy, and is certainly no devotee of the pants suit, save when at work on the road. "Few women look feminine in trousers, and many contrive to look slightly ridiculous."

Altogether, what counts most with her is the intense life she lives within her job. The fact that success hinges on the unforeseeable incident (a blowout, a loose screw or even a smaller hitch) is always a challenge. The exhilaration of the race, the perfect performance of man and machine, the multiple efforts of a team — these are the elements which make Marlene Cotton's job unique and which bring her untold satisfaction.

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

Local Moms Of Twins Elected State Officers

Two area women were elected to state offices of the Illinois Organization of Mothers of Twins Clubs, Inc. at their 10th annual convention in Joliet recently. Gertrude Ziegler, 348 Cumberland Pkwy., Des Plaines, a member of the Twinners Mothers of Twins Club, Chicago, was elected president for the coming year.

Mrs. Lynda Peterson, 4008 S. Bluebird Lane, Rolling Meadows, a member of the Double Dykes Mothers of Twins Club, Arlington Heights, was selected second vice president for the state organization.

Accompanying them as officers will be Mrs. Gerald Mirakli, Aurora, first vice president; Mrs. Carl Cakderal, Streamwood, corresponding secretary; Imogene Starkey, Monmouth, recording secretary; and Judith Eads, Bollingbrook, treasurer.

Mrs. Patrick Tuttle, 832 Delphi, Elk Grove Village, was elected to the nominating committee during the convention.

THE ILLINOIS Organization of M.O.T.C. consists of 22 Mothers of Twins

Clubs representing 500 mothers of multiple birth children in the State of Illinois. Gov. Richard Ogilvie proclaimed the convention weekend, Oct. 20 and 21, as "Mothers of Twins Days" in Illinois.

Delegates and guests attended workshops and heard special speakers and entertainers during the convention. A donation of over $1,600, contributed by member clubs, was made to the Lydia Children's Home of Chicago. The St. Jude Hospital Affiliate, Peoria, was selected as the philanthropic project for the 1973 year.

The purpose of the organization is for mothers of twins clubs to join together socially and educationally to exchange information pertaining to the rearing, development and individuality of twins. Sources include doctors, educators and parents.

Interested mothers of twins may write to Mrs. Peterson for information regarding locations of local clubs and membership requirements, as well as how to organize a club in a new locality.

Clipped Pet Food Coupons Will Aid Blind Servicemen

Dog and cat owners are urged to save Vet's Perk and Peak pet food labels during the coming year for the Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines coupon collection campaign.

Coupons found on Perk Food Co. products will provide a blind serviceman with a Seeing-eye dog from the Pilot Guide Dog Foundation. To facilitate collection of the coupons, the founders will place containers in chain food stores, grocery stores and meat markets in the area. These containers will be labeled, "Help Us Collect Dog Food Labels for the Blind."

Approximately 30,000 coupons are needed to purchase one dog, depending on the redemptive value of each coupon. This redemption program is an accumulative process. All coupons collected by the Juniors last year have been credited to their account at the Pilot Guide Dog Foundation.

Seeing-eye dogs provide travel, mobility, and an opportunity for economic self-sufficiency for the blind. The serviceman receiving a guide dog from the Foundation will also receive free transportation to and from the training center and four weeks board and lodging while being trained to use the dog.

Dear Dorothy: I gave an electric Teflon-coated griddle to my daughter. It wasn't cleaned promptly after the third use and it has turned dark in spots. Can this be removed?

—Mrs. N. N

These stains should be removed as a buildup of stains can lead to a loss of the nonstick properties of this type of pan. The recommended treatment to lighten stains in Teflon-coated utensils is: Boil a solution of two tablespoons baking soda, one-half cup liquid chlorine bleach and one cup water for 5 to 10 minutes. After this, wash thoroughly, rinse and dry. Wipe out the pan with salad oil before using it again. Don't know how deep your griddle is, but if it is shallow you won't be able to put this much solution in. Just be sure the recipe proportions are right.

—Jill C

White sauce is easy to make. Have a simple medium white sauce made ahead and sprinkle diced, hard-cooked eggs over the sauce after it is poured over the asparagus. Even sprinkling crisp bacon bits or toasted blanched almonds over hot buttered asparagus gives it class. And, oh, yes, for chive asparagus, slowly heat one three-ounce package of chive cream cheese and stir until soft and creamy, then pour over hot asparagus.

Dear Dorothy: It might be helpful if you would advise your young readers to always empty the salt from the silver salt shakers after they've been in use. Salt pits silver.

—Mrs. Tom T.

Right. It's also a good idea to wash out silver pieces which held foods doused in vinegar dressings.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Quarterbacks Special Set For Pro Sports Luncheon

The past and present of National Football League and Chicago Bears' quarterbacking will be featured at the first Paddock Publications Pro Sports Club Luncheon for 1972-73.

BOBBY DOUGLASS

Hall-of-Famer Sid Luckman, the all-time leading passer for the Bears, and Bobby Douglass, the big strong left-hander who's guiding the exciting 1972 edition with so much authority, will appear at Old Orchard Country Club on Monday, Nov. 13, at the kickoff meeting for the second season of Paddock luncheons.

Luckman and Douglass will be the featured speakers, and two outstanding high school quarterbacks from the Herald circulation area are also expected to be at the speaker's table for this special all-quarterback event.

Invitations have been extended to Elk Grove's Jeff Stewart and St. Viator's Stan Bobowski, and their parents.

"We're anxious to get our second season of sports luncheons under way," said Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk. "We were pleased with the response last year and with the Bears playing so well lately, this kickoff program is a natural."

"Luckman is one of the most famous names in professional football history, and Douglass is giving Bears' fans some of the most exciting quarterbacking they've seen in years. Bobby was one of our guests last fall, and we had many requests for a return appearance."

In 12 seasons with the Bears' Luckman completed 904 passes in 1,744 attempts for 14,683 yards and 139 touchdowns. He stands almost 5,000 yards ahead of the next quarterback on the Bears' all-time list.

Luckman, the first modern T quarterback in professional football, is the only Bear quarterback in the Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio. He was at the controls in one of the most memorable games in NFL history, the Bears' 73-0 victory over Washington in 1940.

Sid Luckman

Luckman threw touchdown passes in 19 consecutive games in one stretch for the Bears and once threw for seven scores in a 1943 game against the New York Giants, completing 21 for 433 yards.

Douglass threw for 1,164 yards last fall although he still was more noted for his running ability. He has propped with the top ground-gainers in pro football this fall but enjoyed a fine passing day Sunday in the Bears' win over St. Louis. He is gradually becoming one of the most dangerous offensive threats in the NFL.

Luckman and Douglass will give short talks and answer questions at the Pro Sports Club Luncheon.

Old Orchard Country Club is located at Rand and Euclid roads, Mount Prospect. Tickets are $5, including tax and tip, for a chef's steak lunch.

Call for reservations to Anne Chalchik at Paddock Publications (394-2300) or Old Orchard Country Club, Clearbrook 5-2025.

The program will run from noon until approximately 1:30 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 13.

Call now. Don't miss this quarterback special!

Harper Rallies But Falls To Touted Triton

by JIM STUART

If you had told Harper College football coach John Ellis with about eight minutes to play that he would have a shot at a tie with mighty Triton College on Saturday, he would never have believed you.

Because with that much time showing on the East Leyden High School scoreboard, Ellis' Hawks had just seen a long drive go for naught when Triton took over on downs on its own 11-yard line. The score at the time was 20-0 in favor of the host Warriors.

Harper didn't get the tie. The final was 20-12, but what happened in those final eight minutes could bring pride to the entire Hawk team.

The last-gasp effort at a tie was really only that, since Harper had only 10 seconds to work with after recovering a Triton fumble on the Warrior 43. Quarterback Ken Leonard, who had performed so brilliantly in the final period, had to face an eight-man secondary in his only play and ended up eating the ball as time ran out.

But the rebuff of the final try could not blunt the display of execution and poise during the exciting comeback.

When the Hawks lost the ball on the 11, their defense came in and did what it had done for most of the day, although the score would say otherwise, and that's to dig in and stop the Warriors.

Four Triton plays netted exactly one yard, and the kick carried to a yard into Harper territory. Ken Memken took the ball on the ground to the Triton 43, and then Leonard hit it back to work.

Leonard first hit Rob Kruse with a pass that took the Hawks all the way to the 21 with the help of a personal foul call, and then connected with tight end Kevin Sullivan for Harper's first touchdown on the very next play.

The attempted pass for the conversion was no good, but the Hawks had proved they could move and score against the top-rated junior college in the state.

More important, they proved they could pass. All day the aerial attempts of Leonard and Bob Jorgensen had been off target, due in a large part to the great deal of pressure exerted by a tough Triton line. But now the Hawk line was starting to get tough also, and suddenly the protection was there.

Triton started a drive on its own 20 and moved to the Harper 48, but on a third and 13 Martin Epperly sacked the Triton quarterback for a nine-yard loss and forced the Warriors to kick.

This time Harper had to start from its own 23, but with the help of a pass interference call on Triton and the execution of two "must" plays, it turned into the best Hawk drive of the afternoon.

The first crucial play came on a third-and-six from its own 42 with about four and a half minutes remaining. Leonard hit Rich Posing with a strike good for a first down on the Triton 36, from where the drive temporarily stalled.

But on fourth and seven from the 33, Leonard fooled the whole house by handing to Posing who darted off tackle for 11 big yards and another first down.

Now the passing lanes were open again, and Leonard hit first Sullivan and then Kruse with passes to take the Hawks to the three. An anxious moment passed when the Hawk QB recovered his own fumble, and then he connected once more with Kruse for the score.

The conversion again failed, which nobody really noticed but which could have turned out to be a factor since, with only 10 seconds left, Triton coughed up the football on its first play from scrimmage after the kickoff and gave Harper that last chance.

In spite of the shellacking Harper took for most of the game, the Hawks were not all that outplayed. They actually out-gained Triton 238-187 and could have made it a real struggle had it not been for several early bad breaks.

Not one Triton touchdown came as a drive of more than half the field, as the Warriors got excellent field position twice through short punts and once due to a fumble.

Harper Harriers In 3rd

When the first three Harper College runners took sixth, eighth and 11th, it looked like Coach Bob Nolan was going to win his first Region IV championship Saturday.

However, the remaining two Hawks finished 28th and 58th to leave Harper in third place at the Springfield hosted meet.

"We really ran in step," said Nolan of Lincoln Land College. The wet weather Friday turned the Saturday showdown into four muddy miles.

Leading the Hawks to third behind runner Parkland (Champaign) and Lincoln Land were Ron Hankel (22:18), Mike DeLaBrea (22:21) and Bill Bates (22:23). Hankel trailed winner Frank Flores, the talented runner from Parkland, by 1:23. Flores finished second to Craig Virg in the prep state two-mile last spring.

"Our first three kids really ran well," praised Nolan. "I think they'd do a good job at the nationals."

The first five teams qualified for the finals at Pensacola, Fla., Saturday, Nov. 11. However, lack of funds might prevent the Hawks from making the trip.

Finishing behind this trio for Harper were John Geary (23:19) and Larry Cyler (24:36).

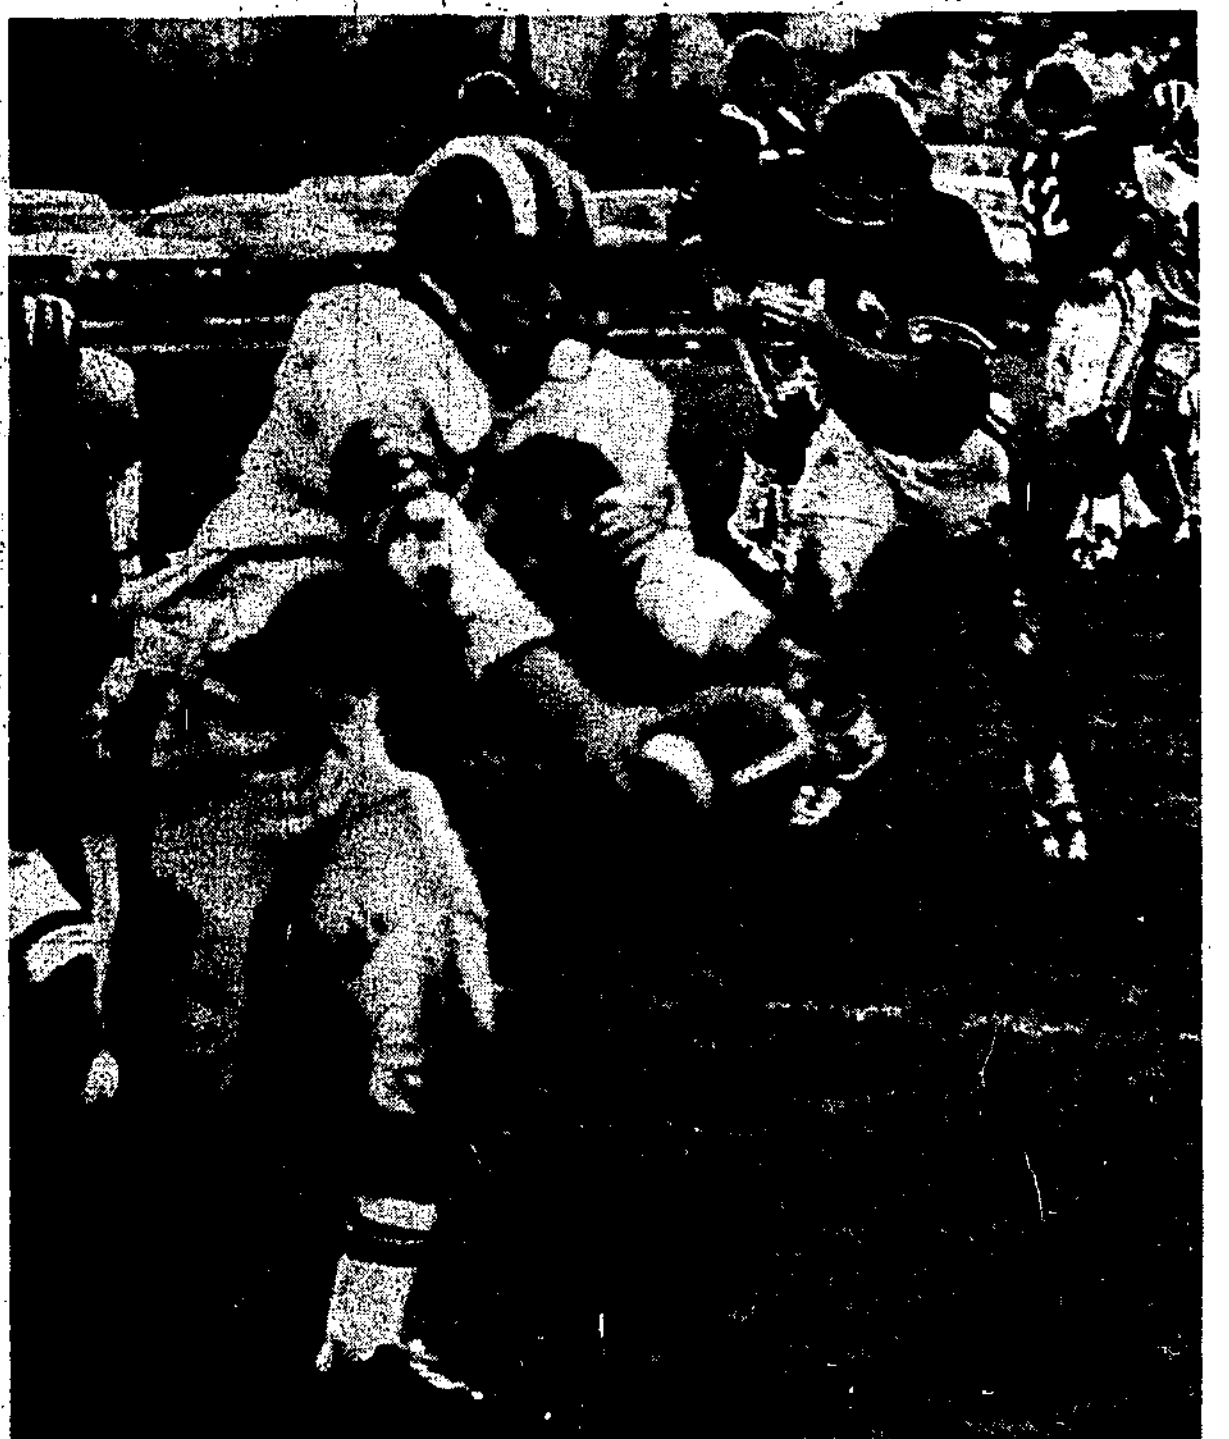

"It's still a five-man sport," said Nolan. "Five guys have to do it."

Of the meet, he said this, "It's really getting tougher. Six different schools had runners in the top 10. It's a far cry from what it used to be with DuPage getting four in the top 12."

This time perennial power DuPage slipped off to sixth. Harper has now finished in the top three in three of the last four years (two seconds, a third and a seventh).

"They ran a fine meet. We're going to host it next year," added Nolan.

Maybe '73 will hold the key to victory for the Hawks.

Ranked St. Viator, Grove Just Keep Rollin' Along

by MIKE KLEIN

Whew!!! Temperatures are soaring in the Northwest suburbs as Elk Grove and St. Viator continued pursuing a mythical state football title over the weekend with lopsided, shutout wins.

And Hersey, a loser only to the above schools, registered its fifth straight win in another lopsided whitewash.

Last week, the Chicago Daily News rated Viator and Elk Grove one-two in Chicagoland and likewise for the entire state!

And those picks certainly appear justified after what happened Friday night and Sunday afternoon.

Elk Grove sent Glenbard North to the grave Friday night, 48-0, in a slip-slop mismatch at Grove.

And Sunday afternoon, St. Viator traveled to St. Joseph where it treated the Chargers to a 41-0 football lesson.

Hersey, 0-2 after facing Elk Grove and St. Viator to begin the season, made a shambles of Rolling Meadows, 27-0, and scored all its points before intermission.

Elk Grove has become some kind of football power and it's just a shame the Grenadiers and St. Viator won't square off in a real head-banging football game.

Unbeaten in seven shots, the Grenadiers have scored 220 points and given up just 51.

St. Viator has been equally destructive, rolling up a 181-50 points scored margin over opponents.

There was never any doubt for the Grenadiers Friday night as they breezed — make that swam — past Glenbard North to clinch the Mid-Suburban South Division title.

It was Homecoming for the Grenadiers who will close their season by hosting Schaumburg this Friday night, a third home game in four weekends.

The Grenadiers never let up against outclassed Glenbard North, scoring in every quarter. In almost every conceivable way.

Quarterback Jeff Stewart opened the assault with a 66-yard touchdown romp in the first quarter. Before it was time to switch ends of the field, Jeff Schroeder had run 48 yards for another score.

And just like that, Elk Grove led, 14-0. The score doubled before halftime, the Grenadier defense putting two touchdowns across thanks to Frank Bavaro.

Bavaro intercepted two passes and carried each back 59 yards for touchdowns.

After that, the whole evening belonged to Tony Tringali. The game's only third quarter touchdown was scored when he raced 43 yards with a Stewart handoff.

Then he treated the wet Grove fans to a 17-yard touchdown run and 99-yard interception for a touchdown during the fourth quarter.

It all kept Gary Adams very busy as the blonde-haired placekicker added six extra points to Grove's production.

Game stats bore out a similar tale. The Grenadiers rolled up 456 yards total offense, 370 rushing.

Three Grenadiers went over the century mark rushing, led by quarterback Stewart with 133 yards on the ground and through the mud. Tringali picked up 107 yards and Schroeder 104.

Growth threw five times, completed two for 84 yards.

Glenbard North quarterback Daryl Feltes passed for 157 yards off 12 completions in 25 attempts. But two interceptions by Bavaro and one by Tringali took the wind out of Glenbard North.

Elk Grove hasn't been beaten in 13 games spanning two seasons and will most likely face Hersey on Nov. 11 in a rematch of last year's Mid-Suburban Super Bowl.

Top ranked St. Viator genuinely annihilated St. Joseph, allowing the Chargers just 26 yards total offense.

Like Elk Grove, the Lions also scored in every quarter, rolling up 14-14-7-6 totals by period.

St. Viator rolled up a 28-0 halftime lead and nudged St. Joseph backwards for minus five yards total offense before intermission.

Steve Bobowski scored three touchdowns in the opening 24 minutes. Brother Stan threw Steve 15 and 62-yard touchdowns passes. Steve sandwiched a one-yard touchdown dive in between.

The Lions other first half touchdown was a 14-yard pass from Stan Bobowski to Tom Chapman.

St. Viator slowed to a 13-point pace the second half. Second string quarterback Jim Bucaro raced 15 yards in the third quarter for six points.

Matt Griffin blocked a fourth quarter Charger punt and raced 44 yards with the loose ball for St. Viator's final points.

Frank Cliggett kicked five extra points.

Beaten only by the state's top two teams, Hersey unloaded a quick start of offense against Rolling Meadows Friday night and the Mustangs never had a chance.

Scott Miesfeldt scored on two short runs, one and five yards, before Mark Zakula let fly with touchdown pitches of 17 and 47 yards to Mark Conrad.

The final three scores came in the second quarter as Hersey sprinted away from helpless Rolling Meadows after ending the first period on top, 7-0.

Dan Damato kicked one extra point for the Huskies. Zakula passed to Conrad for one two-point conversion.

Hersey's convincing victory takes some of the wind out of Rolling Meadows which has now lost twice after a 4-1 beginning.

Perhaps more interesting, however, are the combined records of Rolling Meadows' opponents.

The four teams that Meadows has beaten own a combined 6-22 record. Maine North hasn't won in seven tries and Wheeling just won in Schaumburg owns two wins and Prospect three.

Palatine and Arlington defeated the Mustangs but both have been disappointed by their 4-3 records.

Actually, Hersey was Meadow's first severe test. And the Mustangs failed miserably.

Hawks 2nd In Region

"They were a little worried," said Roger Bechtold in reference to Lake County's crack golf team. After the first day's play at the Region IV championships, Bechtold's Hawks only trailed the Lancers by two strokes.

"They didn't expect any team to be that close to them," continued Bechtold of the tense shooting Friday at Champaign's Orange Course. "They (Lancers) responded very well under the pressure the next day."

Lake County heavily favored to win the regional with ease, surged back with a 305 total on Saturday to capture the school's first trophy and win a berth in the nationals in Roswell, N.M., next June. The winners' final 36-hole total was 618, 18 fewer strokes than Harper.

"They're competitors," said Bechtold. "They wanted to go down there and win the tournament."

Despite finishing second to loaded Lake County, the Hawks enjoyed their highest showing ever in the final golf meet of the season.

The Hawks might be planning to compete as a team in the nationals had two area prep players decided to attend Harper. Bob Winter, a Buffalo Grove resident, was the meet medalist with 18 hole scores of 76 and 75. His 151 total just bent out College of DuPage's Rick Janas by one stroke.

Also figuring in the top four for the winners was Arlington's Chris Marszalek with a 160.

One Hawk — Mike Sutton — did qualify for the finals. He followed his 78 with a 77 to land the final berth.

"He's just now getting his form," said Bechtold. "He's really determined to do well in the nationals."

Two Harper players who also drew praise from their coach were Scott McMillion and Frank Fenton. The latter fired a 75 before slumping to an 89 and the former came back with a 78 to finish at 161. McMillion was still not in top form because of a sore finger from an earlier injury. Nevertheless, he still played tough.

Also shooting 194s were Scott Persson and John Hansen.
